Machine Guns Mow Down Rioters.

Nine Die in Riots

Nine persons were killed and scores injured yesterday when Europe's communists celebrated May day. Five lost their lives in riots at Lubartow, Poland; one in Barcelona, Spain, and one in Oporto, Portugal, and one in Berlin.

In Lisbon, Portugal, the May day celebration took on the character of a political movement aimed at the overthrow of the dictatorship.

In most of the other European capitals demonstrations were held in check by police. Scores of heads were cracked in minor clashes.

LISBON, May 1.—(AP)—One person was killed and an undetermined number were wounded tonight when police turned a machine gun on a crowd demonstrating in opposition to the government.

ment against the dictatorship of President Oscar Carmona obviously was under way, but the populace knew nothing of its scope and would only await developments anxiously.

Following upon the explosion of a bomb in connection with May day demonstrations, members of the cabinet fled to the shelter of the fortified barracks of the Third artillery regiment, which has become almost a traditional haven for officials when trouble is brewing.

Armored Cars Patrol Streets.

Heavily armed troops maintained vigil at all strategic points and armored cars patrolled the streets in unceasing watch for a repetition of today's outbreaks. The streets were otherwise deserted and business houses were barred and shuttered. Declaration of martial law was anticipated momentarily in view of the government's feeling that the uprising was distinctly different from those of previous years and bore a revolutionary connotation.

The explosion occurred in the midst of a great crowd of demonstrators, including many middle class citizens who gathered in Rocio square and raised shouts of "Down with the dictatorship." The fragments of the bomb flew in all directions, but caused no casualties, the only victim being a horse of one of the republican guards. Troops of cavalry rode through the demonstrators and eventually succeeded in clearing the square.

In preoccupation over their own troubles the public has almost forgotten the revolt against the government in the Madeira islands. The rebels are believed to be still occupying Funchal against the advancing forces of the naval expedition.

Troops Mass for Attack.

Reports of government origin said that loyal troops were consolidating their positions over a 20 square mile area preparatory to marching on Funchal. Their area of operations extends from Alheta, 20 miles north of the city, to Fanical, 12 miles southeast.

The minister of marine, commanding the Portuguese armada, wirelessed that another detachment of infantry had effected a landing and was supporting other columns of troops advancing over difficult terrain. One battery, it was reported, had been placed in position on a height dominating Funchal.

Four companies of infantry will embark tomorrow for the islands from Lisbon on the transport Africa, which has been converted into an auxiliary cruiser.

WOMEN LAUNCH PLANS FOR BIG JUBILEE EVENT

Day Set Aside for Their Celebration.

Chicago women moved swiftly yesterday to make their part in the Chicago Jubilee an outstanding factor in the success of the celebration. All of the city's largest woman groups, civic and social, are participating.

The cultural, political and scientific contributions of women to Chicago and the world will be emphasized on Women's day. Prominent women and men will deliver addresses at various functions, the principal one of which will be a luncheon in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Sherman. Mayor Anton J. Cermak will be invited as the main speaker on that occasion. As now provided, Women's day will be held May 13.

Open House at Clubs.

Teas, receptions and bridge parties and open house will be held at most of the clubs, and prominent women from the midwestern states will be invited as guests. Other festivities, appropriate to the spirit of the day and the Chicago Jubilee, will be staged.

The celebrations will be conducted under the direction of the Women's day committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce. Mrs. Henry W. Hardy, president of the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's clubs, is chairman of the committee. Suburban as well as Chicago organizations are represented under the committee banner.

Among the groups which have already held joint or individual conferences are the Woman's City club, the Illinois division, Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform; the Alliance of Business and Professional Women; the Illinois Women's Athletic club; the Illinois Club for Catholic Women; the Chicago Women's aid; the Big Sisters club; the City and County Club federation, and others.

Invite Cermak to Speak.

Representatives of these groups met yesterday with Mrs. Hardy, voted to invite Mayor Cermak as the Women's day speaker at the Hotel Sherman luncheon, and adjourned until this morning.

Another meeting was held by members of the Cook County council, American Legion auxiliary, with a membership of 8,000. Mrs. C. A. Rogers, 815 Madison street, Evanston, is president, and Mrs. C. D. Raber, 2542 East 73d street, is vice president. They adopted a resolution supporting the Jubilee, and agreed to place the council's Maywood drill team in the May 11 parade and its Cook Council Glee club in the choral singing on May 15.

Hoover Gets Invitation Today.

Another important phase of the Jubilee will be developed in Washington today when an official invitation will be extended to President Hoover to attend the Jubilee. The invitation will be given by Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president, and James P. Haynes, executive vice president of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

According to Frederick J. Ashley, chairman of the association's coördinating committee in charge of the Jubilee, the Chicagoans will reach the capital today and stop at the Mayflower hotel. They have a conference scheduled with the President and will request him to visit Chicago during the Jubilee. They will ask him to appoint a representative, preferably a cabinet member if he cannot attend.

Plans for the inviting of President Hoover were formulated a week ago and announced at that time in THE TRIBUNE. Robert P. Lamont, secretary of commerce, was mentioned at the time as the possible representative of the President in event of the latter's inability to attend.

More Response to Program.

In all sections of Chicago, downtown, and outlying, the program of the Jubilee took concrete form. Out of town participancy already assumed definite shape. Invitations extended to central and downstate cities were augmented by one to Champaign, which was accepted by L. E. Getman, prominent merchant and president of the Champaign Chamber of Commerce. He pledged Champaign's cooperation.

In the loop, Leon Mandel II, chairman of the State street night carnival which is being sponsored on May 13 by the State street council, predicted the celebrations on that night would outrival New Orleans' famed Mardi Gras. He also announced the motif for lamp post decorations for that event.

"Chicago's seal—'I Will' is to be the keynote of the pole decorations," he said. "The background of the decoration will be dark blue with a trilogy of colors, old gold, white, and burned orange. Across the top will

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

JERUSALEM, May 1.—Three persons were killed and 39 injured in a clash between 6,000 Moslems and 50 French gendarmes in front of the Italian consulate at Tripoli, Syria, today.

The Moslems, following their morning service at the Tripoli mosque, marched to the Italian consulate, shouting "Down with Italy, down with the French mandate!" The Moslems were protesting alleged French and Italian cruelties against the Moslems in North Africa.

They attempted to attack the consulate, but 50 gendarmes and their officers intervened. The gendarmes opened fire with machine guns, killing two and wounding 25. One gendarme was killed and fourteen were wounded.

KILLED AS HORSE RUNS AWAY IN AURORA STREETS

Arthur Blankenhagen, 41, a driver for the L. V. Pike Dairy company, was killed in an old-fashioned runaway in Aurora yesterday. He left his horse and wagon at the curb while he made a delivery. Returning, he hopped on to the wagon and whistled, the signal for his horse to plod along to the next stop. Instead of starting off in a slow walk as it had done thousands of times before, the horse started off in a mad gallop down the street. Blankenhagen was dragged under the overturned wagon and killed, the first fatal accident of the kind in Aurora since the advent of the automobile.

3 Youthful Car Looters Shot by Railroad Police

Three of seven youths were shot this morning by railroad police who caught them looting refrigerator cars in the village of Phoenix, south of the city. One of the boys, George Tiekarwki, 16 years old, 15709 South Halsted street, is expected to die from a bullet wound in the abdomen. The other two wounded boys are Mike Czarnicki, 15, of 15640 Cary avenue, Phoenix, and Frank Cholewa, 18, of 15732 Cary avenue. The other four escaped. The shooting was done by Edward Woitkewicz and Leo Dwyer, special agents of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad.

"Breakfast Club" Raided by Dry Agents; 7 Seized

Fourteen prohibition agents under Deputy Administrator A. E. Hamilton early this morning raided the "Breakfast club," a night club at 70 West Erie street, arrested seven men, and seized a quantity of whisky and beer. A dozen guests, ten women entertainers and members of the orchestra, were not taken into custody. John McGovern, proprietor, and his son, John, were among those arrested. Three pistols and an automatic shotgun were found in the place.

Arkansas Banker Given 3 Years for Embezzlement

Little Rock, Ark., May 1.—(AP)—A federal court jury late today convicted Walter Cole Hudson, former bank president of Pine Bluff, on two counts of misapplication of funds, and he was sentenced to three and a half years in prison and fined $500 on each count.

Professor Gets an Education on Clark St.

Prof. Horace T. Morse of the history department of the University of Minnesota, in Minneapolis, left Chicago by plane last night to be in time for his classes this morning. He left with a smattering of higher education.

Yesterday was a pretty spring day in Chicago. The sun shone brilliantly, the air was warm. It was invigorating. Prof. Morse, a visitor in the city, proceeded for a stroll.

Somewhere in the 1200 block on North Clark street he was approached by Gavin Cummings, 35 years old, ruddy, amiable.

"Nice day," said Mr. Cummings. His voice betrayed a Cockney accent. Prof. Morse agreed it was a pleasant day as Mr. Cummings walked along beside him.

At Schiller street Mr. Cummings spied an acquaintance, Mr. John Coughlin, a drawling Yankee.

They Discuss History.

All three stood on the corner discussing Great Britain, America, and other historical matters, all simple little things for Prof. Morse. The discussion of nations seemed to lead into one of finances. Mr. Cummings and Mr. Coughlin suggested matching pennies.

"Not I," said Prof. Morse. "I don't match pennies. I'll watch, however."

He watched. Messrs. Coughlin and Cummings matched, but with dimes, not pennies. The stakes rose from $1 to $20. They reached $100.

"We need an odd man for a wager of this kind," said Mr. Cummings to Prof. Morse. The professor consented to act as "odd man," but announced he would not pay if he lost.

They Start to Match.

Three dimes were tossed into the air and landed on palms. Yankee Coughlin threw a tail. So did the professor. Cummings turned up a head. He won. Coughlin paid, protesting.

He eyed Prof. Morse suspiciously. Could the professor produce $100 to prove he was honest in turning up his coin?

Prof. Morse produced $70. He felt sorry, he said later, for Coughlin, and when the winner, Cummings, whispered into the professorial ear a suggestion to hand him, Cummings, the $70 to placate Coughlin, the professor held out the money. Cummings took it, promising to return it in the next block. He walked away. So did Coughlin. They didn't return.

He Sees the Pictures.

Prof. Morse walked to the police station. He told his story to Sergts. Thomas Morris and Frank Kehoe. They grinned. They showed him photographs. The educator, more educated now, picked out Cummings. He picked out Coughlin.

"An old game," advised the policemen sympathetically. "They match dimes. One has a coin with both sides tails. The other carries one with both sides heads. One of them can't lose. The odd man can't win."

Prof. Morse understood.

BANKER'S WIFE REVEALS "DEAL" WITH ROBBER

Mrs. Howard D. Whitehouse, 179 Lake Shore drive, wife of the second vice president of the Continential Illinois corporation, 231 South La Salle street, yesterday appealed to the office of the commissioner of police for a pawn shop detail to aid in the recovery of jewelry stolen from her apartment two weeks ago.

On April 17 Mrs. Whitehouse returned to her home at 4:30 p. m., to discover a youthful burglar searching the apartment. A suitcase was filled with clothing and jewelry. After being forced into a chair at the point of a gun, Mrs. Whitehouse talked to the burglar for thirty minutes, she said. She obtained the return of a majority of the jewelry in return for a promise not to call the police.

"I waited two weeks," she said, "because I had promised. He was fair with me and I mean to be fair with him. I will not give a description. But I think that most of the jewelry is now in the pawnshops and I am willing to buy it back."

She refused to disclose the value of the stolen articles.

PAPA TAKES THE FAMILY OUT BANK ROBBING

Troutdale, Ore., May 1.—(AP)—A man and two small boys, apparently his sons, robbed the Troutdale State bank of about $400 today and escaped in a small automobile in which a woman was waiting.

George A. Posts, cashier, said he was alone in the bank when the trio entered. The two boys, who were not more than 10 years old, Posts said, came to the counter and standing on tiptoe, placed a handful of pennies on the counter with the request it be exchanged for small silver.

While Posts was making the change the man covered him with a pistol. Then Posts was ordered into a back room where the two boys, directed by the man, bound him with wire.

Recover Bodies of Women from Canal and Lake

The bodies of two women were recovered yesterday, one from the drainage canal at Harlem avenue in Stickney, and the other from the lake at Gary. Both are unidentified. Both had been in the water for some time. The woman drowned in the canal was about 35 years old and well dressed. The lake victim was plainly dressed. She apparently suffered a rib fracture before death.

Eleven Horses Perish in Blaze in Laundry Barn

Eleven horses were burned to death early this morning in a fire in a barn of the Archer Laundry company, 2723 West 37th street. The caretaker was sleeping in an adjoining building when he heard the screams of the horses. He rushed into the place but was able to get but one animal out. The loss was estimated at $8,000.

New York, May 1.—(AP)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today was considering sailing for Paris next week to visit his mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, ill in a hospital there, if her condition does not improve soon.

Raid Gangdom for 'Slayers' of Mike Heitler

With Al Capone, gangland chief, as the object of their search, armed detectives from the state's attorney's office investigating the supposed murder of Mike [De Pike] Heitler, brothel keeper, early this morning raided the Lexington hotel at Michigan avenue and 22d street, used frequently as Capone headquarters.

Capone was not present when the raid was made, but four of his followers were seized and taken to the state's attorney's office for questioning by Pat Roche, chief investigator. The sensational raid, in which at least one door was smashed in by the police, was one of a series ordered by Roche. Other raids were made on the Western hotel, Capone's Cicero headquarters, and on several cabarets in an effort to find known hoodlums and gangsters. No gangsters were found in the Western.

"We will raid everywhere until we drive out every hoodlum from Chicago," said Investigator Roche this morning. "This is just part of our campaign to clean up the city. The hoodlum is getting out. That means Capone, too, and we are now looking for him."

Find Guns in Room.

Those seized in the Lexington hotel raid are Louis Russo, brother of "Machine Gun Jack" McGurn; Phil Andrea, Fred Rossi, and Tony Capezio. They were found in room 430. When they failed to respond to the raps of the officers two of the policemen smashed in the door with axes. Search of the room revealed two new automatic pistols.

The prisoners were taken to the state's attorney's office and locked in separate rooms. In another room officers were questioning "Dago Lawrence" Mangano, owner of a gambling house in South Halsted street. He was seized in his home at 5529 Flournoy street.

The police also raided resorts in the area in which Heitler operated. Four men—Tony Accardo, Lawrence Mangano, cousin of "Dago Lawrence" Mangano; Benjamine Grivane, and Don Grossman, all hoodlums—were seized in the Club Floridian, 674 West Madison street, of which West Side Frankie Pope is said to be a part owner.

Roche and the other officers declined to disclose what they learned, but it was indicated that "some one had talked," and that the raids and the effort to apprehend Capone were the result of the "talking." Roche said it was known that there had been trouble between Mangano and Heitler.

Satisfied Heitler Was Slain.

The supposed murder of Heitler, which is prompting the new war on gangsters and hoodlums, lies in the finding of a charred body in the smoldering ruins of an ice house on the estate of Spencer Otis, near Barrington. The body was found Thursday. Roche and others are satisfied the victim was Heitler. He seized documents in the Heitler home which were believed to contain evidence of politico-criminal alliances.

The papers, it is believed, may disclose a murder motive. Heitler was believed in the underworld, to have been acting as a "stool pigeon" for various persons and to have been shaking down west side resorts by virtue of this. Another theory presented to the police is that Heitler aroused the wrath of James Belcastro, called by police the head of the bombers, and Mangano, in attempting to set himself up as a gang leader.

The torso was found early Thursday after the ice house had been seen in flames by Mrs. Hattie Gannusch, 60 years old, who lives in the neighborhood. She called the police and re-

Jordan Indicted

Frank Jordan, slayer of Policeman Anthony Ruthy, was indicted for murder yesterday sixteen and a half hours after his crime was committed and arraigned a few hours later. The indictment was returned in record time. A delay in the hearing until next Tuesday was granted in court. Details on page 3.

Another blow against the Capone booze syndicate and gangland in general was struck yesterday by the federal grand jury when it returned indictments against twenty-three alleged followers of Al Capone, charging them with violation of the national prohibition law.

The indictments were regarded as a furtherance of the campaign of federal, state, and city law enforcing authorities to drive gangsters from Chicago. They are another step in the steady prosecution which already has convicted several major gangsters, started deportation proceedings against others, and resulted in a six months' jail sentence for Capone himself.

Principals in Indictments.

The principal figures named in the indictments are Bert Delaney, said to be in charge of the manufacture of Capone beer; Steve Svoboda, brewmaster; Martin Accardo, brother of Tony Accardo, Capone gangster; and John Mattheis.

Their indictment and that of the other alleged Capone vassals is based on raids made recently. The speed of the federal action was taken as another indication of the purpose of United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson to smash the Capone trust.

Two of these raids were on Capone's breweries at 3136 South Wabash avenue, where beer valued at $75,000 was seized, and at 1642 South Cicero avenue.

Arrested in Brewery Raids.

Four of the defendants were arrested in the raid on the Wabash avenue brewery, and six others, including Delaney, were seized the next day when they tried to haul away the plant equipment. Delaney is charged with attempting to take away equipment confiscated in a raid, according to Assistant District Attorney Edwin A. Fisher.

In addition to these ten men, six others were taken into custody later and seven more were arrested in the Cicero raid.

Among those arrested in the Wabash avenue brewery were Frank Stewart, Mike Smith, George Chandler, and Pat O'Neill. Among those taken in the Cicero raid were John Mann and Carl Sutters.

Martin Accardo and Mattheis are accused of trying to force Capons alcohol on Richard Seifert, saloonkeeper of Glenview. Seifert was named in the indictment with them, but this connection was tacitly intimated as being for the purpose of using Seifert as a witness.

Speedy trials for all those indicted will be asked of Federal Judge John P. Barnes, before whom the grand jury documents were returned.

Gangsters Sentenced to Prison.

Speed has been the rule in virtually all the federal cases dealing with hoodlums and politicians. The list of hoodlums and politicians convicted in the federal courts follows:

Al Capone, six months in jail for contempt.

Jack Guzik, five years and a day in prison for income tax evasion, plus a $17,500 fine.

Ralph Capone, brother of "Scarface," three years in prison and $10,000 fine for tax dodging.

Frank Nitti, eighteen months in prison, which he is now serving, for tax evasion.

Plead Guilty in Tax Cases.

County Assessor Gene Oliver, eighteen months in prison for tax evasion.

State Representative Lawrence C. O'Brien, eighteen months in prison for tax violation.

In addition, Christian P. Paschen, former building commissioner, is under indictment for tax evasion, and Tony [Mops] Volpe, Capone chieftain, is at the last ditch in his fight against deportation. Secretary of Labor Doak has signed the final deportation warrant.

For the first time in history three federal grand juries will be sitting in Chicago during May. This is made possible under a recent enactment of congress, whereby a grand jury which does not conclude its investigation during one month may continue for not more than two terms of one month each.

The March grand jury continued its investigation of booze conditions in South Chicago during April, and yesterday Assistant United States Attorney Daniel Anderson obtained a continuance for May. The April grand jury was granted a continuance on request of Assistant United States Attorney Dwight H. Green, the government income tax expert, and a May grand jury will be sworn in on Tuesday.

PROBE ABLIN RACKET

Dave [Cockeyed Mulligan] Ablin, boss of the old Club Algiers, founder of the ill fated Paroquet night club and other north side Meccas for the thirsty searchers for joy, who is reported to have been reduced to financial straits by the activity of federal prohibition agents, now has a new enterprise afoot. He is organizing the Cook County Garage Owners' association.

This development was called to the attention of the racket bureau of the state's attorney's office yesterday. Assistant State's Attorney Charles Lounsbury, in charge of the bureau, immediately assigned Assistant State's Attorneys Donald Thompson and Edward Duffey and a detail of detectives to watch the operations of Ablin.

600 Garage Men Sign Up.

According to Mr. Duffey, 600 out of 900 Cook county garage owners have now signed up with the new organization. So far no money has been collected in return for whatever promises are given by the organizers, but a massmeeting, at which the optimistic Ablin will explain why this venture will not follow the course of ill fated predecessors, will be held on Tuesday evening at Carmen's hall.

Ablin's organizing force, according to the prosecutors, consists of four men. The four visit garages together. One is a suave talker and is accompanied by two glowering men of the type known as "gorillas." The fourth man always sits at the wheel of the expensive touring car with the motor running for a quick getaway. They gently insinuate that it would be better for the garage owner to join the organization and tell him of the benefits he will receive. Nothing is said of potential trouble if he fails to join.

Ablin's Second Venture.

This is Ablin's second venture in the garage field. In 1925, 1926, and 1927 he was the master of the Midwest Garage Owners' association. Charging $1 a stall and special fees, his income was said to have been $125,000 a year. Ablin was muscled out by George [Red] Barker, public enemy and racketeer, and bombings, punctured tires, threats, and kidnapings followed. Barker was aided by his brother-in-law, "Big Tom" Sullivan, and the four gangsters, Clifford, Reilly, Cawley, and McElligott. All, with the exception of Barker, have since been shot and killed.

Formation of the new association coincides with the release of Barker from prison at the order of the Illinois Supreme court. The state's attorney's office considers this significant. It has been reported that Ablin and Barker have made up their differences and will work together—Barker as the heavy man and Ablin as the "smoothy." Also Barker needs money.

RUMANIA SLAPS CENSORSHIP ON ELECTION DRIVE

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

BUCHAREST, May 1.—Indignation among Rumanian political parties over yesterday's summary dismissal of parliament by Premier Nicolas Jorga rose to fever heat today, when it was announced that the government would impose regulations so seriously limiting the right to conduct election campaigns as to make the general elections on June 1 a virtual farce.

There must be no public meeting, which means that no election gatherings can be held from now until after the elections, except on Sundays. As there are only five Sundays left, the National Peasant party, which has 320 out of the 370 members in the present parliament, will be able to hold at most eight or nine meetings before the elections.

LAWYER ARGUES FOR NEW TRIAL FOR BROTHERS

J. C. O'Brien Attacks Term Fixed by Jury.

Attorney James C. O'Brien argued yesterday before Judge Joseph Sabath that Leo V. Brothers, convicted slayer of Alfred J. Lingle, should be given a new trial because if he is guilty of the crime the punishment of 14 years in the penitentiary as fixed by the jury is not severe enough. It was the first appearance in the Brothers case of Attorney O'Brien, former hanging prosecutor.

JAMES C. O'BRIEN.

Attorney O'Brien also presented three affidavits on behalf of Brothers. One of the documents was made by the defendant himself and in it he denied being in the tunnel when Lingle was shot. He says that because of "improper evidence" he did not take the witness stand in his own behalf, but might do so at a second trial if it is granted.

Says He Saw Slayer.

The second affidavit was made by Louis McCann, 1835 Hammond street, a steel worker, who asserts that he brushed past the slayer in the tunnel. He says he is unable to identify Brothers as this man.

McCann's affidavit says he went to the trial to be a defense witness and was told by a man he believes was Sergt. Michael Casey of the state's attorney's office to go sit in the witness room. He sat there until some one told him the trial was over, he says.

The third affidavit was made by Carl L. Eddy, 4367 Oakenwald avenue, a book salesman. He says he stopped near the tunnel under Michigan avenue at Randolph street on the day of the murder to wipe some oil off the fender of his car. A man ran against the car, he says, and got oil spots on his clothing and after uttering a few uncomplimentary remarks ran on. Eddy says he believes the man was the slayer making his escape. This man was not Brothers, he asserts.

The hearing opened yesterday with Attorney Louis Piquett appearing and asking permission to withdraw from the case. He and Attorney Tyrell Krum were granted this permission by the judge.

Cites Previous Murder Case.

Attorney O'Brien then opened his argument by calling attention to the case of John Scalise and Albert Anselmi, Capone gangsters, who killed a policeman and were sentenced to 14 years in prison on their first trial. They were freed by a decision of the Illinois Supreme court and were later shot down by other gangsters.

"The verdict in that case was similar to this one," said Attorney O'Brien. "I quote the Supreme court when I say it is a joke and a travesty on justice. If Brothers were guilty he should have been given a more severe sentence."

The hearing of the motion was continued until Monday at the request of Attorney O'Brien. He said he would present further arguments then. Assistant State's Attorneys C. Wayland Brooks and John Holman are prepared, they say, to argue against the granting of a new trial.

The saloons and prisoners they yielded were: 511 West 154th place, John and Walter Richuna; 15509 South Halsted street, John Kwasny and Tomasl Mroz; 15439 South Halsted, Frank Styka; 15943 South Halsted, Adolph Krajewski; 544 East 155th street, John Venema; 15613 South Halsted street, John Krauczunas; 320 East 157th place, Joe Boursky; 15641 South Halsted street, Stanley Rugis.

ported having seen three men, whom she believed to be gangsters, in the vicinity the afternoon before the fire. Police found a bridge of teeth with two crowns and a false tooth near the body, which was charred so as to preclude positive identification.

Yesterday morning Attorney Ben Cohen appeared before Judge John Prystalski in the Criminal court to ask a continuance of a perjury charge against Heitler. He said his client had been missing since Wednesday. A vagrancy charge was continued on Wednesday in the Municipal court on the same grounds.

Find Car Used by Heitler.

At the same time Chief of Police Willias MacClay of Itasca, 15 miles from Barrington, reported the finding of a partly burned car, which Heitler had borrowed from Miss Emily Mulcher, for whom he was reported to have maintained a home in Berwyn for 23 years. A gun with six discharged cartridges was found in the rear seat of the car. The cartridges are believed to have been exploded by the heat of flames.

Roche, Cohen, and Coleman (Dutch) Heitler, brother of "Mike de Pike," viewed the torso as Coroner Bundesen began a search for Heitler's dentist in an effort to identify his teeth. Coleman Heitler said he was convinced that the body was that of his brother. The weight of the body was estimated at 200 pounds and the height at 5 feet 8 inches—approximately the build of Heitler.

Brother Is Questioned.

Roche returned to his office, where he questioned the brother, who declared Heitler had been threatened recently. Coleman Heitler's wife was also questioned, but she denied that she knew "Mike de Pike."

Miss Mulcher put Roche on the track of the records, which were seized in the Heitler home at 2020 Humboldt boulevard. She also assisted in the efforts at identification by explaining that Heitler had two plates of false teeth, which he obtained 13 years ago. Roche believed he might also have had a bridge.

Wife's Story Puzzling.

A puzzling circumstance in the investigation was the declaration of Heitler's wife that she had seen him yesterday morning. Mrs. Heitler was traced by Roche from the Humboldt boulevard home to an apartment at 1901 Kimball avenue. She said Heitler had driven away from home at 9 o'clock in the morning but had not told her where he was going.

The body was buried yesterday afternoon in the Evergreen cemetery by Ray Willmering, a mortician of Barrington. There was no ritual, and no mourners were present to watch the $15 coffin lowered into a grave. Late last night Coleman Heitler asked that it be exhumed so that it might be given a better burial.

Shireson Pursued by Suits in His New Cleveland Field

Henry J. Schireson, plastic surgeon, who left Chicago a year ago when his license to practice in Illinois was revoked on charges of malpractice, has damage suits totaling $197,500 now pending against him in Cleveland. A suit asking for the appointment of a receiver for the Cleveland offices of the American Institute of Facial Rejuvenation, which Dr. Schireson is said to head, is also pending, dispatches from the Ohio city reveal.

Schireson's appeal from the ruling of the state medical board revoking his Illinois license is to be heard here by Superior Judge Walter Stanton. Schireson is asking the court to reverse the decision of the board barring him in Illinois on charges of fraud, character unbecoming a physician, and gross malpractice, on the ground that evidence did not support the charges.

Woman Asks $50,000 Damages.

Among the plaintiffs against him in Cleveland is Miss Marie Holan, who asks $50,000 damages for injuries which she alleges resulted from "gross malpractice" in a facial operation. She also brought the action for receivership in the Court of Common Pleas.

John W. Enis is asking $50,000 damages and the return of a $2,500 fee for an operation in Chicago. Elizabeth Adkins is seeking $50,000 for alleged incompetent operations to remove wrinkles from her eyelids and to straighten her nose.

Other complainants are Helen Raae, beauty operator, who wants $15,000 for alleged defamation of her professional ability and integrity, and William E. Peterson of Akron, O., who demands $30,000 for injuries which he alleges were caused by an operation to remove fat pouches from under his eyes.

Schireson Answers Suits.

In answer to the suits Schireson has contended that he did not perform the operations, acting merely as a consultant in all of the cases. Charges have been filed against him before the Ohio medical board. These have been delayed pending the outcome of his appeal from the Illinois order.

The revocation of the Illinois license was based largely on an operation performed to straighten the bowlegs of Sadye Holland, which later necessitated amputation of both of her legs. Miss Holland testified that Schireson persuaded her to undergo the operation.

The case was prosecuted before the state medical board by First Assistant Attorney General Harry Ash. The board declared that the girl's legs had not been bowed and the operation could not have benefited her.

FLYER LOST 18 DAYS IN JUNGLE DIES OF FEVER

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

SAO PAULO, Brazil, May 1.—A telegram received by the Italian consul here today reported that Maurants Quarenta, mechanic of Count Di Robilant's plane, died at San José today from injuries and exhaustion. The two Italians were found yesterday near San José after wandering in the jungles 18 days after their airplane crashed on April 12. Quarenta died as a result of yellow fever contracted on the tortuous walk through the dense forests, it was reported.

Count Di Robilant, when informed of Quarenta's death, at first refused to believe it. Later he developed a high fever. The doctors fear he may be suffering from a tropical fever.

It was revealed today that when Count Di Robilant left Sao Paulo for a flight over the jungles he ran into a two hour storm and lost his way. He flew three hours without knowing his direction or whereabouts. Aviation experts declare that because of his skill in landing in the dense forest he saved the plane from destruction.

REVEAL FUNDS OF DEATH VICTIM.

Records of bank deposits and warranty deeds totaling over $3,000 were found yesterday by police searching the room of Mrs. Anna Bends, 741 North Dearborn street, who had been found dead in bed earlier in the day. She was believed to have been destitute.

SET SPEED MARK IN INDICTMENT OF POLICE KILLER

Jordan Arraigned; Lawyer Obtains Delay.

Intervention by lawyers yesterday prevented the establishment of a Chicago record in meting out justice to Frank Jordan, alias Carl Carlson, bank robber, within twenty-four hours after he had slain Policeman Anthony Durkin in a spectacular attempt to escape arrest at Michigan avenue and Randolph street. The killer, a tall, thin man of 30 who smiled and grinned all day, had been induced by Edgar Cermak to confess his crimes and was expected to plead guilty and receive death in the electric chair or go to prison.

As it was, a record was made in the indictment of Jordan for murder at 10:30 a. m., sixteen and one-half hours after he had killed Ruthy and mortally wounded Policeman Patrick Durkin. The record was maintained in the arraignment of Jordan three and a half hours later before Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the criminal court, who was ready to pronounce sentence if the killer pleaded guilty.

Witnesses Ready in Court.

Witnesses were on hand, ready to tell of the shooting in the midst of the swaying crowds just leaving the scene of the two block chase of the killer, and the heroic capture by a young civilian, Ernest Schaeublin, 2806 Lowe boulevard.

The shooting had furnished a sensation. Two Burns agency detectives were about to arrest Jordan as a bank robber. Hundreds of persons were swarming into the subway where last night Alfred Lingle was shot to death. Policemen Durkin and Ruthy, on traffic duty, ran to the aid of the Burns men and were shot down. Ruthy to die within a few minutes, Durkin possibly to recover. The chase and capture followed.

Then followed a midnight inquest at which Jordan was held to the grand jury. At the inquest he said he confessed the murder, several bank robberies and other crimes to Mayor Cermak because "he's a good man and he showed me my duty."

Indicted by Grand Jury.

State's Attorney Swanson, from Washington, wired acting State's Attorney William Bittenhouse to hasten the prosecution. The grand jury, its month of legal existence expiring yesterday, heard the story of the shooting and voted a true bill charging Jordan with the murder of Ruthy—the shooting of Policeman Durkin being put over for action by the next grand jury.

Jordan's wife—they say they were married ten days ago—was in custody. She is Mrs. Gladys Mayhew Jordan, a woman who said she habitually carries a revolver and who was in an automobile a half block away at the time of the shooting. Detectives seized her as she was packing in the Jordans' home at 2140 Jackson boulevard, preparatory to leaving the city.

Correct Story of Capture.

The correct story of the trapping of Jordan was told, in justice to Miss Mildred Jackson, 3918 Pine Grove avenue, an employe of Knotek & Pilmey, furriers at 161 North Michigan avenue, and the niece of Mrs. Jordan. It was related by Burns Operatives Leonard Benson and J. C. Woods, and corroborated by Dr. J. T. Boswell of Kewanee, Ill., whose wife is a cousin of Mrs. Jordan.

Mrs. Boswell had visited the mother of Mrs. Jordan and had been told of the undesirable youth who was keeping company with Gladys. Dr. Boswell investigated and concluded that Jordan—or Carlson, as he was then called and which is his right name—was a crook. He had considerable money, no occupation, a shady attitude, poor language and a bad appearance. Dr. Boswell didn't know it, but the man had been in prison for six years and just two months ago jumped from the window of a train on which he was being taken to the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth.

Identified by Victims.

Dr. Boswell reported his suspicions to the chief of police at Kewanee. Sergt. Earl E. Simpson of the state police was told about the man and Simpson in turn told Sergt. Thomas Cline, who patrols the Rock Island district. These troopers thought it possible the suspicious man had been involved in the robbery of a bank at Neponset, Ill., on April 22. [They were right, as it turned out.]

They obtained a picture of Carlson, who is now Jordan, having taken his wife's maiden name at the time of their marriage, both declare. It was identified by employes of the looted bank. R. C. Saunders of the Illinois Bankers' association was notified. Meanwhile Gladys and her sweetheart had left Kewanee, Chicago bound. Dr. Boswell wanted to rescue his wife's niece from the man he then knew to be a bank robber. He came to Chicago to aid in the hunt.

He asked Miss Jackson, also a relative of his wife, to notify him whenever she heard from Gladys. Dr. Boswell and the detectives made it a practice to call Miss Jackson on the telephone twice a day asking if Gladys had called yet. Miss Jackson wasn't told the secret. Thursday afternoon Gladys called and said she and her husband were coming to see Miss Jackson. Dr. Boswell and the operatives called a few minutes later, and, as they were on the west side, they asked Miss Jackson to make the meeting as late in the afternoon as possible, to give them an opportunity of reaching the rendezvous on Michigan avenue, near Randolph street.

Woods was waiting in the lobby of the Federal Life Insurance building when Jordan entered to call for Miss Jackson. Recognizing the gunman, Woods signaled to his companion, Benson, who was outside the building. Benson in turn signaled to Durkin. When Jordan left the building and walked to the corner news stand the two operatives and Durkin, close behind him, signaled to Ruthy. It was then that the shooting started for which Jordan was about to answer when he stepped up to the bar in Justice McGoorty's court.

"Are you guilty or not guilty?" Clerk William Collins asked.

"Just a moment, please," said Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach. "Don't you think you ought to ask if he has counsel or intends to employ counsel?"

This was done, and Jordan said he had no counsel, and the court appointed Bachrach to represent him. Bachrach asked a few minutes to confer with his client. Meanwhile the grand jury filed into the courtroom and made its concluding report and the jurors turned to look at Jordan, who seemed to enjoy their scrutiny and his notoriety.

Sets Case for Tuesday.

Into the courtroom, almost breathless, came Attorney George Bieber, announcing that he had been retained by "friends of Jordan." Assistant State's Attorney Harry S. Ditchburne was ready to proceed, but Bieber asked the court not to hear Jordan's plea then but to wait until Tuesday, saying "I don't know whether or not he will plead guilty." The court granted the request and then Bieber filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus to obtain the release of Mrs. Jordan and a hearing on it was set for this morning.

Meanwhile arrangements were being made for Ruthy's funeral. Mayor Cermak was visiting the wounded policeman, Durkin, at St. Luke's hospital to cheer him. Acting Police Commissioner Alcock was planning to have a gold medal cast for presentation to Schaeublin, the hero, who came to this country seven years ago, who knew both Ruthy and Durkin and who last year at his desk in the office of the Hamburg-American steamship line arranged for a European trip for Policeman Durkin.

INVADES PARTY IN WINNETKA; SHOOTS WOMAN

Bursting into an apartment party in Winnetka last night, Joseph Fader, 30 years old, 556 Center street, Winnetka, shot and probably fatally wounded Miss Blanche La Fleur, 31 years old, a divorcée.

Fader, who is a painter and maintains a business in the north shore suburb, surrendered to Winnetka police shortly after the shooting and confessed. Miss La Fleur, who is a waitress, was taken to St. Francis hospital, Evanston. A bullet had lodged several inches below her heart, and it was said she might die.

According to police, a group of friends had gathered in Miss La Fleur's apartment at 811 Elm street. Fader was among them. He argued briefly with Miss La Fleur and departed, saying, according to police, "I owe you a debt which I'm going to pay." He returned soon and shot her.

Those in the apartment at the time of the shooting were Miss Loretta Turner, 24 years old, beauty parlor operator, who is Miss La Fleur's roommate; Carl Casel, 614 Glenview avenue, Highland Park; Leslie and Mrs Helen Carlson, and Mary Jarvin, all of 572 Pine street, Winnetka.

CHICAGO WOMAN LOSES $2,750 IN JEWELRY

Milwaukee, Wis., May 1.—[Special.]—Jewelry valued at $2,750 was lost today somewhere in downtown Milwaukee by Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Yeaton of 7615 Sheridan road, Chicago, they reported to police. The jewelry was carried in a gray cloth bag pinned to the lining of Mrs. Yeaton's coat, she said. While in the shopping district she discovered the pin had become undone and the bag dropped.

It contained a platinum bar pin, a wrist watch and four rings, a wedding ring, a solitaire engagement ring, an additional solitaire diamond ring and a dinner ring.

Mr. Yeaton offered a reward for the return of the jewelry.

LAYMEN DEMAND RESIGNATION OF BISHOP CANNON

Warn Faith in Church Is Being Shaken.

Richmond, Va., May 1.—(AP)—The Times-Dispatch says a petition forwarded to the Southern Methodists College of Bishops at Nashville, Tenn., by laymen of the church charges "untold harm" is being done the church because of the "Cannon case" and says "the least that could be asked of Bishop James Cannon Jr. under these circumstances is that he resign his office.

Text of Petition.

The petition as published by the Times-Dispatch follows:

"Thousands of laymen throughout our church are much exercised over the Cannon case, and in the light of reports that are current do not feel that Bishop Cannon has been vindicated or that the church has been relieved of a very serious embarrassment. The conviction grows that this case is doing the church untold harm.

The injury being done is more far-reaching than any of us know. A great many laymen are refusing to contribute to any of our causes except the local church expense. Some of our best people, who know something of the story, have had their confidence in the standards of the church severely shaken.

Laymen Support Church.

"The laymen are the supporters of the church. In the light of these facts which are becoming very generally known we earnestly pray that our bishops find some means to restore confidence in the moral integrity of the church. The least that could be asked of Bishop Cannon under these circumstances is that for the good and peace of the church he resign his office.

"We regard the situation as very serious for the present and future of the church. Reports that gravely reflect on the moral character of Bishop Cannon have been published throughout the country. He has made no public statement that would vindicate himself or that would relieve the church of the embarrassment which she suffers by reason of the fact that he is one of her bishops.

Asks Why Secret Hearing.

"The proceedings of the committee of investigation have been kept secret and the public is wondering what is there that cannot be told. This is a condition unparalleled in the history of our church and one so serious that we feel it calls for extraordinary action.

"We sincerely request that you give the facts in the case your careful consideration and take such action for the relief of the church as your godly judgment may dictate."

The Times-Dispatch says a number of personal letters from laymen have likewise been forwarded to Nashville requesting the college of bishops not to make Bishop Cannon president of the college.

Bishop's Friends Active.

Nashville, Tenn., May 1.—(AP)—It became known tonight that Bishop Cannon's friends have not been idle while petitions seeking his resignation have been circulated, and that tomorrow the College of Bishops will receive indorsements of the bishop, along with requests for his resignation.

BROTHERS WILL DON ASBESTOS SUITS TO BLAST FLAMING WELL

Gladewater, Tex., May 1.—(AP)—The Kinley brothers, known through the oil fields of the world for their success in blowing out oil and gas well fires, are faced with the most dangerous job of their daring careers and have decided for the first time to don asbestos suits.

They are planning to tame the flaming Sinclair oil gusher near here, which has been blazing since Tuesday night, when it caught fire, killing nine men.

Tomorrow, or perhaps Sunday, the brothers, M. M. and Harry Kinley of Tulsa, Okla., will attempt to set off a charge of nitroglycerin at the mouth of the well and blast out the flames.

An airplane propeller rotating at high speed will be used in an attempt to fan back the flames as the brothers carry the explosives to the well crate.

Officials of the Sinclair Oil company estimated the cost of extinguishing the fire would be around $50,000.

Charge Woman Murdered Her 83 Year Old Mother

Phoenix, Ariz., May 1.—(AP)—Formal charges of murder were filed today against Mrs. Minnie Rutledge, 50, in connection with the death of her 83-year-old mother, Mrs. Alice Pyle. Mrs. Pyle died April 19 from what a coroner's jury found were the effects of a beating administered on April 17. Mrs. Rutledges had denied her guilt.

HIGH COURT VOIDS 93 COOK COUNTY FELONY VERDICTS

New Trials Uphold Only 5 of Convictions.

Statistics prepared by the Chicago crime commission yesterday showed that in 97 Cook county criminal cases the Illinois Supreme court had set aside the verdicts of Cook county juries and that in only five of those cases were there subsequent convictions on the same charge. The period under study covers the last five years. It was shown that in connection with the 93 reversals there were 17 new crimes charged against the defendants who benefited by the Supreme court decisions.

After the recent release from the penitentiary of George [Red] Barker, notorious public enemy, gunman, and labor racketeer, by the Supreme court, State's Attorney Swanson pointed out that although Cook county has more than half of the population of Illinois it has only one of the seven members of the state Supreme court. It was also shown that this one justice [Frederic R. De Young] does not represent Cook county alone, but represents the 7th district, which includes the populous counties of Will, Lake, Kankakee, and Du Page.

The study of the after effects of Supreme court reversals was prompted when attention was called to this limitation of Cook county's representation on the Supreme bench.

Rapist Gets Shorter Term.

For the five criminals reconvicted on the original indictment it was shown that reduced penalties were the order. For instance, Frank Egan, convicted of the brutal raping of a young woman who became a victim of progressive paralysis and St. Vitus dance as a result of the attack by Egan, was originally sentenced to life imprisonment. The Supreme court first affirmed this sentence, but on a rehearing granted Egan a new trial, which resulted in a ten year sentence.

Joseph Okopske, convicted of rape and granted a new trial by the Supreme court, was sentenced to one year on the next trial.

Parnell Mooney, convicted of embezzlement, had the verdict set aside by the Supreme court, and on his next trial was put on probation for one year.

Gets One to Ten Years.

George Hart, indicted for robbery but convicted of grand larceny, was sentenced to one to ten years after the Supreme court sent the case back to the Cook county Criminal court with directions as to what should be done. A man of that name had been arrested for an attempt on the life of Edward (Spike) O'Donnell, and he was classified as a member of the Saltis-McErlane gang.

Michael Kowalski, convicted of assault to murder—the shooting of Raymond Karas, a musician—received the same sentence of 1 to 14 years after the Supreme court had set aside his first conviction.

The records showed that after reversals of original convictions, there were seven other cases in the list of 93 in which the defendants were either convicted of lesser offenses or pleaded guilty to minor crimes and received a minimum punishment or judicial clemency.

65 Escape New Trials.

In 65 of the 93 cases the defendants were not brought to trial again. The 65 were classified as follows: Dismissed outright by the Supreme court, 23; stricken off with leave to reinstate, 20; nol prossed, 19; dismissed for want of prosecution, three; died, one [Russell Scott].

In ten of the 93 cases not guilty verdicts were returned in the trials that followed the Supreme court's reversing and remanding of the original conviction by jury. The 93 reversals include six cases listed as still pending in the Cook county Criminal court for retrial.

In the twelve cases of the ninety-three in which a second conviction or a plea of guilty was obtained, the name of Dr. Amante Rongetti appears twice, and he is also listed as among those charged with new crimes following the reversal by the Supreme court. Dr. Rongetti was sentenced to death by the first jury that heard the evidence regarding the death of Miss Loretta Enders, with whose murder he was charged because of an illegal operation, neglect, and other attending circumstances.

The Supreme court gave him a new trial, and again the same for him when he was convicted the second time. The Supreme court also just recently affirmed the action of a jury in terming the crime as manslaughter, but a petition for a rehearing is still pending in the high court.

In between those Supreme court actions Dr. Rongetti was tried for another murder by abortion, but was found not guilty.

The others who were more fortunate in their second trials—after Supreme court reversals—were listed as follows:

Charles Trimm and DeWitt Fly, convicted of robbery. Reversed by Supreme court Dec. 23, 1926. Tried again before Judge John J. Sullivan. Felony waived. Pleas of guilty to petit larceny. Each sentenced to 1 year in House of Correction.

Wilbur Carter, convicted of murder. Reversed by Supreme court Oct. 22, 1927. Tried later before Judge Harry B. Miller Jan. 31, 1928. Pleaded guilty and was sentenced to one to fourteen years for manslaughter.

One Wins Probation.

Walter Pernalsky and Joe Szatkousky, convicted of burglary. Reversed by Supreme court Feb 20, 1929. New trial April 24, 1929, before Judge William J. Lindsay. Felony waived and plea of guilty to petit larceny entered by both. Pernalsky sentenced to one year in House of Correction for petit larceny. Szatkousky released on probation.

Rex Carroll and Albert Waltz, convicted of kidnaping, etc. Reversed by Supreme court Nov. 25, 1930. Pleas of guilty entered before Judge Joseph Burke on Dec 23, 1930, and sentenced to six months in House of Correction on finding of guilty of extortion.

Edward Smith and Joseph Pociak, convicted of burglary. Reversed by Supreme court on Dec. 18, 1930. New trial April 21, 1931. Felony waived. Pleas of guilty to petit larceny. Pociak sentenced to six months in House of Correction. Smith found guilty, but case held on call by Judge Peter Schwaba.

It was explained that probation is being considered for Smith.

DEPORT WIDOW, 'PENNILESS,' AND FOUR CHILDREN

Washington, D. C., May 1.—(AP)—The deportation of a "penniless" American born widow of a Canadian and her four children was reported and condemned tonight by Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, national chairman of the national woman's party.

In a formal statement, Mrs. Wiley protested the deportation of Mrs. Lillian Larsh and her children to Wallaceburg, Ontario, Canada, from Detroit, and added her organization is asking the labor department to investigate.

Mrs. Wiley made public a telegram from Harry Shirley, chairman of the charity department at Wallaceburg, saying Mrs. Larsh was given one day's notice to leave, and that unable to sell her furniture, was forced to give it away, obtaining only $1.50 by selling a stove, "all the money she had in the world."

Shirley added Mrs. Larsh arrived "destitute, and no place to go," and with no relatives on her side in Canada.

'FAKES' SUICIDE EFFORT; NEARLY KILLS HIMSELF

A feigned attempt at suicide went awry yesterday and sent Raymond Stone, 34 years old, 5820 Kenmore avenue, a salesman, to the Edgewater hospital, where he was in a serious condition last night from a bullet wound in his temple. According to Sergt. William Messett of the Summerdale station, Stone, jilted in an alleged love affair with another woman, a neighbor, threatened to kill himself before his wife in an attempt to regain the latter's affections. Stone's finger slipped on the trigger, Sergt. Messett believes, inflicting the unintended wound.

Seize Five as Bandits; Find 15 Guns in Flat

Sheffield avenue police yesterday arrested five robbery suspects in an apartment at 3640 West North avenue in which they found thirteen revolvers and two shotguns. The five prisoners, all of whom will be viewed today by robbery victims, are: Lewis Silk, 32 years old, owner of the apartment; Ralph Cermick, 19 years old, 1252 West Chicago avenue; Walker Kanis, 19 years old, 1248 Fry street; Joseph Sadowski, 26 years old, 3145 West 42d street, a paroled prisoner from Joliet, and Tony Famillo, 25 years old, 1501 Cleveland avenue, also a paroled convict. They confessed a number of street holdups.

PLAN NEW BILLS TO PUT WOMEN BACK ON JURIES

Decision Throws Courts Into Uncertainty.

New bills authorizing women to serve on juries in Illinois—bills minus the referendum clauses that the Illinois Supreme court on Thursday ruled had invalidated the laws on that subject now on the books—probably will be introduced in the general assembly immediately.

MISS GERTRUDE CORKELL.

Somewhat dismayed but not completely disheartened by the decision of the high court, the women responsible for the passage of the referendum bills at the last session will meet in conference on Tuesday. It is predicted they will determine to attempt the reintroduction of the same bills approved in 1929 without the provisions for a vote of the people which the Supreme judges said was an unconstitutional delegation of legislative authority.

Some Courts in Turmoil.

But the problem of the advocates of equal rights and duties in court proceedings was not the only one raised by the decision. In several downstate courts judges and attorneys were faced with the question of what should be done in half completed cases in which the juries include women. Although several such queries were submitted to the office of Attorney General Carlstrom at Springfield no general rule was laid down.

Another similar question concerned the effect of the high court's action upon cases already decided by juries that included women. The attorney general's office declined to pass on such matters until they have been formally submitted, but court actions on behalf of persons thus adjudged are expected to be started in several counties.

Ask New Preston Trial.

As an example Attorney Eugene L. McGarry now intends to ask a new sanity trial for John E. Prestoh, convicted slayer of Agnes Johnson, who recently was pronounced sane by a Du Page county jury consisting of seven men and five women and is now awaiting electrocution at the Joliet penitentiary.

Examples of the immediate problems raised by the decision appeared in Coles county, Stephenson county and Boone county. At Charleston, Coles county, Circuit Judge George W. Bristow delayed until this morning a call for the final report of the grand jury because there are two women among it's members. The court also excused several women who were waiting to serve on petit juries.

At Belvidere, Boone county, five women sitting on the jury in the case of Joseph Shestokes and Victor Zambrowski, charged with murdering Harry Wilkison, were excused and replaced with five men. In Stephenson county the May docket of the county court was postponed until October because it was too late to draw a new venire list minus women.

Continues With Women Jurors.

At Ottawa, La Salle county, Judge Joe A. Davis went ahead with a civil case before a panel including three women. The court announced he would continue to allow women to be included in the venires unless counsel objected.

Kane county, which is said to hold the record for women jurors—they having sat as members of 22 panels there—probably will see efforts to reopen a number of those cases. One was a civil suit for $108,000 in which the jury awarded the plaintiff $12,000. The most recent of these cases was concluded on Thursday after the Supreme court decision was handed down. It was a civil suit involving $2,100.

Women to Battle On.

In Chicago leaders of the decade long fight to obtain jury service for women expressed dismay even while protesting that they would not give up the battle.

"Naturally the only thing we can do is to start in again," Miss Genevieve Corkell of the Illinois committee for women on juries, said in sizing up the situation. "Probably a bill providing for the legalization of women on juries will be presented to the legislature again, since the electorate, by passing the referendum, demonstrated that women jury service was favored by a good majority.

"It seems worthy of note that the Supreme court, according to my information, did not touch on the constitutionality of jury service for women in rendering its decision, but merely denied the validity of the law in Illinois because the legislature, so to speak, 'passed the buck' to the people."

Dispatches from Springfield corroborated Miss Corkell's information that the court passed only on the question of the referendum and not upon the question of the power of the general assembly to provide for jury service by women. The dispatches also stated that the decision apparently does not affect the validity of such laws as the Chicago Municipal court act and the nonpartisan aldermanic election act, which were adopted by local referenda.

Society Wedding

Mrs. Roger Wilson Cutler.
[Acme Photo.]

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—Eastern society was surprised today when Mrs. Frederick Lothrop Ames of New York, Boston, and Newport and Roger Wilson Cutler of Brookline, Mass., were married quietly in the home of Mrs. Ames' daughter, Mrs. Howard G. Cushing, here without attendants or guests.

The new Mrs. Cutler was Edith Callender Cryder. Her first husband died in New York several years ago. In 1929 her daughter, Mary Ames, married Howard G. Cushing.

Cutler, a Boston broker, 42, has been prominent socially since he distinguished himself as captain of the Harvard crew. His first wife was Miss Leslie Bradley of Massachusetts. In December, 1928, she obtained a divorce from Cutler and custody of her four children.

P. LA FOLLETTE GIVES WATER POWER PROGRAM

Wisconsin's finances, its taxing policy, and its program for the development of native water power were the subjects discussed by Gov. Philip L. La Follette of Wisconsin last night in an address before members of the Wisconsin Society of Illinois. The society met at a banquet in the Palmer house.

During the present period of inflation in governmental expenditures, the governor stated, Wisconsin has kept its taxes down, and its "pay as you go" policy, he declared, places the state in healthy financial shape to weather the present period of depression. The state, he said, is proud of this policy in view of the sensational financial difficulties faced by other states.

Talks on Water Power.

The governor spoke at length on Wisconsin's plans for the development of water power, declaring that if the program is carried out the state can supply "cheap and abundant sources of power which can outrival any industrial state of the east."

Gov. La Follette was introduced by George I. Haight, Chicago lawyer and past president of the society. Charles S. Pearce, president of the Colgate, Palmolive-Peet company, is the present head of the society.

The Chief Objective.

"Wisconsin's power policy," the governor declared, "embodies the principle of the positive participation by the state in the planning of the supply of this essential factor in modern life at the lowest possible cost to the farmer, industrialist, and other users.

"The one objective of the program is to produce and supply electricity to the economic life of Wisconsin so that it can successfully compete with the economic life of any other state in America."

SZYMCZAK TELLS CERMAK STATUS OF CITY'S FUNDS

Face Shortage Even if Warrants Sell.

Mayor Cermak was informed yesterday, in a fiscal statement from City Controller Szymczak, that even if the 1931 tax anticipation warrants are sold there will be a "bookkeeping" deficit of $73,204 at the end of the year and an actual shortage of some time in December of between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000.

In the report Mr. Szymczak excluded from his calculations $1,427,500 in miscellaneous revenue that the city council had figured on in preparing the 1931 budget. While the council had a legal right, the report states, to include the $1,427,000, the controller cannot consider the item available until fairly definitely established.

Other Revenue Possible.

"This apparent minor deficit without question," the report states, "could be converted into an accounting surplus by a definite settlement of the Chicago Tunnel company claim [$1,-000,000], a considerable increase in the collection of general corporate taxes, or a reduction from the 15 per cent used in the loss and cost of collection of 1928 taxes.

"The payment of judgments rendered against the city prior to Jan. 1, 1930, can be made only in part, after the collection of 1930 taxes, which will be some time in 1932. Those judgments are paid from the so called judgment tax fund, which tax levy cannot be anticipated by the issuance of tax warrants.

"Judgments rendered during 1930 and certified to the controller during that year will be paid when we can sell 1931 warrants, if it is thought advisable to sell warrants bearing 6 per cent interest to retire judgments bearing only 5 per cent interest."

$7,000,000 in Taxes Received.

The report discloses that the city has received $7,000,000 on the 1929 taxes from the county treasurer. This money is being used to retire the 1931 tax warrants which the city and school board have outstanding. Warrants held by purchasers outside the city's special funds are being redeemed first.

"This is for the dual purpose," the controller states, "of establishing our good faith with the investing public, which has been waiting a long time for its money on these tax warrants, and also to show that city officials have perfect confidence in the credit of the city by retiring tax warrants held by the city's funds last.

Bear High Rate of Interest.

"Another very important reason why we desire to retire the tax warrants held by the security market first is the fact that such tax warrants bear from 5½ per cent to 6 per cent interest, whereas those in which the city's funds are invested bear only 1½ and 4 per cent interest.

"We are also endeavoring to create a market for 1931 warrants by retirement of 1930 warrants at the earliest date possible. This is based upon the fact that the banks have advised that one of the conditions that must be met before they will purchase 1931 warrants is the retirement of the 1929 warrants."

Confer on Health Commissioner.

A delegation of 200 members of the Chicago Medical society and ten allied organizations and from the Chicago Dental society waited on Mayor Cermak with a request that the new health commissioner be chosen from the organized medicine groups.

"We are not interested in any candidate," said Dr. James H. Hutton, president of the medical society, "but we ask you to recognize as a requisite membership in organized medicine. The health department must depend on team work with practicing physicians of Chicago."

The mayor told the delegation that he understood that they are opposed to the selection of Coroner Bundesen, a former health commissioner.

"I assume that," he said, "because I see in this delegation physicians who came to me before the election and sought a pledge from me not to appoint Dr. Bundesen. I said before the election that the next health commissioner must be a man who will work in cooperation with the practicing physicians. I say the same thing now."

Urge Merriam to Accept.

In connection with the mayor's offer of a place on the school board to Prof. Charles E. Merriam, School Trustee Joseph P. Savage wrote to Mayor Cermak congratulating him on the selection and to Dr. Merriam urging him to accept the position.

A slight flurry was caused when reports spread around the school board offices that the trustees were meeting secretly to elect a president. The reports were denied by members of the board.

Corporation Counsel Busch announced the appointment of Leo J. Doyle, 7422 North Paulina street, as assistant corporation counsel in charge of the real estate division. Mr. Doyle, who is a former Municipal court judge, will receive a salary of $7,500 a year.

POORLY GUARDED CROSSING BLAMED FOR FIVE DEATHS

A poorly guarded railroad crossing was blamed by a Lake county coroner's jury at Antioch yesterday for the deaths of five Libertyville youths who were killed when their automobile crashed into a freight train of the Soo line at a crossing on route 21, a half mile north of Antioch, on April 23.

The jury's verdict declared that the electric wig-wag warning signal at that crossing was inadequate and recommended that better equipment be installed. The five who were killed were Herrick Herrington, 19; George Eaton, 24, step-son of Mrs. John L. Taylor, wife of the Lake county coroner; Daniel Whigam, 23; Clifford A. Gustafson, 23, and Edgar Lindroth, 21, all of Libertyville.

Three deaths yesterday in Cook county increased the motor toll since Jan. 1 to 384. The victims:

John Johnson, 35 years old, colored, 1121 Blue Island avenue. Fatally injured when he was struck by a truck driven by Edward Dooley, 915 West 54th street.

Theodore Bradsky, 6 years old, 6134 South May street. Died at the Englewood hospital of injuries received Thursday when he ran in front of an automobile.

Body Taken from Sound Identified as Jeweler's

Glen Cove, N. Y., May 1.—(AP)—Police tonight identified as Abraham H. Levy of Brooklyn a man whose body, bound with wire, was found today in Long Island sound. Levy, a jeweler, disappeared on Feb. 14 last with $25,-000 in uncut diamonds, his own property.

The body bore five bullet wounds. The hands had been bound with wire, which also was twisted about the neck.

A reward of $1,000 was offered for Levy by his family. No trace of the diamonds was found.

80 Slain or Wounded in Desert Fight for Water

LONDON, May 1.—(AP)—The Herald's Jerusalem correspondent says that more than 80 persons were killed or wounded in a fierce fight between Bedouins and others for water around a desert well. The report came from motorists en route to Damascus from southern Iraq. It said the natives, suffering from thirst, had traveled long distances to the well. Recent dispatches said hundreds of shepherds and tribesmen were reported dying of thirst in the deserts of southern Syria and central Arabia.

THREATS FAIL TO MATERIALIZE AT PARK MEETING

Threats of physical violence voiced yesterday by attorneys for two newly elected commissioners of the north shore park district against members of the old board failed to materialize last night when the two new members were seated and the new president was elected.

There was no demonstration at the meeting, for the old members failed to attend. Howard P. Savage, former head of the American Legion, was elected to the presidency, and the two new members, Thomas F. Myers Jr. and Patrick C. Winn, were seated following the filing of their oaths of office earlier in the day. The meeting was held in the office of the board, 1111 Farwell avenue.

Threats to "throw the old members out at tonight's meeting" were heard yesterday after dismissal of court action calling for a canvass of the votes by which the two new members were elected last April 7. The action was dismissed by Judge Fred Rush in Circuit court on motion of Attorney George Sullivan, counsel for the petitioners. The canvass was sought to establish the right of the new members to take office.

MOSCOW PARADES ARMY

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MOSCOW, May 1.—Beneath a cloudless sky and a flood of brilliant sunshine, the soviet government today celebrated May day as a symbol of the proletariat struggle against capitalism.

From the top of Lenin's mausoleum, constructed of Siberian onyx and inlaid with semi-precious stones from all parts of the union, Dictator Joseph Stalin and President Kalinin reviewed a great procession, while Minister of War Vorochiloff, after first harranguing the troops, took a salute as they filed past.

Red square was jammed with spectators, including several hundred American tourists. Prominent among them was A. Piatt Andrew, congressman from Massachusetts, who arrived yesterday; Brig. Gen. William Haskell, the "eye of President Hoover," as he is referred to sometimes here, and Gene Tunney, the prizefighter.

Diplomatic Corps Turns Out.

The diplomatic corps turned out en masse. Sir Esmond Ovey, the British ambassador, and Dr. Dirksen, Germany's envoy, were conspicuous in derby hats. The Italian military and aviation attachés wore the distinctive baby blue uniforms which Premier Mussolini has adopted for his officers, but all the other foreign attachés wore civilian clothing.

The Red army made an impressive showing as 50,000 troops, including all branches of the service, filed by. The soviets showed that, regardless of the condition of the rest of the population, the army is maintained in perfect condition. The soldiers wore new equipment, including uniforms, boots, and rifles, but the most impressive sights were the enormous new tanks and the businesslike appearance of the motorized artillery which included eight inch howitzers.

The air force also made a spectacular showing. Squadrons of airplanes flew low in perfect formation, including all types of planes, from tiny single seaters to pursuit planes and huge four engine bombing monoplanes.

Million Civilians March.

After the military spectacle, which lasted almost three hours while a thousand piece brass band blared away, a procession of more than a million men, women and children began. They strode past in wide, serried ranks, with eyes right on the spot where Lenin lies in the shadow of the pockmarked Kremlin walls.

Detachments of troops from all parts of the country were also in line. The snappy, red capped police received a big burst of applause, despite the fact that they are members of the G. P. U. [secret service]. The crowd cheered the green capped frontier guards, with their savage trained police dogs, used in border patrol work, while the Cossacks were favorites, as usual.

An interesting angle was the way the automatic rifle and the light machine gun sections had been developed. Each skeleton company of infantry which paraded had thirty of these mechanical weapons out of each 360 men in line. The automatic rifles are compact, businesslike looking little articles and are easily carried over the shoulder by one man.

Display Mechanical Arm.

An extremely creditable presentation of the most modern mechanical arms of warfare was made. This section of the parade began with squadrons of armored cars of various types, from the light, high speed machines, carrying two light machine guns, to the heavy, protected chassis mounting heavy machine guns with adaptable caterpillar bands. All carried wireless masts and equipment.

An endless series of tanks then appeared, including 200 tiny ones of the darting whippet type, for one and two men. They scampered up and down at 25 miles per hour. The heavier protected French model turret tank carried one and one-half inch guns and two heavy machine guns. More than 300 of these monsters clattered past, dipping their guns in salute as they passed the tomb.

Preparedness for an air attack was revealed by an imposing array of anti-aircraft artillery, from long snouted six inchers down to field guns and special machine gun patterns. Batteries of searchlights and acousticans for detecting hostile raiding machines by the sound of motors followed.

Artillery Is Motorized.

The motorized artillery revealed stubby eight inch howitzers nestling comfortably on reinforced motor trucks, long six inch pieces thrusting their gleaming noses forward between the chauffeur and mechanician, and field guns snugly strapped on camions, with caissons trailing. The artillery seemed a cross between the French and Italian patterns, with the lightness, flexibility, and clean lines of the former.

The horse artillery was interesting, showing a new system of three piece batteries with enlarged limbers carrying an increased number of shells and special ammunition trucks, each fitted with a machine gun to guard against hostile airplanes and equipped with a thin steel deck for fire protection.

DISORDERS DOT EUROPE

LONDON, May 1.—(AP)—Serious riots in Barcelona, Oporto, and Bilbao, Spain; Lisbon, Portugal, and Lubartow, Poland, constituted the principal violence in Europe's observance of May day.

Three communists and two police were killed in the Polish town in a general melee between authorities and demonstrators. Two persons lost their lives in a fray in Barcelona, one in Oporto, and several were gravely wounded in Bilbao. The rioting at Lisbon took on the character of a political movement aimed at the overthrow of the dictatorship.

In general, however, the day passed off more quietly than in some years and with the absence at most places of casualties or serious incidents.

London had the usual communist demonstration, with the usual absence of anything approaching violence. Paris saw a series of minor skirmishes between police and communists, with the former holding the upper hand. A group of young radicals shot a policeman in Berlin and the red flag flew over the university for a time while Social Democrat and National Socialist students engaged in fisticuffs. One policeman was killed in a clash with communists. Rome was without the problem inasmuch as May day was abolished seven years ago and has not been celebrated since.

Constantinople and Vienna reported all quiet. Athens and some of the Balkan capitals were reasonably calm, although there were minor clashes and numerous arrests.

Scandinavia was orderly as usual. At Geneva there was a parade of several hundred workers bearing red flags, but their behavior was circumspect. Brussels passed a placid day. Warsaw's police precautions were so effective that the only untoward incident was the smashing of a few shop windows in the Jewish quarter.

Call Out Cuban Troops.

HAVANA, May 1.—(AP)—Labor day demonstrations in Havana today claimed from one to three lives and caused injuries to some two score.

Although the interior department said there had been no disturbance of the peace in other sections of the island, Regla, across the bay from Havana, was under what amounted to martial law. Some hundred soldiers this afternoon were hurried to nearby San Antonio de los Banos and Santiago de las Vegas, where trouble threatened.

Military forces, policemen, and plain clothes men scattered throughout Havana had to use force at least seven times to quell incipient demonstrations.

Twenty Persons Shot.

In Zanja street police interfered when strikers sought to halt street cars by cutting the overhead cable. Passengers, employés, idling workmen, and bystanders joined in. Before the riot was quelled some score or more persons were wounded, including Miguel Fernandez, workman, who later died. A street car conductor, unidentified, is at the point of death.

One report said a woman who watched the occurrences from a balcony fell into the street and broke her neck, but hospital authorities said they had no report of it.

At San Rafael and Aguila streets police interfered with demonstrating laborers, and two plain clothes men were reported fatally wounded. At the emergency hospital, however, attachés gave no information.

Put Down Riot in Manila.

MANILA, P. I., May 1.—Attempted red celebrations in Manila and environs were frustrated today when sixty-four persons were arrested while parading with red banners and deadly weapons. The first parade attempt was made at Caloocan, a suburb, and was dispersed with the assistance of a fire hose. The crowd was in an ugly mood, necessitating drawn bayonets and the threat of a volley on the part of the constabulary.

The group reformed near Manila and attempted to enter the city in formation. Police reserves broke them up.

Raid Exclusive Hotel.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, May 1.—Thousands of Europeans and natives raided the Carlton hotel and the Rand club, two of the most fashionable places in Johannesburg, today in connection with the communist May day demonstrations. Police charged into the crowds, inflicting injuries and making many arrests.

Thousands Parade in Mexico.

MEXICO CITY, May 1.—(AP)—Several thousand workers paraded the principal streets of the city today in celebration of May day, carrying signs which demanded help for the unemployed and opposed the national labor law now pending in congress. The paraders charged that the proposed law was partial to capitalism, especially American interests. Celebrations were orderly and mounted police patrols had the city under heavy guard.

AMERICA REPORTS NO MAY DAY RIOTS, TRIVIAL DISORDER

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

America passed a quiet May day.

Several American cities—principally New York, Boston, and Cleveland—had demonstrations in which many thousands of persons took part. There were some arrests, but only isolated cases of trouble between demonstrators and police.

Boston Common and New York's Union square were gathering places not only for communists and radicals, but also for patriotic organizations and—at Boston—children.

Several arrests were made in Cleveland as a result of minor disturbances in Public square where a demonstration marked the start of the "hunger march" of 75 delegates of Cleveland's unemployed workers to the state capital.

Police as Escort

Marching eight abreast in a column three blocks long, several thousand communists yesterday staged their annual May day demonstration in west side streets. They were escorted by squads of motorcycle policemen, while plain clothes detectives mingled in the crowd. A detail of 172 extra policemen was stationed at the Maxwell street and Des Plaines street police stations to guard against violence, but none occurred.

Starting at Union park, the parade proceeded in an orderly manner to the West Side auditorium at Taylor street and Racine avenue. Calling to bystanders to join them in demonstrating against all forms of capitalism, the paraders displayed banners and cartoon of prominent persons.

4 EXPEDITIONS HUNT SCIENTIST LOST ON ICE CAP

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, May 1.—(AP)—By dog team, boat, and air, four expeditions tonight were on their way to search for Augustine Courtauld, son of a British manufacturer, who is missing atop Greenland's ice cap.

It was learned that two groups of dog teams left Angmagsalik this afternoon, manned by friends of the missing scientist. Meanwhile Capt. Albin Ahrenberg, Swedish pilot, landed here at 10:05 tonight from Bergen, Norway, by way of the Faroe islands. He hopes to proceed early tomorrow.

A wireless message was received from the other expedition on the Icelandic patrol boat Odin that the vessel was picking her way cautiously through thin ice and seeking a suitable landing place at Iceland. A plane is aboard the vessel. It will be piloted by Siquard Jonssen. A fifth expedition may join the search later from Oslo, with Riiser Larsen, noted explorer, as its head.

SPANISH LABOR'S MAY DAY FIESTA PARALYZES LAND

Two Slain in Barcelona Communist Riot.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, May 1.—Labor today imposed on an apparently willing Spain a May day paralysis believed never to have been equaled anywhere. Easy victors over the Bourbon Alfonso and his system, labor, which means Socialism, very much in the ascendancy now with three of its chieftains in the cabinet, chose to parade its strength on the occasion of the national fiesta authorized by the provisional government.

Labor succeeded so well that few can now doubt that the Spanish revolution, which was pulled off with its help, will be carried vigorously through to a finish under its watchful eye.

No Street Cars or Taxis.

The trains moved but little. There were no street cars or taxis and cafes and restaurants were shuttered. There were no amusements, no newspapers. Cooks in the hotels took a holiday. Tourists procured their basket luncheons last night and walked, carrying their bags to and from the station. The workers, in whose honor the nation was paralyzed, could do nothing to enjoy their day but parade, wave red flags, and chant the "Marseillaise."

Nobody ran amuck, but in Barcelona, Bilboa, and Oviedo the communists arranged to trouble the dull serenity of the fiesta.

In Barcelona 800 communists filtered through the mobs of peacefully parading syndicalists and Socialists to the government palace of Catalonia. Fully 100 of them were armed, the police say. They attempted to take the palace by surprise, to pull down the two flags of the Spanish republic and that of Catalonia, and raise their own red banner. But they found the doors barred.

While they were trying to batter them down the syndicalists pitched in. Shots were fired. One policeman fell dead. Two others were seriously wounded. The police then fired. The battle lasted half an hour and when the ambulances arrived, 15 communists and syndicalists were found wounded. One communist died later. The military garrison quickly restored order.

Nine Wounded in Bilbao.

In Bilbao, the industrial capital of the north, a roving band of bolsheviks clashed with a mob of Nationalists and Basques. Shots were fired and nine, mostly communists, were wounded. In Oviedo communists and miners were dispersed by police charges.

Elsewhere in Spain labor paraded in orderly fashion through deserted streets.

As on the day of the revolution, when they might have had the heads of the aristocrats and chose to ride on the roofs of the tramcars instead, the populace of Madrid today preferred to wander for the first time in the royal gardens, now opened to the public, and to heckle vanquished enemies.

The people's first day on the royal preserves resulted in 72 casualties, mostly intoxicated persons, who picked fights with each other. Some fell in the lake and were rescued.

Rescue Alfonso's Dogs.

The royal family's several dogs, which were left behind at the palace, were rescued this morning. After telegraphing various officials, former Queen Victoria got in touch with the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, which procured a search warrant, entered the palace and found the hungry animals. They will be fed and shipped to Fontainebleau, the French home of the royal exiles. At Alfonso's hunting lodge at Casa del Campo 19 greyhounds were found. They had had nothing to eat since the revolution.

He will return to New York today. He is stopping at the Deerpath inn in Lake Forest and last night visited at the Howard B. Peabody home, 195 South Onwentsia road, Lake Forest. Lord Tennyson is an English athlete, being captain of the all-English cricket team. He has been in this country for two months visiting in New York, Miami, Palm Beach and elsewhere.

HAYMARKET RIOT VETERANS TO BE HONORED MONDAY

The heroism of the 170 policemen who subdued anarchy in Chicago 45 years ago will be extolled Monday evening at a dinner given by the West Side Kiwanis club in compliment to the 16 survivors of the Haymarket riot. The gray haired veterans, under the leadership of Frank P. Tyrrell, former captain of west park police and president of their association, will gather at 7 o'clock at the Midwest Athletic club.

Frank J. Tyrrell, president of the Kiwanis club and son of the aged captain who resides at 827 Lombard avenue, Oak Park, will preside at the dinner meeting.

Judge Kickham Scanlan of the Appellate court will be the principal speaker. Acting Commissioner Alcock, State's Attorney Swanson, and members of the Austin and Mid-Town Kiwanis clubs have been invited.

All of the officers of the Veterans' association reelected last year will be present. Thomas Meany is the vice president; Jeremiah Kennedy, treasurer; Freeman Steele, financial secretary, and James P. Short, recording secretary.

"Millionaire" Bootlegger Given 8 Months in Jail

Kansas City, Mo., May 1.—(AP)—Ray Broom, alleged by the government to have made a million dollars by bootlegging in Kansas City, today was sentenced to eight months in jail and fined $5,000 for failure to file a federal income tax return in 1928. Sentence followed conviction by a jury.

SUPPORT GAINED FOR MECHANIZED ARMY BRANCHES

Greater Use Favored by Staff Studies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 1.—[Special.]—A greater infiltration of trucks, armored cars and other fighting machinery into the American military establishment is expected to follow recent studies made by the army general staff. Indications are that within the next year or two, if funds are made available, the cavalry horse will have to make way in many instances for the armored cars and other types of rapid cross-country transportation.

Branch Missions More Definite.

The recent studies made by the army are expected to culminate in the assignment of a more definite mission to each combat branch. Each branch head would be held responsible for utilizing the best types of transportation available for accomplishing the mission of that unit.

The new more toward a greater mechanization and motorization of the army has followed experiments which have been made with new fighting machines in recent years. Experiments and tests at the Aberdeen proving ground, Fort Meade, Md., and at Fort Eustis, Va., have served to instill greater interest in mechanized units and their possibilites.

May Mechanize Cavalry Regiment.

One cavalry regiment would be completely mechanized as an experiment when funds were made available if the studies now under preparation are approved by Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley and Gen. Douglas MacArthur, army chief of staff. Officials in touch with the studies consider it highly possible that mechanized and horse units both will be maintained for some time to come in the cavalry arm.

Armored cars would be utilized for gaining information when the terrain was suitable, while horses would be employed in rough country.

In recent years Representative Ross A. Collins [Dem., Miss.], a member of the house appropriations committee, has fought all appropriations for the upkeep of horses, asserting that a more efficient army could be maintained if machines were utilized to a greater extent.

AFRICA DOUBTS REPORT OF DEATH OF U. S. EXPLORER

Report Originated in New York.

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—Dr. Arthur Torrance was believed by his brother, Capt. Victor Torrance of Los Angeles, to have been drowned before April 28 after a cloudburst struck his camp. Capt. Torrance said he was so notified by a message carried from the wilderness to Buta by a runner and sent out by Discom Madison, a member of the party.

DR. CHASE SEATED AS SIXTH ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY HEAD

Educational Leaders Join in Ceremony.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Pictures on back page.)

Champaign, Ill., May 1.—[Special.]—Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase was installed today as the sixth president of the University of Illinois amid scenes of pomp, color and dignity.

In its deeper significance the state might be seen here extending the personal or temporal ruler, but to the kingdom of ideas, the social philosophy of more and higher education for the many.

Not only in Illinois but all over the United States, Dr. Chase pointed out in his inaugural address, this philosophy has been accepted, and 232 delegates from other universities were here to support this view. The depression has not stopped this unmistakable trend. Its consequences are still to be written in a new national life. In a very real sense, Dr. Chase said, modern civilization has become, in the words of H. G. Wells, "a race between education and chaos."

500 in Procession.

The inaugural procession, which marched down a pathway of elms from the library to the gymnasium of this $35,000,000 educational plant which the state has built, consisted of more than 500 delegates, distinguished visitors, and representatives of state institutions and organizations. The university band led the way to the stately march of "The Standard of St. George." The academic gowns of the delegates, black, trimmed with purple, red, or gold, according to degree, made rich contrast with the new leafy green of the over arching trees. The gymnasium was decorated in orange and blue and the ceremony of installation took place on a stage banked deeply with palms.

George A. Barr of Joliet, president of the board of trustees, made the introductory address and formally installed Dr. Chase, who came to Illinois from the presidency of the University of North Carolina a year ago.

Emmerson Greets Visitors.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson extended greetings from the state and Dr. Samuel Wesley Stratton, chairman of the corporation of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, spoke for the university world. President Lotus D. Coffman of the University of Minnesota expressed greetings from the state universities, in place of President Edwin A. Alderman of the University of Virginia, who died while on his way north yesterday. Dr. Charles H. Rammelkamp, president of Illinois college, spoke for the state colleges.

The university faculty was represented on the program by Prof. James Wilford Garner, the alumni by Frank Hutchins McKelvey of the class of 1907, and the student body by Vernon Ladis Kretschmer, president of the student council.

Tells Obligations of Institution.

President Chase gave his installation address first. He spoke briefly of the history of the university, which since its founding in 1868, with two professors and fifty students, has grown to an institution with 1,400 teachers and 14,696 students. He then discussed what such a university owes to its state.

"The state university must, in the first place, be responsive to the social philosophy of higher education, which has become so clearly evident in state and nation," he said. "One of the startling facts of our national life is the six fold increase in thirty years of the proportion of young men and women of college age, who are continuing their education in institutions above the high school. This percentage has risen from less than three in 1900 to more than eighteen in 1929.

"The current is too strong to be stemmed by any temporary depression, or by any criticism of the crowding of our colleges. Unless there shall be some marked and relatively permanent change for the worse in our American standard of living this condition will not pass. Almost unconsciously we have come to a point at which the prolongation of formal education up to the age of maturity has become the normal and accepted state of affairs. Never before in the world has this been possible for the average family. In times of depression it is one of the last opportunities to be surrendered. Those of us who have faith in the future of America must look forward. I firmly believe, to an even wider spread of that philosophy and its consequences.

Not Measured in Money Terms.

"It will not be, as I see it, primarily in terms of vocational preparation that this philosophy will manifest itself. It is a short sighted and wholly partial view of higher education that measures its value in terms of its money returns to the individual. It must be measured rather in terms of the fact that a new and rapidly changing civilization, complex, confused, and intricate, requires a longer period of preparation, if men and women are to lead in it lives of understanding, of happiness, and of usefulness. It must be measured in terms of the fact that the welfare of the American of tomorrow demands a citizenry educated beyond the point of its citizenry of yesterday. There is, I believe, no other course.

"Today we can regard higher education as the privilege of an exceptional few only at the cost of sacrificing that widespread philosophy.

"The decade on which we are now entering is, in my judgment, critical for the state universities. Under the influence of the new social philosophy of America toward higher education they are confronted by a definite choice. Either they must accept the challenge which the public interest in higher education has thrown them, and do their utmost to deal with the vast and complex problem of popular higher education, or they will retreat from reality into an academic world that sighs for simpler problems and less varied tasks, that manifests impatience with all but superior students and traditional ideas, only to waken to hard fact, when it is too late, that the public demand for higher education is strong enough to build up other types of institutions to meet its needs."

Gov. Emmerson assured the university that "within the restrictions imposed by an antiquated revenue system, the state will continue to extend to the University of Illinois the financial assistance necessary to carry along its work to the highest development." He spoke of the value of the great discoveries made at Illinois and its aid in increasing productivity of farm lands, in the development of dairy, fruit and poultry business. In its contributions to chemical and engineering science, he said, there is no civilized country in the world that has not benefited from the things learned at the University of Illinois.

Politics Stop at Campus Edge.

Prof. Garner said that politics in Illinois had always stopped at the edge of the Illinois campus.

"This is a civilized standard which I venture to commend to the few states which have not adopted it," he said. "If this university has achieved a standing among educational institutions of which it has every reason to be proud, if it has served the educational, scientific, and economic interests of the commonwealth, its success has been due in no small degree to the unbroken immunity from political interference which it has always enjoyed from the beginning."

President Coffman spoke of Dr. Chase's career at the University of North Carolina and said:

"One of the blessings which we enjoy in this democratic country is that when men of talent and ability are discovered in the educational world they can be moved to fields of greater and even more distinguished service.

Leadership in Balance.

"The world has lost faith in large measure in political leadership because it did not prevent the world war; now it questions its leadership in economics because it did not forecast and prevent the financial depression. Shall it lose confidence in its educational leadership because it pursues false gods and fails to search after the facts and state the truth? There never was a time when there was a greater need for courageous souls in our universities and when there was greater need for protecting and encouraging them."

Honorary degrees were conferred upon Evarts Boutell Greene, former dean of the college of literature and arts, writer on colonial history; Eugene Davenport, former vice president of the university; Arthur N. Talbot, graduate of 1885 and a noted civil engineer, and to President Rammelkamp of Illinois college.

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—President Hoover pushed a button in Washington, two little girls jerked a red, white, and blue ribbon, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith waved his derby, and the doors to the tallest mountain of brick and steel in the world swung open at noon today while 5th avenue paused to gape.

The house that Al built was ready for its 25,000 tenants. Each of its 104 floors (two beneath the earth) were spick and span, and the 200 foot tower, waiting for an intinerant dirigible, shone like an alderman's top-hat. Ten million polished bricks and seven miles of chrome nickel steel glistened in the brilliant sunshine as the big wigs of the town gathered to watch the former governor's two little granddaughters gleefully yank a colored string.

Al Chews on Cigar.

Grandpa Al chewed furiously on a cigar butt, Mayor James J. Walker arrived 15 minutes late, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt came in and took a seat beside Mayor Walker for the first time since the governor quashed the charges of incompetence against the mayor. Other distinguished guests arrived. A cordon of police pushed back the crowd from the main doors. Grandpa Al tugged at his red bow tie, looked at his watch, flourished his derby (black), and the Empire State building was opened with the elaborate thoroughness of a bottle of champagne.

Eighty-six floors above the street (and there was a lot of building above that), the party attending the more intimate features of the celebration paced the observatory terrace and later lunched and heard speeches.

"I'm still awestruck," said Gov. Roosevelt.

Walker Makes Wisecrack.

"They built it so high to give public officials a place to hide in," wisecracked Jimmy Walker.

"Few can tell what the future will bring forth," ventured Paul Starrett, the builder.

"Come on. Let's go," said Al Smith, as he waved a sandwich.

Down stairs, a long way down stairs, the great corridor glowed with a lovely light. The rose tinted marble dominated the wide hall and a large replica of the mighty building brought "O's" and "Ahs" from the house warming party.

Striding through the building like a boy on Christmas morning, Al Smith led the crowd through the skyscraper. They rode at 1,000 feet per minute to the observatory floor, more than 1,000 feet above the street level, and then ventured into the topmost observatory platform in the dirigible mast tower, another 260 feet above the ground.

Autos Look Like Bugs.

Up there the city stretched out like a clay map and the wind boomed by at gale force. Tiny bug-like machines crawled the length of 5th avenue and black dots filled the sidewalks. The rivers, the sound, and the ocean sprang into view and neighboring cloud touching buildings were dwarfed.

The Empire building rests on historic ground. There was romance in its construction. A crucial battle of the revolution was fought where it rises, and social and business history was mirrored in the old Waldorf-Astoria hotel that was dragged down to make way for the new skyscraper. A century ago there was not so much as a surveyor's stake to mark the spot. It was a farm, and all the land about cost only $2,400 in 1799. Sunfish creek, which ran nearby, was a duck pond. Then William B. Astor bought it for $20,000 in 1827. When the Waldorf came down two years ago the plot brought $8,000,000 an acre.

Plans for the Empire State building were announced on Aug. 30, 1929. On Jan. 22, 1930, excavations started. Today the building was completed. It is owned by Empire State, Inc., officers of which are Alfred E. Smith, president; Robert C. Brown, vice president and treasurer, and J. Holloway Tarry, secretary. Pierre S. Du Pont, August Hechscher, John J. Raskob and other financiers are among the directors. Shreve, Lamb & Harmon were the architects.

The tip of the Empire building is 1,265 feet above the street level. The Eiffel tower, long the tallest structure in the world, is 955 feet in height; the Chrysler building spire rises to 1,046 feet; the pinnacle of the Bank of Manhattan building in Wall street stops at 927 feet, and the Woolworth building rises to 767 feet.

57,000 Tons of Steel.

More than 57,000 tons of structural steel—enough to build a double track railway from New York to Montreal—went into the building. There are 6,400 windows to be washed and seventeen million feet of telegraph and telephone wire wind through the skyscraper. There are fifty-eight elevators plunging through seven miles of shafts, running at a top speed of 1,200 feet a minute.

It was just 42 years ago that New York's first steel skyscraper was constructed. They called it the Tower building and crowds stood at a safe distance to watch it topple over in the first gale. It toppled several years ago, but workmen brought it down, for New York has little use for thirteen story buildings.

SCOTT PROPOSES NORTHWESTERN FLYING SCHOOL

Urges Landing Field and New Buildings.

A campus airport and a school of the air with instruction in both radio and aeronautical engineering were envisioned in the next decade's development of Northwestern university last night by Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president of the school.

Addressing 400 alumni, who had gathered at a banquet in the Blackstone hotel in honor of the 62d birthday and his tenth year as head of the university, Dr. Scott outlined an $35,000,000 expansion program now being planned.

"Within the next ten years let me suggest some radical developments that may take place at Northwestern," said Dr. Scott. "We may establish such new schools as the school of domestic science; a school of the air, including radio and airplane; and a school of crime detection and criminology."

New Buildings Needed.

"The undergraduate schools need new buildings and a more adequate endowment," he continued. "Within the next decade or two the Evanston campus probably will be extended eastward into Lake Michigan for a quarter or a half mile, with a lagoon east of the campus and beyond the lagoon a public park, landing field, and a boulevard."

Dr. Mayo Also Speaks.

In an address interspersed with humorous remarks, Dr. Mayo offered lively comment on such subjects as prohibition, farm relief, war, education and medicine.

"People today are eager to be informed on medicine, but the means of telling them have not been found," Dr. Mayo asserted. "In the matter of mouth hygiene, for example, a couple of black face radio performers have done more to educate the public than all the dental schools together."

"UNKNOWN MAN" IS IDENTIFIED AS CEMETERY THIEF

FLORENCE, Italy, May 1.—(AP)—Italy's famous "unknown man" was legally identified today by the Court of Appeals as Mario Bruneri, wanted by the police on a charge of stealing a tombstone from a cemetery.

For years the man's identity has been in dispute and last March two women went to court to decide which was his wife. One identified him as Prof. Giulio Canella, with whom she had lived before the war and whom she had accepted as her husband several years later when she found him in a mental hospital. The other said he was her husband, Mario Bruneri, and the father of her child.

Prof. Canella was reported missing after a battle in the world war. He was an officer in the Italian army. Several years ago the man now identified as Bruneri was found wandering dazed near a cemetery.

AMERICAN RED CROSS OFFERS AID IN RUSSIAN QUAKE

Washington, D. C., May 1.—(AP)—Chairman Payne of the Red Cross today cabled an offer of aid in the Russian earthquake disaster. His message, addressed to the Red Cross organization of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, Moscow, read:

Hunt Dead; Quakes Continue.

MOSCOW, May 1.—(AP)—Continuing earthquakes in the Sanguesur district of the soviet republic of Azarbaijan, Transcaucasia, were believed today to have added to the loss of life and property damage already sustained by the area in tremors of the last two days. Unofficial estimates of the dead there and in parts of Armenia reached 500, with many more injured.

So many victims are still buried under the ruins of their homes that it is impossible to make an accurate estimate of the loss of lives. Forty-four little settlements in the neighborhood of Ordubat were reported destroyed and in that city itself 270 houses were demolished. The government is sending in carloads of food, provisions, and medicine.

ACTION STARTED TO TEST VALIDITY OF TRANSIT LAWS

Swanson, Carlstrom Seek to Speed Merger.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

State's Attorney Swanson and Attorney General Carlstrom started quo warranto proceedings yesterday to test the validity and constitutionality of the five laws passed by the 1929 legislature to enable Chicago to grant a terminable permit to a consolidated transportation company.

JUDGE KLARKOWSKI.

The suit was filed in the court of Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski. Its purpose is to expedite the merger of existing surface and elevated lines and hasten a start on the construction of $200,000,000 worth of extensions and improvements and the digging of the $45,000,000 State street subway.

The action was taken at the request of James Simpson, chairman of the citizens' committee which has labored for improved and enlarged local transportation service since its appointment by Federal Judge Wilkerson in December of 1928.

Cermak Wants Prompt Action.

Mayor Cermak added his indorsement by saying that he is not only in favor of the legal proceedings "but also in favor of everything else that will expedite the arrival of the effective date of the ordinance and hasten the day for a comprehensive system of transportation with its added conveniences to the people."

"It would amount to a municipal calamity if the transportation program should be unnecessarily delayed," Mr. Simpson said. "Not only does Chicago urgently need the transportation promised, but its construction would provide employment for thousands of men as well as supply work for other thousands in producing the requisite materials.

"A more appropriate period for construction could hardly be imagined. There have been few times in the history of the nation when the pressing necessity for more employment has been so emphatic and urgent. And there has not been a period in Chicago's history when the need for more and better transportation has been so great and its acquisition so highly advantageous.

Cites Opposition to Program.

"Yet there are a few interests which are seeking to retard, if not actually block, the transportation program, which has probably come closer to universal approval than any other major civic undertaking in the last 40 years of Chicago's advancement."

These interests, it was pointed out, have questioned the legality and constitutionality of both the enabling legislation and the terminable permit, adopted by the city council on May 19 last and approved by the voters last July 1.

Mr. Swanson and Mr. Carlstrom, in a joint statement, said that the validity of the ordinance must necessarily be passed upon in the proceedings instituted to test the constitutionality of the enabling legislation. They said they were cooperating because of the importance of transportation to Chicago.

Suit Attacks Transit Laws.

Attorney Stephen A. Foster has a suit pending before Judge William J. Lindsay attacking the validity of the whole transit program. He contends that the legislation is unconstitutional, null and void. He has argued his contentions and Special Attorney Walter L. Fisher for the city has argued that Foster's contentions are wrong.

By means of the proceedings started by the state's attorney and attorney general it is hoped to hasten a decision on the entire subject by the Illinois Supreme court. Attorney Fisher and Attorney Allan T. Gilbert will represent the city in the suit.

Says Pauline Starke Kicked Him in Face; Asks Divorce

Los Angeles, Cal., May 1.—(AP)—Charging Pauline Starke, the screen actress, with kicking him in the face, calling him names and otherwise abusing him, Jack White, film producer, has filed suit for a divorce here. Miss Starke was unduly jealous, he alleged, discharging his nurse at a hospital and wrongfully accusing him of associating with other women. The actress filed suit April 13, asking division of $100,000 in community property and $750 a month separate maintenance.

Artists Hard at Work.

Arthur V. Fraser, chief window decorator for Marshall Field & Co., designed the decoration. He and other artists will create further embellishments for the affair, which will be announced shortly by Albert C. Fuller, assigned by Walter L. Gregory, managing director of the Palmer house, to the State street council to handle news of the council.

On the west side a gigantic parade, which will march in front of the home of Mayor Cermak, is being formulated. The line of march will be from a starting point at Canal street and Jackson boulevard as follows: North to Madison street, west to Crawford, south to Roosevelt road, east to Kedzie avenue, south to Ogden avenue, southwest to Crawford avenue, south to 24th street, east to Millard avenue, and past Mayor Cermak's home, west to 25th street and Crawford, south to 26th street, east to Kedzie, north to 22d street, east to Leavitt street, north to 18th street, east to Halsted street, north to Madison street, and disband.

Museums to Remain Open.

Other big features of the Jubilee will be the availability of Chicago's cultural and art centers to night visitors. The Art institute and Field museum announced they would remain open until 10 p. m. during the Jubilee to accommodate visitors. The Buckingham fountain will be opened on May 10, ten days before regular schedule, for the Jubilee. Major displays will be given nightly, the south park board announced.

Plans for the dedication of the site and beginning of construction of the new $10,000,000 outer drive bridge were being completed yesterday. The Ketler-Elliot Construction company which, it is believed, will be awarded the job, is tentatively arranging the plans, which will be finally determined Monday. A tug boat carrying officials of the south and Lincoln park boards will sail down the river, just after a plane drops a ribbon of roses across the river, signifying the line of the bridge. The vessel will cut the ribbon.

At Stagg field on May 15, 3,000 boys of the R. O. T. C., under Maj. F. L. Beals, will hold a field day, featuring athletics and games.

Entries Continue to Pour In.

Float and band and bugle corps entries continued to pour in yesterday to Jubilee headquarters. The Walgreen Drug stores, through Charles Walgreen, president, offered the use of Mr. Walgreen's plane to be employed to carry mayors of neighboring cities to the festival. The Hydrox corporation, the Atlas Brewing company, and Kirschberg's jewelry house at 104 South North State street, entered floats.

The Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad announced its reduced excursion rates for the Jubilee had been extended beyond the original 200 mile limit. This extension, believes W. B. Dixon, general passenger agent, will attract hundreds of visitors from major cities along the railroad.

R. W. Ireland, general traffic manager of the National Air Transport, Inc., also announced his company has advised its agents to spread the word of the Chicago Jubilee. Extra planes will probably be necessary to handle the inflow of visitors to Chicago, he said.

Arrive in New York

Purchase, N. Y., May 1.—(AP)—The king and queen of Siam returned homeward tonight to Ophir hall, Westchester county, their arrival shielded from the public because of precautions against May day demonstrations.

The royal pair ended a three days' visit to Washington, where they paid their respects to the President and Mrs. Hoover, and to Baltimore, where King Prajadhipok's eyes were examined preliminary to an operation for cataracts.

Rob Mrs. Caspar Whitney Home of $10,000 in Gems

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—The home of Mrs. Caspar Whitney was robbed late Thursday night and jewelry valued at more than $10,000 was taken, the police said today following the arrest of two alleged "second story workers." Two armed robbers got into the tenth floor apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Livingston this afternoon on the pretext that they were business acquaintances of Mr. Livingston and took jewelry valued at $6,000 from Mrs. Livingston and a friend, Mrs. William Ennever, who called while the holdup men were in the apartment.

LAKE SHORE CAR TRACKS ILLEGAL, BUSCH CONTENDS

Corporation Counsel Busch in a letter to the city council yesterday informed the aldermen that in his opinion the tracks of the Chicago Surface lines are illegally occupying land east of Lake Shore drive between Grand and Chicago avenues.

William H. Beckman, attorney for the Lincoln park board, had informed Mr. Busch that the title to the land now used by the surface lines for the Chicago avenue car line east of the drive, terminating near Navy pier, is vested in the city, state, and park boards, and that the use by the company is illegal.

After an investigation Mr. Busch concurred in the opinion of Attorney Beckman and forwarded the information to the council. He asked the council if it wishes him to appear before the Illinois commerce commission to aid in the park board's fight for removal of the tracks.

SEARCH FOR MISSING CHAUFFEUR.

The police yesterday were requested to aid in the search for William McMichael, 33 years old, former chauffeur for Charles Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club. McMichael disappeared from his home in Glen View two weeks ago.

RAIL PRESIDENT OFFERS HELP ON STREET PROJECT

E. H. Lee for Action in Terminal Area.

Edward H. Lee, president of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad, one of the lines entering the Dearborn street station, yesterday indicated his willingness to cooperate with the city on a proposal to push the construction of a new north and south street through the river straightening area.

"It would seem logical to me to start on plans for one through street," he said, "and we will be glad to participate in discussions with the city authorities on such a project."

Action Asked by Cermak.

A proposal immediately to open Franklin street from Harrison to 22d street along the east bank of the straightened river has figured in the discussions growing out of Mayor Cermak's recent demand for action on the south side railway terminal and street opening problem. Both Commissioner of Public Works Sprague and Eugene H. Taylor, manager of the Chicago plan commission, have talked about it favorably.

Mr. Lee limited his remarks to the matter of opening a single street to furnish a traffic outlet from the loop to the south and southwest sides. He did not commit himself on the broader program of a new unified terminal and the opening of all the streets in the terminal area.

Decide on Traffic Needs.

"The first question to be settled is that of traffic needs," the railroad executive said. "I do not believe any of the railroads want to block deliberately the growth of the city where it is physically and financially possible to prevent it. Is more than one street actually needed right now? Where should one street, if needed, be located? How could it be financed without unduly burdening either the city or the railroads?

"These are questions which I think the city's experts should study and which should form the basis of discussions with the railroads."

Ald Oscar F. Nelson [46th], chairman of the city council railway terminals committee, said yesterday that he expects to call the first meeting of his committee week after next and that at that time arrangements probably will be made to invite the representatives of the railroads for a conference on the whole terminal problem.

Will Discuss Plans Soon.

On Monday or Tuesday of next week Ald. Nelson said he would meet with Commissioner Sprague and Edward J. Neonan, engineer for the committee, to discuss a coördinated plan of action on the part of the city officials.

Commissioner Sprague has taken the position that with the river straightening project finished the time is ripe for vigorous efforts to bring the railroads and city together on a movement to get for the public benefits which should result from the improvement. Unless the development of a new terminal and the opening of the south side streets follows, Mr. Sprague believes, the river straightening will have been of no practical utility.

IF WIFE LIES ABOUT LOVING HUSBAND IT'S NO DIVORCE CAUSE

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—The learned justices of the appellate division of the New York Supreme court decided today by a vote of 3 to 2 that a husband cannot have his marriage annualled if he learns after the ceremony that his wife was only fooling when she said she loved him.

The decision also scoffs at love at first sight and incidentally describes the tender passion as a "mental state."

The case was that of Max Feig of the Bronx, who sought to have dissolved his marriage to Regina Rosa Feig, which had resulted in separation three weeks after their wedding on July 3, 1928.

They were married in Rumania, where the wedding was arranged by his father and the bride's father without either of the principals having seen the other which, it seems, is an old Rumanian custom.

After the ceremony, he said, he arranged to bring his wife into the United States, but when she landed on the dock at Brooklyn, he said, he learned that she had just married him for the trip to America, which may be another old Rumanian custom.

Feig brought suit for annulment on grounds of fraud which was granted in the Bronx Supreme court. Mrs. Feig appealed from the decision and her appeal was upheld in today's decision.

DAY'S TRIBUNE

QUEEN HAS FEVER BUT STAYS AT BED OF STRICKEN SON

Given Serum to Ward Off Diphtheria.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, May 1.—(AP)—Two devoted women tonight were risking their lives by remaining at the bedside of little Crown Prince Michael, who is gravely ill with diphtheria.

QUEEN HELENE. (Lese Photo.)

One is his mother, Queen Helene, estranged wife of King Carol. She has steadfastly refused to leave the 9 year old child. The other is an English governess, whom the boy has hardly let out of his sight since the illness began.

Queen Develops Fever.

Two watchers were given anti-toxin injections today to ward off the dread disease. As a result the queen had a slight fever tonight, but she made light of the indisposition.

The condition of the prince had improved tonight, and royal physicians expressed their conviction he would recover. His temperature, which yesterday reached 104 degrees, fell today to 101.4. It is believed the illness is taking a normal course, although the crisis has not yet been passed.

There seemed a possibility the prince's sickness might, to some extent, bring his parents together. Yesterday King Carol saw Helene briefly in an antechamber of the sickroom in the quarters of the Sinaia palace, where Michael was stricken. Doctors have firmly forbidden his repeating the visit because of the danger of infection.

Carol Gets Hourly Reports.

King Carol, however, has been making almost continual inquiries about the boy's condition and telephones to attendants for the latest report almost every hour of the day.

Although physicians have warned the queen of the danger of contagion, she has only shaken her head and remained near her son.

ROB TRUCK OF $12,000 SHOES.

Seven men riding in three automobiles yesterday held up a truck of the Lifschultz Transportation company at Harrison and Jefferson streets and robbed Walter Kolinski, the driver, of a shipment of shoes valued at $12,000.

HEADS ACADEMY

Rear Admiral Thomas G. Hart.

Annapolis, Md., May 1.—(AP)—As guns boomed and 2,000 midshipmen stood at attention, Rear Admiral Thomas G. Hart became superintendent of the Naval academy today. Hart, a native of Michigan, 53 years old, and former commander of the submarine fleet, succeeds Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robison, who retired a month ago. He is one of the youngest officers of his rank in the navy.

SLOT MACHINE RECEIPTS IN N. Y. 20 MILLION YEAR

Owners Pay All Fines if Operators Are Arrested

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—A system of organized slot machine gambling involving receipts estimated at $20,000,000 a year, with the owners of the machines maintaining a staff of lawyers and bondsmen to take care of arrested storekeepers, was revealed in a public hearing of the appellate division inquiry into the lower courts today.

A parade of witnesses put the story together for Referee Samuel Seabury under the questioning of Irving Ben Cooper, first assistant counsel. They were, with three exceptions, the keepers of small candy or stationery stores or lunch counters who had had machines in their places of business, had been arrested, and had had all ensuing expenses paid by the concerns renting the machines.

Machines Put in Stores.

Their stories were the same, with minor variations. They were approached by representatives of one or another of the companies owning machines, with the result that the machines were placed in the stores. The machines were designed so that a player who put a five-cent piece in the slot, pulled the lever, got a packet of mints and, on occasions, a handful of slugs or coins, sometimes as many as twenty.

When the machines were installed the storekeepers were told by the agents, who never went by name but always by number, that in case of "trouble" they were to call an often changed but always furnished telephone number.

Shopkeeper Harry H. McKay told a typical story:

"When the detectives arrested me," he testified, "I called the number. I said, 'They are taking the machine out and me with it.' By the time we got to the station house a bondsman was there, and I was out in five minutes."

Discharged by Magistrate.

Next day McKay went to Harlem court. There he met the agent. When his name was called he stood up, a lawyer he had never seen before appeared for him, and he was discharged by the magistrate. Others of the storekeepers had been held for special sessions and fined $25.

Hugo Rogers, an attorney, testified that in 1928, 1929, and 1930 he was one of about ten lawyers on call for the Automint Vent company.

Aaron Goldenberger, former agent for the Triangle Mint company of Brooklyn, told of his activities in putting the machines in stores, of collecting the receipts, and of telling the storekeepers what to do in case of "trouble." He estimated that there were about 4,000 machines in Manhattan and the Bronx, each averaging $5,000 a year in gross intake.

$2.19 LUNCHES SERVED JURORS; QUIZ BEGUN BY COUNTY BOARD

A bill of $1,225 for lunches served to jurymen in the civil courts yesterday aroused the indignation of the county commissioners. Since the bill listed 552 lunches, the commissioners discovered that each lunch cost the county $2.19. James C. Russell, superintendent of public service, was called in and questioned about the appetites of jurors.

Mr. Russell said that he also had been suspicious about the bill and that an investigation disclosed that boxes of cigars, which were not on the menu, had been slipped into the lunch baskets. It was further revealed that as many as 15 lunches were sent to various courtrooms although there are only 12 men on a jury.

Believing the evidence to be incomplete, the board referred the bill for further investigation to a subcommittee headed by Mrs. Edward J. Fleming, one of the commissioners.

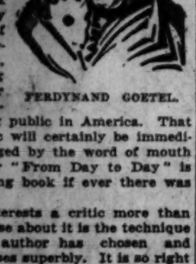
BOOKS

Polish Author Uses Novelty; Succeeds, Too

His Hero Writes Novel and Lives Life.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"FROM DAY TO DAY" [Viking] offers Americans the first translation of the work of Ferdynand Goetel, a Polish novelist. He has won great acclaim in Europe, and comes, in English translation by Winifred Cooper, with the plaudits of John Galsworthy for a foreword. This book is the May choice of the Literary Guild, promising the author a large initial reading public in America. That large public will certainly be immediately enlarged by the word of mouth method, for "From Day to Day" is an intriguing book if ever there was one.



FERDYNAND GOETEL.

What interests a critic more than anything else about it is the technique which the author has chosen and which he uses superbly. It is so right for the material that one wonders why it hasn't been used before. We needn't worry, however, it'll be used again, we say to ourselves cynically. It is so simple a trick—to look at from the outside—that there probably will be a whole flock of imitations of it soon. And they probably will all be bad, because only for material as intimate as Goetel uses, and used only in the way in which he does it, is the method inevitable.

There have been plenty of novels about novelists writing novels. But I do not remember a novel which purports to be a diary kept by a novelist during the period in which he is writing a book, with the creative work the story of his past and the diary the story of his present used as Goetel uses it. "From Day to Day" is the diary of a novelist in Cracow. It's filled not only with the things that happen to him every day, his intimate reactions to them, to people, to his own thoughts, but also to the novel which he is writing. The pages of the novel which he writes every day are interspersed in the pages of the diary [printed in italics so that the reader has no difficulty in knowing immediately which pigeonhole of the hero's mind he is looking into]. The hero's novel is reminiscential of the months that he spent in Turkestan as a prisoner of war a few years before the diary opens.

There he loved as he has never been able to love his wife, fought against his love, and succumbed to it. There he was loved as he can never hope to be loved again, with an almost unearthly trust and unselfishness. While he is writing a novel of those days of struggle, between his conscience and overpowering emotion and the slow seepage through the terrors of war and revolution, his determination to get a divorce and go back for the woman he loved fills his diary. He depicts his lack of spiritual adjustment to his wife, who he knows loves him, but whom he cares for only with fondness.

He is turned from his novel by a tragic affair with the over eager wife of a friend that throws him into a duel, as a consequence of which the friend's wife is a suicide. His own wife's determination to leave him precedes sudden news that the woman he really loves is still alive in Turkestan. He never touches the novel again. The novel and the diary mingle at last. That is a new technique and, for what the author wants to say, brilliant and inevitable.

There is enough of the reaction of the hero to his creative work to give readers an honest—if sketchy—picture of the psychology of a novelist, although the author has not written his book to tell how a novelist feels about his work. That is how it differs from all the other novels about novelists writing novels. The novel in "From Day to Day" is cleverly used as an integrating part of the story, like the flash back in a moving picture, not as an interpretation of the hero's psychology.

It will take a hard heart not to be moved by the tense calm and poise of the hero's fragmentary novel. There is a definite, vibrant life in it.

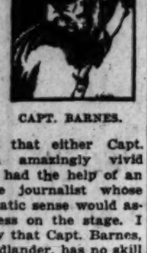
"Crimes of the Year" Is Book About 1930 Period

"Crimes of the Year," by Joseph Gollomb [Liveright], is a survey of the most spectacular crimes of 1930 set down with thrilling interest. The author says in his foreword: "Every modern war forges new weapons and a new technique. Crime, too, is war."

"ROLLING HOME" IS BOOK DICTATED BY BRITISH SEA CAPTAIN

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—It is always interesting to know how books are written, and the other week I was much puzzled to account for the peculiar excellence of a volume of sea reminiscence by Capt. Barnes, just published in London under the title of "Rolling Home." I expressed curiosity in print, because it seemed to me that either Capt. Barnes was an amazingly vivid writer, or he had had the help of an astonishingly able journalist whose command of dramatic sense would assure him of success on the stage. I now learn officially that Capt. Barnes, who is a Newfoundlander, has no skill in writing, but he can talk. So he was sat down in an office chair, provided with a stenographer, and left alone. He simply talked the book. And that is why it seems to the reader as if Capt. Barnes was talking from the printed page.



CAPT. BARNES.

The effect is very fine. And it would not have been so fine if Capt. Barnes had not been a born raconteur. There is nothing stumbling about the book. And it has not been "edited" into a commonplace tale. It is a racy and vivid record; and one reads it as if one were listening to a real yarn spinner.

The book bears being read aloud; and a good reader-aloud would hold a hearer spellbound with several of its rich chapters. Capt. Barnes must have had a wonderful life; for he sailed before the mast nearly seventy years ago, when a boy. His parents wanted him to be given as rough a time as possible, so that he should be disgusted with the sea. But he was born for it, and nothing came amiss.

Ship after ship knew him; and his adventures were many and exciting. He kept on until after the war; and almost his last act of seamanship was to ram a submarine which had almost simultaneously loosed the torpedo which sank Capt. Barnes's ship. There is no boasting in this book; but anything more convincing as a narrative of personal adventure I have yet to read.

Trader Horn has now settled down in England. He has found a small Kentish village, and is resting very comfortably there. The other day I saw him sitting quietly in the refreshment room at Waterloo station, in London. He was alone. But not for long. I was not the only person to recognize that unmistakable figure; and even as I glanced at him another man approached, entered into conversation, and prepared to listen to tales of the wide world.

The moment I had mentioned that J. D. Beresford was living in Hertfordshire I had a letter from him saying that he had moved into Sussex and was no more than thirty-five miles distant. But Hertfordshire is by no means denuded of literary talent, for it is in Hertfordshire that "Mr. Geoffrey West" [whose real name is Mr. G. H. Wells; but who has always used the pen name of Geoffrey West in order to distinguish himself from Mr. H. G. Wells, who is no relation] lives. Mr. West is the author of the book on H. G. Wells, which has lately been published.

David Cecil, He's Only 28, Wins Prize on Biography

"The Stricken Deer," by Lord David Cecil, a life of William Cowper, which was published in this country in April of 1930 by Bobbs-Merrill, and which in May was laureled with the Hawthornden prize, recently has been awarded also the James Tait Black Memorial prize as the best English biography of the year. The author is only 28 years of age. "The Stricken Deer" is his first book, although he has been writing articles on art and literary criticism for English magazines since he was 18. He comes from that English family of Cecils which first blossomed in history in the persons of Lord Burleigh and the earl of Salisbury in the days of Queen Elizabeth.

One Guest; 1,873 Dinners!

The famous hospitality of Bostonians (especially toward prominent Englishmen) never was more graciously displayed than toward old Samuel Cunard, who, on his arrival there in 1840, on the first voyage of the first Cunard liner, Britannia, received 1,873 invitations to dinner, according to Frank C. Bowen in "A Century of Atlantic Travel: 1830-1930" [Little-Brown].

Stirring Tale of Orient.

"China Seas" [Stokes], the last work of the late Crosbie Garstin, author of that interesting sea trilogy, "The Owls' House," "High Noon," and "West Wind," is a stirring tale of oriental land and sea. It's a far east thriller, with typhoons and pirate raids.

Eliot, Remaker of Harvard, Is Depicted Here

Jane Addams Reviews Henry James' Book.

BY JANE ADDAMS.

"Charles W. Eliot," by Henry James. [Two volumes. Riverside Press.]

The long life of Charles W. Eliot takes us back in its very beginnings to the halcyon period of the 1830's.

Henry James thus describes the family milieu:

"The Eliots . . . attending to the business of King's chapel and Harvard college as if they were family affairs, were very much people of their time. They and their large clan of admirable cousins and still larger circle of estimable friends were all floating and advancing on the bosom of the same tide. Almost all the ideas that were being expressed so well by the New England writers and preachers came from people of their kind and class; almost all the useful institutions that embodied the new ideas were being established and built up by them and their relatives and friends or by persons like them."

The young Charles, born in 1834, however, did not run quite true to form after he had entered Harvard college. He, of course, stood well throughout his college days in the classics, as in everything else, but his interest evidently centered more and more upon natural science, which at that moment scarcely was recognized as proper material for a college curriculum. He became a teacher of chemistry, although he began as tutor in mathematics in Harvard college in the autumn of 1854.

In the spring of 1858 he was made assistant professor of mathematics and chemistry, and he taught the latter subject both in the Harvard medical school and in the Lawrence scientific school.

In 1863 he left Harvard and with his young family spent two years in Europe. He returned to become professor of chemistry in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, delighted that science, as taught there, could answer the questions of practical men and guide the labors of his own generation.

He was made president of Harvard in 1869 when he was thirty-five years old, and at last "escaped the bondage of too light a task." On the very day of his inauguration he announced his conviction that young men should be given liberty to choose what they wanted to study, even to choose science instead of the classics, and he was suspected of undermining the intellectual equipment of a gentleman and a scholar.

An old tradition cannot be broken into lightly, as President Eliot found during the first twenty-five years of his presidency. His biographer points out as one evidence of his unpopularity that, although he received a certain number of honorary degrees upon his accession to the presidency, no academic honors came his way between 1870 and 1902, in spite of the fact that he represented the oldest seat of learning upon American soil.

As his advocacy of changes brought him into conflict with the more conservative colleges, so he also ran into opposition because of measures he advocated in connection with the professional schools.

The famous "case system" was inaugurated in the Harvard law school and became one of the revitalizing forces in education. An undenominational divinity school was founded at Harvard.

His opposition was forever including new areas; the requirement of a degree for admission to the medical school hurt the feelings of many an honest practitioner, and his remarks concerning voluntary attendance at chapel could hardly have endeared him to the clergymen of the sterner sects.

But the longest road has a turning, and by 1875 the public began to be with him.

That actually disconcerted him. He said it made him feel uncomfortable, and that he missed the stimulus of opposition. He resigned from Harvard in 1909 at the age of 75, leaving behind him a reorganized university of which America was justly proud.

At the end of his life he said, "Political work lags twenty-five or even fifty years behind the sound thinking of the present day." This is brought out most clearly in his remarkable correspondence with Lord James Bryce, much of which the biographer reproduces for our edification. President Eliot had an abiding interest in coöperative experiments, in methods of election, in labor unions, in the growth and value of public corporations, and was always ready to point the lesson from current events that freedom is the principal advantage of a democratic government.

Mr. James gives a clear and charming account of President Eliot's domestic life. He was a model son and brother, quite naturally taking over the financial responsibility for the family after his father's failure in business, although it came in the very year of his marriage to the charming Ellen Peabody. To her and to his three sons, only one of whom survived him, his devotion was unbounded. Some of the most delightful letters in the book are those written to his young children, and the memoir of his son Charles, whom he so sincerely admired, is perhaps his one contribution to permanent literature. I met him sometimes during his summers on the coast of Maine, surrounded by his charming grandchildren, presenting the very embodiment of successful old age.

Osborn Gives Story of Cope, Science Hunter

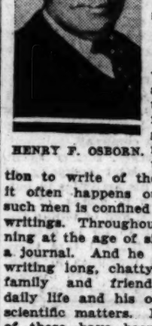
Who Tracked Rare Beasts Through the Eons.

BY W. F. E. GURLEY.

[Associate Curator of the Paleontological Collections of Walker Museum, the University of Chicago.]

"Cope: Master Naturalist," by Henry Fairfield Osborn. [Princeton University Press.]

This fascinating biography, a labor of love, is the result of many years of painstaking effort on the part of Dr. Osborn, friend, coworker, executor, and recognized scientific successor of Edward Drinker Cope [1840-1897], the greatest of all vertebrate paleontologists.



HENRY F. OSBORN.

Unselfishly devoted to research, and zealous in their ambition to further an ideal, great scientific men have neither time nor inclination to write of themselves. Hence it often happens our knowledge of such men is confined to their technical writings. Throughout his life, beginning at the age of six, Dr. Cope kept a journal. And he had the habit of writing long, chatty letters to his family and friends, describing his daily life and his observations upon scientific matters. Fortunately most of these have been preserved and placed at the disposal of Dr. Osborn, who quotes hundreds of interesting extracts well calculated to enable one to visualize Dr. Cope from every conceivable point of view.

After outlining the early history of paleontology, or the science of ancient life; sketching the pioneers of American paleontology (1571-1847), and touching upon the American ancestry of Dr. Cope, the author graphically portrays the life of that great naturalist, an indefatigable worker who critically studied and described hundreds of new species in every branch of vertebrate paleontology, a great portion based on the remains of extinct animals found in the region west of the Mississippi. In conclusion there is a complete bibliography, embracing 1,395 titles, of Dr. Cope's scientific writings.

In his quest for scientific knowledge and materials, Dr. Cope visited the important museums, colleges, and collecting fields of Great Britain, Europe, and North America. He scanned our Atlantic, Pacific, and gulf coasts; explored mountain ranges, arid plains, cañons, and caverns, and delved into the waters and rocks of Canada, Mexico, and every state in the Union.

He was equally at ease in a Mexican "doby," a camp on the Yellowstone, a Philadelphia lunchroom, or at a banquet of savants in Paris. Like Audubon, his life from boyhood was devoted to natural history; both were good draftsmen, pleasing writers, lovers of adventure, refined in their tastes, and adaptable to their surroundings.

He was familiar with the works of Linnaeus, Buffon, Blumenbach, Cuvier, Lamarck, and the founders of modern science; was a student under their immediate successors, as well as an associate of Darwin, Huxley, Lortet, and Agassiz. He was a contemporary of Leidy, Marsh, Newberry, St. John, Williston, and Osborn, the group to whom we are indebted for practically all that is known of American veterbrate paleontology. One of the greatest contributions to geology was Cope's remarkable accuracy in correlating the upper members of the stratified rocks of North America with their counterparts in Europe.

In his zeal for acquiring and disseminating knowledge he converted a spacious old Philadelphia mansion into a crowded storehouse of scientific material gleaned from every continent and indiscriminately intermingled with antique furniture, paintings and objects of art. In this old house he lived, worked and died amidst the greatest and most interesting collection of animal remains ever accumulated by any one man. This collection was acquired by the American Museum of Natural History, New York City, where Dr. Osborn has been curator of vertebrate paleontology since 1891.

This book is invaluable to the scholar engaged in scientific research, as well as the student entering upon a subject so alluring.

RENEW TALK OF FEDERAL FAVORS GRANTED TO FORD

Stewart's European Wage Mission Is Cause.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 1.—[Special.]—A new discussion of alleged favors bestowed on Henry Ford by the federal government has sprung up on the heels of the recent announcement that Commissioner Ethelbert Stewart of the bureau of labor statistics was sailing for europe next week and would attend an international conference on the equalization of wages in the Ford plants throughout the world.

ETHELBERT STEWART. [Davis & Ewing Photo.]

The conference, which will take place at the Geneva headquarters of the international labor office, is to be the final act in an investigation that had its inception in May, 1929, when the Ford Motor company requested the international office for wage and commodity statistics. The company wished to learn what wages it would have to pay in seventeen foreign cities, where it has or intends to build factories, in order to bring its workers' standard of living up to that enjoyed by a $7 a day worker in Detroit.

In learning that the International office could not supply the required information, the Twentieth Century fund, an American foundation, undertook to support and in part finance the inquiry.

U. S. Officials Visit Ford Plants.

For its part, the bureau of labor statistics of the department of labor furnished six experts, who spent a large part of five months in making a survey of Ford workers in Detroit, their standard of living and its cost. Other experts in the twelve foreign countries involved were sent out by the international office to ascertain the prices of the commodities found to be essential in this country.

Commissioner Stewart, who sails on May 6, will consult with the foreign experts and the material gathered will be put in form for a final report.

Criticism has arisen over the part played by the bureau of labor statistics. It is pointed out that American taxes are being used to help finance a study intended primarily to assist foreign workers.

Compete with U. S. Products.

It is pointed out further that these workers are producing manufactures which are then imported into this country, so that the study will assist in the production of articles entering the United States in competition with domestic products and to the disadvantage of American labor.

For example, in 1929 the Irish Free State exported 1,409 tractors valued at $928,643 and $1,903,077 worth of parts to the United States. And in 1930 the number of tractors rose to 1,661, valued at $3,426,834, the parts being worth $1,881,552. This production came entirely, or nearly so, from the Ford factory near Cork, which at the end of 1930 was employing some 6,000 workmen.

In explanation of the department's attitude, Secretary of Labor Doak, who did not enter office until several months after the Detroit study had been completed, declared today that such investigations were in keeping with the policy of the department in studying labor conditions all over the world. The department had experts abroad at all times, he said, gathering data of value to American labor.

Bermuda Assembly Defeats Bill to Let Women Vote

DO-X ONE LAP NEARER AMERICA; LANDS IN AFRICA

LAS PALMAS, Canary Islands, May 1.—(AP)—Germany's biggest seaplane, the Dornier Do-X, was safely anchored in the harbor of Rio de Oro on the west coast of Africa tonight, one stage closer to South America on a trans-Atlantic flight which she began last winter. She tuned up her motors in Gando bay this morning, skittered across the water and took the air, heading into the south.

She had been here for three months following a series of mishaps which necessitated repairs. Before he left Commander Friedrich Christiansen said he hoped to go from Rio de Oro to Bolama, in Portuguese West Africa, and take off from there for South America.

One American was aboard for today's flight. He is Harvey Brewton, representative of the American firm which built the big plane's motors. Communication with Rio de Oro was worse than usual today because of the May day holiday, but the last radio message from the plane itself said everything was going along fine. If the flight continues to Bolama the next hop will be a matter of 950 miles.

MAYOR CERMAK BUYS FIRST TAG IN CHARITY DRIVE

Mayor Cermak was the first to buy a tag for the fourteenth annual tag day of the Chicago Federation of Adult Charities, which will be held on Monday.

When representatives of the organization visited the mayor in his office at the city hall yesterday he praised the public interest which provides the support for the forty charities and institutions for the aged, infirm, and unfortunate. Were it not for these homes, the mayor pointed out, a greater burden would fall upon the county, resulting in increased taxes.

On Monday volunteer workers will sell the tags on the busy street corners throughout the city.

HENRY FORD BUYS MANSION NEAR ENGLISH FACTORY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 1.—Henry Ford has bought an English country mansion, in which it is expected he will live during a considerable part of the year.

The property is known as Doreham house, near Chelmsford, in the county of Essex. It was the first seat of Lord Kenyon, who built it in the early part of the eighteenth century. The fourth Lord Kenyon died in 1927 and the mansion is now occupied by Mr. Pilkington, a London financier. His tenancy expires in September.

It is a magnificent house, set off by a wide sheet of water and bordered by colonades and elm trees. Mr. Ford's new factory is near by.

RECOVER BODIES OF 45 IN BOMB BLAST IN BRAZIL

RIO DE JANERIO, May 1.—(AP)—Search of the ruins of the naval laboratory at Nictheroy revealed today that 45 workmen were killed and 70 injured in the explosion which destroyed the building yesterday. Thirty-eight bodies were identified.

The cause of the blast was not determined, although it is believed to have occurred in the torpedo loading room. It was heard for miles and shattered windows over a wide area.

The hospitals here and in Nictheroy, a fashionable suburb just across the bay, were taxed to capacity with the injured victims. Four hundred workers were in the plant at the time of the explosion.

SEAT 2 WOMEN TENTATIVELY IN KIRKLAND CASE

Profess Liberal Views on Drinking, Petting.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Valparaiso, Ind., May 1.—[Special.]—Two gray haired women with modern ideas on the gin drinking and petting proclivities of the younger generation were temporarily accepted by defense counsel today as jurors who would give Virgil Kirkland, 20 years old, a fair trial on charges of murder and rape of Arlene Draves, his 18 year old sweetheart.

The state had yet to question the women, however, and it remained uncertain whether feminine judgment would be called upon to decide the high school boy's guilt or innocence.

Open Mind, She Says.

In this stronghold of the Anti-Saloon league, it came as a surprise to listeners to hear the women, one a grandmother and the other the mother of a 23 year old unmarried daughter, profess an open mind on the liquor question. Each declared she had no prejudice against persons who drank and regarded the drinking habits of a person his or her personal affair.

Mrs. Mattie Conover, 55 years old, the grandmother questioned, declared she had no feeling against drinking among the younger set. A woman of pleasant, matronly appearance, she asserted in a low, cultivated voice that she felt no repugnance to moral standards among young people which might be termed more liberal than those of her own youth.

On Another Murder Jury.

She was followed in the jury box by Mrs. Martha Cowdrey, 50 years old, who served on a jury five years ago which convicted John O'Reilly of the murder of Thad Thatcher and sentenced him to life imprisonment.

"I have no special feeling against drinking people," she said in answer to questions by defense attorneys. "Of course, I've discussed this case, but I haven't formed an opinion as to Virgil Kirkland's guilt or innocence and I can presume him innocent as trial of the case starts. I would base my verdict solely on the evidence presented."

Eighty-one men and three women have now been in the jury box. Seven men have been tentatively accepted by both sides with the two women yet to be questioned by the state. A fresh panel of seventy-five persons was summoned for Monday morning when the trial will be resumed. Judge Crumpacker announced that no court would be held tomorrow.

Ask Suppression of Book.

At the opening of court today the defense asked that a book bearing the title, "The Inside of the Kirkland Case" be suppressed as pernicious literature. The book carries portions of evidence given at the first trial which were deemed unprintable in the newspapers. Judge Grant Crumpacker took the petition under advisement.

Attorney Ronald Oldham of the defense also asked the court to take notice of a story printed in a Chicago newspaper which declared that Kirkland had offered to plead guilty. The lawyer asserted the account was "false and malicious."

ROBBERS CUT OFF ALARMS AND GET $75,000 JEWELS

Foil Safeguards in N. Y. Jewelry Building.

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—Two thugs armed with pistols forced their way into the office of David Rothschild, a 69 year old dealer in diamonds, on the sixteenth floor of a building at 43 West 48th street, just off 5th avenue today, handcuffed him, and slipped his coat over his head to prevent his making an outcry, disconnected the push buttons connected with a siren for sounding an alarm, and escaped with three packets of uncut stones which the victim values at $75,000.

The building is occupied exclusively by dealers in gems and jewelers and was specially constructed for the trade. It is supposed to be equipped against all forms of robbery, including holdups.

Thugs Break Through Door.

Mr. Rothschild's stenographer had left for lunch a few minutes before the thugs entered. On the way out she closed a door in a partition separating the outer office from the workroom, but she left the door leading to the hall unlocked.

The thugs hurled themselves against the door in the partition and the lock gave way. Mr. Rothschild was seated with his back to the door in a swivel chair examining a number of uncut gems he had just removed from a packet.

Before he could turn around he felt the muzzles of two pistols pressed against his back. He was ordered to keep quiet. The thugs slipped his coat up in such a way that his head and face were covered, pulled his hands behind his back, and snapped handcuffs on his wrists.

Destroy Alarm Buttons.

One of the men took the diamonds Mr. Rothschild had been examining. While one remained standing near the diamond dealer, the other, with a pair of pliers taken from a work bench pulled from their fastenings two push buttons, one on the office, the other in the workroom, which were installed for the purpose of sounding an alarm which would arouse the neighborhood.

On the way out the thugs fixed the lock on the outer door so that it snapped when the door was closed.

Alaskan Governor Signs Bone Dry Law Repealer

The repeal measure, passed by the house by a 10 to 5 vote and by a unanimous vote of the senate, must be approved by the next session of congress to change the status of prohibition in Alaska.

REPRODUCTION

Actual photograph of Regal Reproduction of G. W. Bunting's famous English Featherweight. Imported brown calf, flexible innersole, special treated outer sole, invisible reenforced vamp, hollow leather heel.

The Regal Reproduction costs you $6.60

IF you wanted to find the finest Lightweight shoe in the World, your search would probably end, as ours did, in the London shop of G.W. Bunting, Bootmaker to H.M. the King.

Bunting originally designed his Famous Featherweight for English Customers living in India. It was from these men of the Tropics that Bunting learned the requirements of a real Hot Weather shoe.

They requested shoes from lightweight Calfskin that wouldn't "run over the sole" of a closely trimmed edge. They wanted the Weight taken out where there was no Wear, and they insisted that porous linen Linings be substituted for hot heavy leather.

Bunting experimented for years with weights, and tannages, and leathers, and linings until he perfected a shoe that stood all the tests of the hottest climate in the World.

A piece of English Kip leather is sewed in along either side of the shoe between the OUTSIDE Upper Leather and the INSIDE Linen Lining. These invisible side-stays act like the outside Wing Tip of a heavy Brogue, and preserve the original shape of the Featherweight.

The solid leather heels are hollowed out and filled with cork to remove weight where there is no Wear, and the whole shoe is Linen lined from heel to toe.

We purchased one pair of the Famous English Featherweights for our Factory to cut up and copy, and we bought 51 additional Bunting Featherweights at £6.6 ($30.68) per pair so that we could show you one of Bunting's $30.68 Originals with the $6.60 Regal Reproduction side by side in every Regal store window.

In the Regal Reproduction we are using the same imported Calfskin from Bunting's own Tanner. Top and bottom, inside and outside, we have copied every Lightweight detail of Bunting's Famous Featherweight.

We believe it is an achievement in American Shoe Manufacturing to Reproduce the finest and most expensive Featherweight in the World for $6.60.

CHINA'S NEEDS, AMERICA'S OPPORTUNITY.

A recent issue of Mr. Powell's China Weekly Review contains an article on recent developments in China indicating that the government is turning toward Europe for assistance and hence away from America. Up to this time the tendency has been to seek technical experts and financial aid from the United States. But recent proposals for aid through the agency of the league of nations seem to promise success and if adopted will bring about a reorientation of Chinese policy, in which the United States will be left out. Any substantial aid from the league of nations must of course be given by England and France. Recent evidence of this change is in railroad development, a prime need of China which the United States is well equipped to meet. American advisers are of late less in request and British are reappearing.

This is a phenomenon which our state department cannot afford to ignore. Procrastination means defeat. China's needs are urgent and in fact critical, as THE TRIBUNE repeatedly has pointed out. Recent dispatches report a schism in the Nanking government which seems very dangerous. It may postpone or prevent any measures of aid. But we should be canvassing possibilities and be ready to act advisedly and as soon as action is permissible.

American financial resources are the greatest in the world at this moment and American technical advice is of the first order. It is true the instability of Chinese conditions makes investment in that country more hazardous than at home and they must be considered and treated with caution. But we have poured money into Europe since the war and European conditions are not as secure as might be. Substantial assistance to China would bring about stability if properly directed and safeguarded, and at any rate it offers possibilities we cannot afford to dismiss.

China is an immense market for products we manufacture and China will buy when it has peace and the opportunity to accumulate capital. It needs and is eager to have railroads, highways, and all forms of modern communication. It wishes to modernize its cities and to enjoy all the resources of modern life. It contains a fourth of the human race and their material welfare is essential to that of the rest of the world. One of the most important factors in the world depression is the demoralization of China, India, and Russia, which together represent some 943 million people of the estimated 1,922 millions of the world. Of these China is by far the most important to us because of our situation, our conditions, our relations and the character of its people.

The Chinese, in spite of the conservatism which in recent centuries has retarded their material development, are unsurpassed by any other race for character and intelligence. They are unequaled for industry and thrift. Their mental qualities are first rate. They have a high order of culture and if their system of education and traditionalism has withheld them from the benefits created by modern occidental science and material development, we are convinced they are ready to take advantage of them and will do so to the great benefit of the world.

The dire evils which now seem to engulf them should not be permitted to blind us to the fundamentals of their strength. We ought not to underestimate the dangers and difficulties of this period of transition. On the contrary, we ought to realize that China is in grave danger of being demoralized and deflected from her right line of progress by her internal conditions of strife and devastation, which may make her a prey to bolshevist influence. But if the statesmanship of the west is not purblind it will not fail to come to her support in this crisis, and the contribution of the United States to this service to China and to civilization should be timely and substantial.

We in America are preoccupied just now with our own troubles, but this ought not to cause us to neglect our interest in Chinese restoration and progress and the urgent need for well considered action before it is too late. We are not underestimating the difficulties nor exaggerating possibilities. We are not proposing hasty or purely altruistic experiments. There is a real sentiment of friendliness in America toward the Chinese people, but our policy should be based upon a practical consideration of conditions and upon the principle of mutual benefit. From the point of view of self-interest, an entirely proper point of view if intelligent, there are few if any factors in our present depressed situation which would be more substantially helpful to our own restoration than the stabilising of conditions in China and the opening to us, in fair proportion, of the financial and commercial opportunities which a pacified and progressive China would offer.

THE NATIONAL HOOEY FACTORY.

Any gentleman who takes a notion to run through Lincoln park in his B. V. D.'s or less is almost certain to be locked up. The gentleman is put away not so much for having exhibited the bareness of the body, a sight to which the citizens living near the lake are thoroughly accustomed, as for his exhibition of the barenness of his mind. He may or may not have his exploit recorded in a paragraph of agate on page 16, depending on the exigencies of the makeup of the newspaper.

Now, it is odd that exhibitionists who choose a different and even more conspicuous spot to display their mental vacuity are not locked up and their exploits are respectfully reported in columns of type in half the newspapers of the land. The more conspicuous spot to which reference has been made is Washington, D. C. Any harebrained do-gooder or God-saker, any village statesman, need only find the fare to take him to Washington to have his views given a respectful hearing and circulation throughout the country. Accordingly, most of the eccentrics contrive to make the journey.

The evidence suggests that our national hobby is psychiatry and that thousands of our fellow citizens are collecting cases as Skeezix collects postmarks. To meet the popular demand, the papers publish the data.

Unfortunately the true explanation is less flattering to the profession of journalism. The fact is that when congress is in session it is necessary to allot a considerable space each day to happenings at the capitol. Habits are not easily broken. When congress has adjourned and Washington is as barren of interest as a circus lot after the circus has moved on, the Washington date line is still regarded as something to be taken seriously.

It is a matter for regret that the newspapers of the country have allowed themselves to be victimized in this shameless and thoughtless fashion. Every editorial office should have emblazoned upon its walls the maxim that a fathead is a fathead wherever he may be, and hooey is hooey regardless of where it is found. A trip to Washington works no transformation in either.

A CLOSE-IN LANDING FIELD.

The proposal to establish a landing field along the lake front at Montrose avenue has the support of business men in the uptown region. Needless to say, it has the support also of those interested in the progress of aviation.

There is no room to doubt that the cities which offer most to aviation will also receive the largest benefits from the new means of transportation. If, as is proposed, Chicago provides a landing field of first quality within a quarter of an hour's automobile ride of the center of the city, air travel to and from Chicago will receive an impetus which must redound to the commercial advantage of the city.

Unfortunately the impression has been created that it is proposed to erect numerous buildings on the park land for housing and servicing airplanes. This is not the intention. Owners of airplanes will continue as at present to use the hangars and shops to be found at Chicago airport and other fields in the vicinity of the city. The Montrose avenue field would be used only as a landing field.

SENTIMENTALITY AND JUSTICE.

The leader of a gang of robbers who plundered the home of Arthur Cutten and shut him, his family, and servants in a vault from which they barely escaped alive, is now applying for parole. It is said that he has since led a reputable life and it is believed will continue to do so. Mr. Cutten has been induced by an appeal on behalf of the robber's family to withhold objection to parole, but he describes the robber's offense as "an unnecessary and fiendish piece of cruelty."

That description is entirely accurate and just. We think it should weigh with the parole board against the views of the prisoner's character and the prospects of future conduct urged by the advocates of parole. The issue is not a private one between the robber and his family on the one hand and Mr. Cutten on the other. It is an issue which involves the public safety. The release of men who have shown reckless disregard of human life, a willingness to kill, is not justified either by experience or by a proper regard for the probabilities. More important still is its influence upon the reckless and violent and upon even the general opinion of the law. There is too much ill-founded humanitarianism in our American attitude toward the punishment of criminals and too little regard for justice. The crime and its victim fade out of our consciousness and sentimentality pleads for criminals who have no just claim to leniency. This tendency demoralizes law and justice and is largely responsible for violent crime throughout the United States.

The killing at Michigan and Randolph was done by a hardened offender at large on probation. A large proportion of crimes are committed by paroled habitual criminals. Isn't it time to direct some of our humanitarianism to the protection of good citizens and some of our pity toward the victims of criminals?

DETAILS OF THE RED PLOT.

[The New York Sun.]

With his natural conservatism, Mayor Walker told only a little about the Red plot to unseat him. It is generally known, of course, that the legislature voted the city investigation at the dictation of Stalin. The Appellate division was delayed two weeks in the appointment of Referee Seabury through waiting for the approval of Moscow. Gov. Roosevelt was persuaded to investigate Mr. Crain, not by the City club but by Moe Antinovitch, the bolshevist lobbyist at Albany. Ten thousand Russian troops, with snow on their boots, marched up Third [international] avenue early this morning on their way to secret barracks under Central park, there to await the day.

Once the Red forces have put through the revolution predicted by the mayor the subway will be extended, by way of Bering strait, to the Red capital, with the last station in front of the Kremlin; Stalin has pledged his right hand to the 5-cent fare. The five year plan will include the destruction of the city hall postoffice. Free borsch will be served in every Tammany clubhouse. The program is long, definite and thrilling.

THE CAUSE OF LAME SHOULDER.

THOSE who have lame shoulders should suspect that the trouble is in the supraspinatus tendon and its muscle or bursa. If a person falls and catches on his shoulder or throws his arm up and catches on that, he had better have the condition of this tendon investigated.

The muscle under discussion lies above the spine or bony ridge of the shoulder blade. It ends in a tendon which runs to the large arm bone in the shoulder joint. This tendon rests on a bursa which pads the bone. The muscle and tendon is one of a group that raise the arm up, for instance, in the position of the arms in brushing the hair. Let us amplify, then, and say if a woman or a man has pain or inconvenience in raising the hands to dress the hair, the supraspinatus muscle may be at fault.

This muscle, and particularly its tendon, are readily torn, and its bursa is apt to become inflamed. If a person in falling throws out his arm and tears this tendon the injury should be promptly repaired, otherwise he may have a lame shoulder for the remainder of his life. He may never be able to work again, or, what is more likely, he may need to change his work to something that does not interfere with his lame shoulder. Or he may shop around from doctor to doctor, always complaining, always uncomfortable, but having physicians give him a liniment after telling him they can find nothing much. The importance of supraspinatus injuries lie; not in the immediate effects but in the long drawn out consequences.

A fracture of the arm bone will cause much more immediate trouble, but if the tendons are not torn the after effects are less than those of an injury to the supraspinatus. If, on the other hand, the injury is promptly repaired, there should be no after effects from trauma to this muscle, its tendon, or bursa. If the injury should be overlooked and the persistence of lame shoulder arouses suspicion, surgical care may still be of service say for six weeks after the injury.

Dr. E. A. Codman has been studying injuries to the shoulder for many years. He has seen some of these supraspinatus injuries that have resulted in permanently laming. He has seen disease rather than injury have the same effect. Some cases have drawn compensation for years, dissatisfied themselves and causing dissatisfaction to employers. He has seen cases haunt doctors' offices for years, a nuisance to themselves and doctors, and then he has seen the other picture.

1. Yes, it probably will be.
2. Yes. I assume you get a properly balanced diet.

MARRIAGE NOT INVALID.

Chicago, April 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—About two months after I was married I learned that my wife had married me under an assumed name. Circumstances leading to and following this discovery caused me to leave her. We have been separated three years now, but she will not consent to a divorce. 1. Is this not some sort of conspiracy? 2. Is the marriage invalid under the conditions mentioned?

M. J. H.

1. We cannot say without knowing the reason.
2. The marriage would not be invalid on the facts stated.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

VETERANS' CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, April 27.—[Friend of the People.]—I came to this country Sept. 10, 1913. I got my first papers in 1915. Served in the United States army during the world war. I have an honorable discharge. Please tell me how I can be naturalized.

S. B.

The last act of congress passed March 4, 1929, with reference to honorably discharged soldiers of the world war, expired by limitation on March 4, 1931, and there is now no law on the statute books under which an honorably discharged soldier is given any special preference. The declaration of intention referred to expired by limitation seven years after its date. If the writer desires to become a citizen he may file a declaration of intention and two years thereafter he will be in a position to apply for naturalization under the general law.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.

Chicago, April 13.—[Friend of the People.]—Will you kindly advise when I may take the civil service examination for stenographers by the city? Also the date of the examination for a woman attendant for park or playground work?

H. R.

At this writing no examinations are scheduled for the positions of junior stenographer and playground attendant, but we have placed the writer's name on our mailing list for notification of the next examinations called for these positions. For information relative to positions in the various parks, kindly communicate with the south park commissioners, Lincoln park commissioners, and the West Chicago park commissioners.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. RAA

NOT MR. CAPONE, NO! IT MUST HAVE BEEN TWO OTHER FELLOWS.

A magazine burst out yesterday with a story that the real Alphonse Capone was dead and that a new gangster is impersonating him. At the which Mr. Capone, who was shown the story by a reporter, insisted there must be some mistake. We do not think Mr. Capone ever died, because if he had he would have had a funeral thirty-nine miles long with sixteen million dollars' worth of flowers and the newspapers would have had pictures, beginning on the first page and continuing straight through. A gentleman in Mr. Capone's profession may live unobtrusively, sometimes to an extent that the police can't find him for days, but they all insist on a fine funeral. We therefore hasten to say without fear of successful contradiction that Mr. Capone still lives.

KULAKS—AND THE OTHERS.

(To Eolus.)

The kulaks were quite free; but no
Mercy would they allow their foe.
The sweat on workers' brow congealed
Like frost upon a wintry field,
The red blood oozing from their feet
To crust the snow like crimson sleet;
Their ice-bound hearts in misery,
They were but serfs, now they are free.

They were but serfs, and just like slaves
Cringing they dug each others' graves.
Beneath the dogs, they dared not dine
On food that was withheld for swine.
The czarist law they must obey,
And none could be less free than they.
They were not beggars asking alms—
They were the workers. Calloused palms
Proclaimed them worthy of their hire;
But thwarted, ground into the mire,
They rose and seized in righteous rage
Their land: the meek's just heritage.

So came the Brotherhood of Man!
And then the famous Five Year Plan.
The workers' day was not so long,
The weak were aided by the strong.
(Though proud enough and strong enough,
God knows! Yet made of poorer stuff,
The kulaks were.) And so the mob
Of kulaks set about to rob
Their younger brothers of their fruits.
Brutes? Nay, we cannot call them brutes,
For jungle beasts but strike and slay;
They do not slowly starve their prey.

There are some limits even to war's
Excesses. Soldiers, e'en the czar's,
May win the right to live—not die
Mid promises of by and by
When sometime raging battles cease,
And war must end in heavenly peace.

The trees the kulaks fell lie low
And rigid on the Arctic snow,
Examples from that awful clime,
Of crude and prehistoric time
When man, both cunning and adroit,
Used guile, his neighbor to exploit.
Eolus takes his windy lyre,
And sings in a time-vanquished choir:
He mocks the Brotherhood of Man,
And laws humanitarian,
That he can no more feel and know
Than trees that lie upon the snow.
He says that nature won't permit
Survival of the most unfit.

Will nature alter her fiat
To help kulaks retain their fat?
Rock-written for a million years
Her plan unchangeable appears,
A plan divine, eternal, just,
That crumbles tyrants into dust,
And all the bourgeoisie who lust
To treat their fellow-man as dust;
That keeps the workers' hopes alive,
And orders that the best survive.
Tomorrow and tomorrow still,
Remain for her to work her will.

Yet, meanwhile, must the kulaks dwell
Within the place they made a hell,
Submissive to the Five Year Plan,
And learn the Brotherhood of Man.

NEPTUNE.

MAY! 'TIS SPRING! 'TIS SPRING!

May set in with all its accustomed severity yesterday. People moved, stood on soap boxes and told what they didn't like about their government, flowers bloomed everywhere, police had arguments with marchers, autos dashed madly for the countryside, beautiful maidens were crowned as May queens, and solid citizens took their trousers to the tailors to have 'em pressed.

ADD—THIS IS A FUNNY WORLD. King Alfonso Bourbon, a decent citizen, who stayed home at nights, told the children bedtime stories, put out the milk bottles and the cat at 10 o'clock, wound the clock, and went to bed, is chased by his belligerent people into exile. King Carol of Rumania scorns his wife, plays around with ladies who are not a bit better than they ought to be, whacks his subjects on the snoot whenever he feels like it, and gets away with it. What's the use?

IT WAS MOVING DAY yesterday, and how stocks did move. They moved and moved all over the place. And did they move upward? Oh, don't ask that, Myrtle, as Mr. Kipling's elephant child said, "Loddo by dose, you are hurtig be." If that's what May 1st, moving day, does to stocks, let us hasten to strike May 1st from the calendar. Gosh! gosh! gosh!

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 2, 1915.

PEKING.—China defied Japan by refusing absolutely to comply with some of the mikado's demands in the Japanese ultimatum. Negotiations were broken off abruptly by President Yuan Shi Kai. Should Japan present a stronger ultimatum or occupy further territory in China it is intimated China will appeal to the four powers which have pledged China's independence.

PARIS.—Dunkirk, France's most northerly fortified city and the field base of the British army, is in danger of total destruction. German 17-inch guns, the latest and greatest product of the Krupp works, are being used at intervals to bombard the city from their positions eighteen to twenty miles away. Allied airmen are doing their best to find and demolish these guns with bombs, but so far without success.

BERLIN.—The German general army staff gave out the following statement: "The battle on the eastern bank of the Ypres canal ended unsuccessfully for the enemy, who lost heavily. To the east of the canal and north of Ypres the enemy made several unsuccessful attacks."

BERLIN.—The war office in a statement says: "A battle near Szawie ended in our favor. The Russians, after suffering heavy losses, set fire to Szawie and retreated in the direction of Mitau, capital of the Russian province of Courland."

NEW YORK.—The Cunard liner Lusitania, scheduled to sail for Liverpool this morning, did not cast off for two hours after it was due to sail and when it did it had aboard 200 passengers of the Anchor line steamer Caronia, which had been booked to sail for Glasgow at noon. The delay in sailing was the result of twenty or more telegrams to prominent passengers, signed by names unknown to the recipients, warning them not to trust themselves to the big liner since it was certainly doomed to be torpedoed.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 2, 1901.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Simple ceremonies marked the opening of the Pan-American exposition today. Evidences of incompleteness of the buildings were offered by scaffoldings surrounding domes, minarets and spires. Many of the features of the fair are not nearly completed. President McKinley sent a message of greetings and congratulations.

CHICAGO.—E. G. Cooley was elected superintendent of schools for the year following June 30, 1901. The election was held two months in advance of the customary time to forestall opposition of subordinates and book publishing houses.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Venezuela has apologized for the indignities visited upon Ignacio Baiz, the American consul; has promised to refund the money of which he was unlawfully deprived, and has made an explanation of recent occurrences in Venezuela which is satisfactory to the United States. Assurances have also been given that Baiz, who has been arrested on several occasions, will not be molested again.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—For the first time in its history New Orleans is entertaining a President of the United States. President McKinley and his party arrived just at sundown and were greeted by Gov. Heard, Mayor Capdevielle, Senators McEnery and Foster and the entire Louisiana delegation in congress.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 2, 1881.

CHICAGO.—The community will be startled this morning to learn that Col. James H. Bowen was killed last evening in a runaway accident at South Chicago. Col. Bowen had gone to the residence of T. W. Johnson on business and Mr. Johnson persuaded him to accept the use of his horse and buggy to take him home. At the crossing of the Fort Wayne railroad and Commercial avenue steam from a locomotive frightened the horse, which ran away and upset the vehicle.

WASHINGTON.—A distinguished party of Englishmen arrived here and are stopping at the Riggs house. Among them are the duke of Sutherland, the marquis of Stafford and son of the duke, and Sir Henry Green, Knight Commander of the Star of India and Commander of the Bath.

THE MONTROSE LANDING FIELD.

Chicago, April 29.—In today's TRIBUNE I find an article written by Robert Wood, captioned "Urge Use of New Lake Front Land as Plane Field."

The business men of the Uptown district are to be commended for their efforts to prevail on the commissioners of Lincoln park to convert the new section of made land on the lake front at Montrose avenue into a landing base for land and water airplanes. They are entitled to the maximum cooperation of every citizen in Chicago who believes not only in the progress of aviation, but in progression generally.

It is true that Chicago already has a municipal airport upon which nearly $500,000 is being expended, which should make an airport of which the city may well be proud. But the landing field proposed is in no manner relieving the necessity for the municipal field, but on the other hand, as I view the subject, it is to be auxiliary and used only as a base to transact business—such as taking on and discharging passengers and mail and express cargoes. Then the planes proceed to the municipal airport for housing, mechanical checking, servicing, repairs, etc.

Picture in your mind the impression of a stranger who arrives in Chicago by air travel and is transported from the municipal airport over Cicero avenue, Archer avenue and State street to the loop. Land this same stranger at the foot of Montrose avenue and transport him over the outer drive, through Lincoln park, and into the loop via Michigan avenue. Compare these impressions, to say nothing of the valuable time he has saved, and don't overlook the fact that many thousands of strangers arrive in Chicago by air travel every month.

Chicago cannot take its proper place among the most progressive cities of the world without being air-minded to the maximum degree. It surely cannot be air-minded unless it provides every known facility necessary to the success of air transportation.

B. F. MYERS.

SUN IN THE BABY'S EYES.

Chicago, April 27.—It is a common occurrence to see rows of baby carriages standing so as to face the sun. Covers about ten inches thick prevent the babies from getting the good of the sun except on their cheeks, but the tender precious eyes are forced to endure the glare. I turned one buggy around, when the mother promptly came from a bench afar off, telling me that sun is good for the baby. I said, "Certainly, but you have a hat on and your eyelids to protect your eyes. Your baby's eyes are tearing now with the strain of its wide open eyes having to bear the hot sun's rays into them. Better be careful about this! Turn him on his side away from the sun."

She seemed to get a faint glimpse of what I meant to teach her.

CLARA LUXHEIM, R. N.

REAL ESTATE VALUES.

Chicago, April 29.—If your correspondent, Frank O'Brien, thinks that real estate values have almost doubled within the last eight years, we would be glad to sell him our house. We paid $10,000 for it over six years ago, and have spent about $1,500 in improvements, but we can't even sell it for the same price today. Many property owners have sold at a loss. The high taxes are killing the real estate business and I don't understand why the tax rates are higher when values have really gone down.

JEFFERSON PARK TAXPAYER.

TAX REFORM.

Chicago, April 27.—There is no doubt in my mind that $75,000,000 or more in taxes will be uncollected on May 15. Is it possible that nothing is going to be done to prevent the piling up of penalties to make the now too heavy load of the property owner unbearable? It is possible that the effort to deflate everything, in other words take away many thousands of properties from many thousands of people who have struggled hard to buy property, is to continue? It's a crying shame that our most substantial people all over Cook county are being made bitter and revengeful and mad.

Something must be done and done immediately. If it is too late to flist the 1929 taxes it is not too late to give the many thousands of people a chance to pay their taxes in equal quarterly installments beginning May 15. The 1930 and 1931 taxes must be funded to put Chicago on a cash basis and it must be done now while the legislature is in session.

Between now and May 1, 1931, a lot of necessary reforms can be made to lighten the load on real estate. Neither real estate nor any other form of wealth can stand to be taxed more than 1 per cent of its full valuation and remain solvent. We must have legislation along this line or we will have nothing but turmoil in 1932. How can we have a return of prosperity and ruin so many people?

All those who can pay their taxes will have paid them by May 15. The others that can't must be given a chance. Then again don't forget that most people are now paying about 2 to 4 per cent of the full valuation, which means that this present 1929 tax is two to four years' taxes in one.

V. J. CURRO.

WHEN THE INQUIRY GETS TOO HOT.

Chicago, April 28.—State's Attorney Swanson has been severely criticised for failing to carry out his campaign promise to drive out the criminal racketeers; and when he undertook to do so with the aid of the regular grand jury it was found that the life of the regular grand jury was too short to permit so gigantic a task; and the regular grand jury, after being haled before the court and subjected to ridicule and told to "bring in some real evidence," had to content itself with reporting that there is an alliance between our police and the criminals, and recommend that the investigation be followed up by its successors.

This apparently impossible barrier to a proper investigation of the alliance was overcome by the creation of the present special grand jury, which was charged with the duty of unearthing crime and criminals wherever found and to spare no one.

Now, when Mr. Swanson, with the help of conscientious aids, begins to dig around the roots of the alliance, it is called unfair and a fishing expedition, and it is strongly intimated that any further tampering with the alliance is not desired.

E. J. HAUPLAIN.

THE GRANDCHILD.

Chicago, April 29.—How much longer must we endure to hear about "my wonderful granddad," etc., by Vivian Graham? We were willing to put up with it during the mayoral campaign. When I voted for Cermak I certainly did not realize that in doing so I was pushing an infant toward a nervous breakdown.

NO GOVERNMENT PAY INCREASES, IS HOOVER DICTUM

Part of Program to Hold Down Deficit.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 1.—[Special.]—No raises in pay are being granted government employés except where such increases are required by law, White House officials stated today.

It was learned that the move to hold down salaries for government employés is a part of the general curtailment plan which has been urged upon department heads by the President as a means of holding down the size of the prospective 1931 deficit. The President's first move in this direction came two weeks ago when he advised cabinet officers that he desired that continuous pressure be applied in all departments to hold down expenditures.

Department Surveys Ordered.

Within the last two weeks all department heads have ordered surveys made to determine where economies could be registered both this year and in the 1933 budget estimates to be submitted in September.

A year ago the President urged heads of departments not to fill certain positions as they became vacant as one means of cutting down the size of the government pay roll. This policy is again being followed this year, according to the White House announcement.

The policy of no wage increases will be applicable throughout the country as well as Washington, it was said.

Confers with Labor Officials.

Secretary of Labor Doak was a luncheon guest at the White House today, along with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and the unemployment and labor situation was discussed. Secretary Doak said after the cabinet meeting that he did not believe labor would be upset by the government wage policy.

"After all," he said, "no one has received a wage reduction from the government, and also bear in mind that no one has been laid off, although in some instances a slackening of work might have justified such a course."

It was pointed out that with the accelerated public works program inaugurated shortly after the business depression began the government had been instrumental in providing employment to hundreds not previously on its pay rolls, and this program, it was said, which is really just beginning to have its effect on the unemployment situation, will be continued as far as practicable.

Rules Today on Dismissal of Plea Against Voliva

A motion to dismiss involuntary bankruptcy proceedings against Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion, was continued until today by Federal Judge Woodward yesterday after Attorneys Eli Felsenthal and Archie Schimberg had argued that Voliva's institution is worth $8,000,000. Voliva is ready to pay immediately the claims of the petitioning creditors, totaling some $3,000, the attorneys stated. Furthermore, they charged, the petition was filed by disgruntled Zionists.

Relatives Hear No Word of Missing College Youth

Chicago relatives of Richard C. Baldwin, a junior at Dartmouth college who disappeared from the college last Saturday, said yesterday that they had received no word from him nor any news of his whereabouts. Vincent Richards, a brother and a broker whose offices are at 134 North La Salle street, stated that the youth had recently recovered from a long illness of influenza and that he probably had left college because this illness left him far behind in his studies.

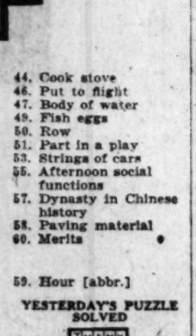
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



HUNT "TREASURE" BURIED IN LONELY MICHIGAN GRAVE

Monroe, Mich., May 1.—[Special.]—Strange stories of treasure buried in a graveyard, mysterious midnight visits to the lonely cemetery in a secluded valley in Monroe county, suspicions, accusations, and now an official decision to reopen an eight year old grave—all these things have so aroused the people that hundreds of men, women and children will watch the exhumation Tuesday morning.

Frank Chamberlin, who died in 1923 and was buried in the Port Creek cemetery, is the cause of the disturbance. It recently was discovered by his widow, who has remarried, that the grave had been tampered with. It is reported that a relative, who served a jail term for robbery, buried loot in this and other graves in the Port Creek cemetery.

The tales of buried treasure, visits of officers and the recent comings and goings of strange cars have excited the neighborhod, and particularly a schoolroom full of children, who have seen the disturbed grave.

The sheriffs of Monroe and Wayne counties, the coroner of Wayne county, the widow and newspapermen will attend the exhumation.

The Port Creek cemetery is a lonely spot on the boundary line between Monroe and Wayne counties, but is only two miles from the Telegraph road, the busiest highway in Michigan.

FIERCE BATTLE RAGES FOR NORTH HONDURAN CITY

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, May 1.—(AP)—Fierce fighting was reported today to have taken place in the north between rebel forces and government troops.

The rebels started an attack this morning on Santa Rosa de Copan, leading northwestern city, in the center of the tobacco zone, which is famous for its Mayan ruins. Two hours later, at noon, all telegraphic communications with the city had been interrupted. News of the fighting was received from other towns in the vicinity.

Military cirples here feared it was impossible to prevent the rebels from taking Santa Rosa, since the garrison there was small compared with the attacking forces. The government sent a large body of troops from San Pedro to Santa Rosa, hoping they would arrive before the city fell into the hands of the rebels.

THE CLICK OF THE GATE

SYNOPSIS.

Iris de Bertincourt lives in a remote section of Paris with her fifteen year old daughter Clare. She and Maj. Alan Charnwood are desperately in love, but there are barriers to their immediate marriage. They are spending the last evening they will have together during a several months, as Maj. Charnwood plans to leave next day for Africa. Clare is acting in a school play and is to be brought home by friends.

Iris has been separated for years from her husband, Marcel de Bertincourt, a man of engaging charm but utterly lacking in moral sense. Iris and he are cousins and the sole heirs of their Aunt Victoire, the Comtesse de Castelmauron. Iris plans to divorce her husband and marry Alan when he returns, but she is keeping her plans secret, as she is trying to avoid the interference of her tyrannical aunt, who has until recently ruled her life.

She receives a message telling her her aunt is on her way to see her. Alan leaves. The comtesse tells Iris that her husband's character has wholly changed and that he is desirous of resuming his duties as a husband and father. She asks Iris to think it over and give her answer at the end of the week. Just after the comtesse leaves, Iris sees a motor stop in front of the house and hears Clare's friends bidding her good night. When she opens the door for Clare she has disappeared.

Maj. Charnwood is just ready to leave his hotel when Iris reaches him. He hurries to her home. He suggests calling the friends who drove Clare home. They tell Iris they let Clare at her door. Alan accompanies Iris to notify the police, then they wait all night, but day breaks and Clare is still away. An inspector assigned to the case calls. He finds a photograph of a handsome Latin youth and a faded flower in Clare's desk. Iris tells her aunt and Alan leaves to call on Helen Roderick, the American woman in whose office Iris has been employed.

DISCONCERTING NEWS.

Helen Roderick was a likable, positive woman, full of common sense and vitality, one with whom it would be a relief to share his burden of ill news. A Californian, somewhere between 45 and 50, Miss Roderick was vigorous, alert, and dressed with immaculate, almost masculine severity. Her tailoring was perfection, her white crêpe de chine blouse finished under her chin with a black satin stock, her black Astrakhan cap, rather like a Cossack's cap, pulled down smartly over her brows, concealing every shred of hair. Large prominent gray eyes, they made Charnwood think of a friendly bulldog's, fixed on him frankly curious, while her wide magenta lips parted in a gum-less smile.

"Iris sent you here, of course," she said with a glance, friendly but direct. "What's up? Nothing wrong, I hope?" and she motioned him towards a big chair and pushed a silver cigaret box in his direction.

Charnwood declined the proffered hospitality with a shake of the head. "Something rather serious, I'm afraid. Iris may not be able to turn up at the office today. I've come to explain." And in a few words he told her of last night's occurrence.

Miss Roderick's jaw dropped. Her full eyes showed first incredulity, then horrified dismay, while one hand strayed to her open mouth.

"Clare——" she exclaimed under her breath. "Good God, you can't mean it! Why—why, it's impossible! She can't really have disappeared. It's too monstrous . . . How . . ." She stopped, helpless in her search for adequate words. "Here, I can't take this in at all. When did it happen?"

"Im thirty last night. We don't know how or why. She's simply vanished."

She eyed him all but speechless. At last she drew a quivering breath. "But poor Iris—poor little thing!" she muttered. It's utterly ghastly.

"Marcel? You don't mean De Bertincourt?"

She must be frantic. You say she was alone at the time?" she demanded busily.

He hesitated. "As a matter of fact I had left her only half an hour before, to catch my train. It was pure luck she caught me."

Her gaze still fixed on him, she subsided onto the nearest sofa, hands heavy upon her broad knees.

"I thought you had already gone," she murmured half to herself. "Iris never told me . . . but that doesn't matter. Go on, let's hear the rest."

He told her everything. She listened attentively, nodding with quick approval when he mentioned the visit to the commissariat.

"That's all. We sat up the entire night hoping against hope, but nothing happened. Her aunt is probably with her now."

"Yes, yes, of course. Not that the old woman will give her much comfort. She'll try to make out it was poor Iris's fault."

She sat wrapped in a brown study as though already her active brain were embracing every aspect of the affair. Presently she roused herself energetically.

"For heaven's sake tell her not to bother about the office," she said with earnestness. "She's too conscientious, you know." She paused, leveling a piercing scrutiny at his troubled face. "Look here, Major, what is your honest opinion of this? You needn't keep anything back."

"My opinion!" he echoed, surprised. "I haven't any. In fact," he added painfully, "I hardly dare think too much."

She made a gesture of protest.

"No, no, don't say that!" she cried. "It's bad enough, goodness knows, but it may not turn out—the sort of thing you mean. Personally, I shouldn't be the tiniest bit astonished if Iris heard from Clare some time today."

"Why do you say that?"

"Well, you won't like what I'm going to say. But hasn't it struck you the girl may have run off? Staged an elopement, I mean?"

"With a man?" he frowned.

"Certainly. She was rather carefully looked after. A girl like that is just the one to break out of the traces. Perhaps this was her one opportunity and she took it, met him round the corner—but there, I've shocked you."

Despite the fact that Charnwood had already considered this possibility, he was it because of it, he found himself making violent objections.

"Nonsense, a child of her age——"

"Clare isn't such a child as you think. Have you seen her?"

"Once. She seemed to me very immature—a nice, overgrown kid."

"Overgrown—you've said it," she nodded decidedly. "Iris doesn't realize it, but you can't make her see. I don't mean I've noticed any alarming signs of precocity, but, well, girls of fifteen get notions in their heads. I've been along that road myself."

He declares she knows no men."

Helen Roderick threw him a scornful glance.

Charnwood's thoughts gravitated towards the shiny photograph hidden under the blotter. With slight diffidence he related the incident and saw his hostess's eyes light eagerly.

"There you are!" she exclaimed in triumph. "What did I tell you? If you can't convince me she's all transparent candor, not after that! Do you want to know what I believe? Find that young Frenchman—for of course he is a Frenchman—and you'll find Clare. But I daresay the police are already on his track. They can trace him through the photographer."

Charnwood shook his head doubtfully.

"Somehow I can't think she could be so callous. To go away leaving absolutely no message, knowing how her mother would suffer——"

"Callous? It's damnably callous," she interrupted. "But little do you know what a girl will do if she's infatuated. It's a state of mind which blinds her to every consideration of decent feeling. Why, a girl I knew in Santa Barbara went off for eight days with a former chauffeur, letting her people believe she was staying at a summer camp." She pondered the case a moment more, than, waking up, cast a sympathetic look at Charnwood, who was preparing to take his leave. "Here, what a fool I am! Sit down, I'll get up a drink. You must feel a wreck after all you've gone through."

Before he could object she had crossed to a cellarette concealed behind a lacquered screen and in two seconds had placed at his elbow a whisky bottle and siphon, together with an old engraved goblet.

"Mix it yourself, and make it a strong one," she counseled.

Gratefully he poured himself a fairly stiff peg. It was true he felt badly shaken, though it was chiefly from the constant vision of Iris's stark horror. Helen guessed his thoughts.

"You're upset about Iris," she remarked soberly. "No wonder. It's the most frightful calamity that could have befallen her . . . Marcel, too," she added, looking past him at the row of white Chinese porcelains on the mantel. "What a fearful shock for him. I wonder if he knows yet?"

"Marcel? You don't mean De Bertincourt?" he demanded.

"Of course. Who else? He's Clare's father, isn't he?"

"But—let me get this straight. Why did you speak of him like that—as if you knew him?"

This 'Iron Man' Seems Cast to Gladden Girls

But This Is Valorous Prize Fight Talkie.

"IRON MAN."

Tell us, tell us, Referee,
If such things can really be!
For examp'—do fighting males
Wear their bathrobes on the scales?

Produced by Universal.
Directed by Tod Browning.
Presented at the State-Lake theater.
THE CAST.

Young Mason	Lew Ayres
Regan	Robert Armstrong
Rose	Jean Harlow
Lewis	John Miljan
McNeil	Mike Donlin
Rattler O'Keefe	Marrie Cohan
The Show Girl	Mary Doran
Gladys Devere	Mildred Van Dorn
Riley	Ned Sparks
Mandell	Sam Blum
Trainer	Sammy Gervon

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

Flappers will fall for this fistic film—but I fear me it's not strong enough meat for real ring addicts. The girls are going to think Lew Ayres just too sweet for anything—and so, I'm afraid, will the men.

Mr. Ayres is a splendid, easy actor in his place—which is not that of a light heavyweight fighter.

You have a feeling all through this piece that the cast got pi-ed and that Robert Armstrong SHOULD have been the "iron man." He looks like Sharkey, acts the twelve minute egg convincingly, and has, you sense, a swat that could send anybody bye bye. He even says "O, yeah" as "O yeah" ought to be said. When Lew Ayres voices the words—and he does plenty often . . . O, NO . . .!

"Iron Man" is an adaptation of W. R. Burnett's novel, which I have heard declared to be a true to life narrative of the ring. If so, it must have experienced some changes, for the picture doesn't ring true. I don't know much about the fight game, but DO pugs wear their bathrobes when weighing just before a scrap? And DO their managers have tables set up in the gymnasium so's they can play solitaire? (The managers, I mean.) I don't know. Just asking.

The hero of this piece is a fighting kid who always wins his battles as long as he does what Manager Regan advises. Young Mason has a wife whom he adores, but who Regan knows to be only a "rag, a bone, and a hank of hair." She walks out on Mason when he's on his uppers. When he becomes champ—she eases coolly back into his bed and board—and raises what Butler said over the radio with his career.

Mason isn't a champion when the movie ends—but you know he'll "come back" some day, for wife's out of the picture for good and Regan's back on the job.

Lew Ayres has a delightful screen personality and great talent. Condolences to this slim, sensitive faced boy for his current hopeless miscasting.

"TARNISHED LADY."

Produced by Paramount.
Directed by George Cukor.
Presented at the Chicago theater.
THE CAST.

Nancy Courtney	Tallulah Bankhead
Norman Cravath	Clive Brooks
Germaine Prentiss	Phoebe Foster
DeWitt Taylor	Alexander Kirkland
Ben Sterner	Osgood Perkins
Mrs. Courtney	Elizabeth Patterson

At last my curiosity has been appeased. I've seen Tallulah Bankhead. Ever since I first heard the name and saw it in print I've had a yen to lay eyes on its owner. The lady justifies great expectations.

Miss Bankhead is so much like Nancy Carroll that she might just as well BE Nancy Carroll. Strangely enough, Nancy is the name of the character she portrays in "Tarnished Lady." (Silly title.) She has a charming voice, deep and throaty, poise and a glamorous stage presence. I can quite see how her congressman daddy is mighty proud of the daughter named for the old home town.

As for the picture—that's a different matter. "Tarnished Lady" is poor pickings as a society drama. The story is trite and prolix; dialogue's the same; direction is ordinary and acting with the exception of work done by the star, Elizabeth Patterson and Osgood Perkins, pretty bad. Clive Brooks paces through his part like a sleep walker, employing the most ridiculously exaggerated accent. And WHEREVER did anybody get the idea that Alexander Kirkland—who plays the man Nancy prefers at the start of the picture—could act! A cod would have done better.

See you tomorrow!

TELLS MORE ABOUT HEREDITY CONTROL BY EXTRA SMALL GENES

Washington, D. C., May 1.—(AP)—The measurement of genes, extremely tiny factor believed to control heredity, was described today before the American Physical society.

Dr. Oswald Blackwood of the University of Pittsburgh roughly estimated that a gene of the fruit fly is about 600 ten millionths of a millimeter in diameter. His measurements, done indirectly with an X-ray "foot rule," caused him to doubt, he said, that cosmic rays from outer space caused sudden evolutionary changes as some scientists believe.

Genes are believed to carry inherited charactertistics like tallness or color of hair from one generation to another. They are contained within extremely small, sausage shaped objects called chromosomes, inside individual cells.

Plans for scientific work on Sir Hubert Wilkins' submarine trip under the ice of the Arctic sea this summer were described by Dr. John A. Fleming before the American Geophysical union.

He said the ice in the arctic is not more than five or six yards thick, and Wilkins' submarine, Nautilus, is equipped to bore air holes upward through much greater thicknesses.

Scientists from the submarine plan to climb out on top of the ice through holes bored with a large hollow drill and take observations of weather and magnetic disturbances. They also will measure the depth of the polar sea, the depth to which light penetrates, and take samples of sea life, sea water, and bottom material.

Blind for 22 Years, He Sees Helen Keller

Taps Message to Famous Woman Born Sightless.

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—They met today, Earl Musselman, who was blind twenty-two years, and Helen Keller, who has been blind all her life.

"Have you been driving in the city," asked Miss Keller when the youth was presented to her at her home in Forest Hills, Queens.

"O, yes," said the youth. He obtained vision when a Philadelphia surgeon cut a false pupil in his left eye two months ago.

"Do you like country driving better than city driving?" asked Miss Keller.

"O, yes," said Earl. "It's not so confusing in the country, and I can see better."

"Do you want to learn to drive an automobile?"

"Yes, I do."

"That," Miss Keller said, "is something I have always wanted to do."

Everything that the youth said had to be tapped in a code in the palm of Miss Keller's hand. For she is not only blind, but deaf. Her secretary, Miss Polly Thompson, did the interpreting.

The boy was taken to visit Miss Keller by his uncle, D. W. Laubach of Philadelphia, who accompanied him here from his home in Allentown, Pa.

After talking for a while in the living room of her home, Miss Keller said, "Let's go out in the garden. I have some flowers for you to see."

"O, yes," said Earl, peering at the beds, "they are tulips."

Helga, a Great Dane, came bounding across the yard.

"O, it's a dog," exclaimed Earl, and immediately made friends. "He's the biggest dog I ever saw."

"Did colors look different than you had imagined?" asked Miss Keller.

"Yes," said Earl. "They were so much brighter." And he tried to explain to the blind woman how the colors of a flower would look if she could see them.

That delighted Miss Keller and she said, "You are just coming into the springtime. How happy you must be with another pair of eyes. Don't forget your inner eye—the eye of the mind. The only lasting happiness we can have is to make this old world a more pleasant place in which to live."

Then the youth had to hurry back to Manhattan to see by television. The New York Telephone company had arranged to demonstrate television for him in the new television room at 195 Broadway. He said the day all told was one of the biggest in his life.

Mrs. Hoover Takes Colorado Boy Hero to Washington Zoo

Washington, D. C., May 1.—(AP)—Strange animals from the far corners of the world entertained Bryan Untiedt today as the Colorado school bus hero was shown through the National Zoological gardens.

Mrs. Hoover, who escorted him, was able to give more time and attention to Bryan today than at any time during the three days he has visited with President and Mrs. Hoover in the White House.

In a big open touring car she drove the boy around the city, stopping to see both the National museum and zoo.

Bryan visited the museum a second time because he was unable to see what he wanted during a hurried trip through the big building yesterday with Mrs. Stark McMullin, a friend of the Hoovers, who has been Bryan's guide on most of his sightseeing trips around the city.

Bryan also was introduced to the game of ping pong by Mrs. McMullin and later went with Peggy Ann, aged 6, and Herbert III., aged 4, to feed the dogs, a daily duty which the Hoover grandchildren have enjoyed since coming here early last winter to stay at the White House. With Peggy Ann he later escorted the President to the executive offices.

Invited to spend a day and night with Mr. and Mrs. Hoover, the boy's stay has been prolonged now for three days, and it was indicated at the White House he may be here over the week-end.

President Hoover said he wished Bryan to see all the sights he should see before departing on his four day trip to his home in Towner, Colo.

Poppy Day May 22 Will Aid Veterans in Hospitals

When Poppy day comes around again on May 22 there will be plenty of tiny red poppies to sell on the streets in behalf of war veterans. Disabled veterans in the hospitals are finishing up a job that has taken them months—fashioning the red paper flowers. A million and a half poppies were made in Illinois hospitals this year by veterans who so earned their spending money. Veterans' organizations, American Legion, United Spanish-American War Veterans, United States Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the G. A. R. will have charge of the poppy sales.

Wild Flowers Tell Chicagoans Spring Is Here

Tint County Forests and the Indiana Dunes.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

While the arrival of spring in Chicago is signified in many flats by the purchase of a new rubber geranium plant or a new coat of green paint on the artificial shrubs in the window boxes, less than 10 miles from the loop wild flowers are blooming.

Cook county's forest preserves are offering an abundance of modest violets, Illinois' state flower, as well as more showy symbols of spring such as the bright yellow marsh marigolds. Along the lake shore near Waukegan, among the Indiana sand dunes and, to a lesser degree, on the side of the roads on the prairie west of the city, flowers may be found, too.

Although the display of blooms will be more riotous about May 20, when the flaming Indian paintbrush, the fragile columbine, wild orchids, and others will be found in the Chicago district, the earliest spring flowers already have come and gone, such as the hepatica. The spring beauty, whose small pink flowers grow close to the earth, has almost made its departure.

Dr. Paul C. Standley, associate curator of the herbarium of the Field museum, yesterday described the wild flowers he had found on visits to the dunes and the forest preserves within the last week.

Most hardy and persistent of all wild flowers, the violet is most profuse in the woods now, he said. The pansy violet, that large flower of deep purple and lighter lavender, is commonest in the dunes. The small bright yellow violet and the white dog-tooth or adder tongue violet are also familiar in this region.

The jack in the pulpit, less romantically called the Indian turnip, whose roots small boys delight in proffering to persons innocent of its dire effect on tongue and mouth, now is thrusting up its green and brown flower. Actually, the outer part of this flower, which is like a calla lily in shape, is not a flower but a leaf, the flowers clustering on the stalk which is sheltered by the leaf. Jack is the stalk, the leaf his pulpit.

The deep red, pink and white of the trillium or the white of the May apple is to be seen now wherever there are woods. Less noticeable, the wild ginger creeps over the group, its brown flowers opening like the outgrowth of the earth itself, its roots giving out an odor of ginger.

The first spring flower in Massachusetts, the trailing arbutus, is more slow here, and quite rare. In the state park at Tremont it may be found now, however. The gay little pinkish white flower, Dutchman's breeches, whose name is so unlike that of its romantic kinsman, bleeding heart, and whose flower is so similar, is quite common now.

Bloodroot, one of the earliest flowers, whose white flowers contrast with the bloodlike juice of the stem when broken, as well as toothwort and bitter crest, are in bloom, Dr. Standley said, and the wild sweet William, is beginning to bloom.

The June berry, which isn't a June berry at all, but a May blossom, is at its prettiest. It is a small tree, called the shad bush in the east, where its blooming signifies that the shad are ready to come up the rivers. The wild plum tree, rare in the Chicago district, is now spreading its airy whiteness and magic scent in the heart of the woods, but it is difficult to find here.

The apricot, the loveliest of Illinois' wild fruit trees and the most common on this landscape, will bloom in two weeks and will be abundant in Palos Park, Dr. Standley said. Wild honeysuckle, whose only variety in this part of the country is the small red honeysuckle, is in bloom, but is not frequently seen.

BOWED LEGS DUE TO THYROID TROUBLE, SO DOCTOR SUSPECTS

Davenport, Ia., May 1.—(AP)—If your child has bowed legs, it may not be that you taught him to walk too young.

The thyroid, a small gland in the neck, may be at fault, Dr. M. F. Guyer of the University of Wisconsin told the Iowa Academy of Science today.

The secretion of the thyroid, known as thyroxin, which is about 60 per cent iodine, governs the rate of oxidation in the body. If too small an amount of thyroxin is secreted, it slows up the body activities.

Cooper's Work, Calm, Careful, on Show Today

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

An exhibition of paintings by Colin Campbell Cooper, N. A., has just opened in the O'Brien galleries and there also is on view there a group of small bronze sculpture by various contemporary German artists which is of unusual interest. The paintings are more or less soothing in manner. They are studied, careful, academic work with more than a little of the feel of tapestry about them. They are not the sort of pictures about which blares the glamour of romance. They are picturesque paintings; each, you feel, is rooted in serious thought. Mr. Cooper flung none of them off in any modernist tempo of two, three, six, and call it a day.

If to qualify for consideration, as is said to be the case in Paris, an artist must conclude a canvas within a time limit of three hours, then one fears Mr. Cooper in Paris would be among those not present in a contemporary show. Yet today, in Chicago, Mr. Cooper is very much present and in an exceedingly pleasant way. There are many of us who still prefer our exhibits seasoned with craftsmanship and warm with beauty, and for those of us this is a welcome show. Quiet, mellow, strongly sure in background, demurely glowing in color, rich in the atmosphere of many different countries, Colin Campbell Cooper offers an unusual exhibition.

Among those paintings which stand out are "Himalaya Mountains, India," "A Gateway in Brittany," "The Street, Gruyeres, Switzerland," "Rouen, France," "Entrance to the Maharaja's Palace, Jaipur," "The Piazzetta, Venice," "A Street in Bombay, India," "Pennsylvania Railroad Terminal, Philadelphia," "Creeping Shadows, Santa Barbara Mountains," and the exquisite still life of flowers in "Venetian Vase."

The animal bronzes by contemporary Munich sculptors are most enthralling. Wilhelm Krieger offers several portraits of birds, his "European Buzzard" and "Whippet," by the way, were purchased in Indianapolis by the John Herrin institute. Theodore Kaerner, who is best known for his porcelain animals, is represented by a striking "Lioness and Prey." Fritz Behn has among other subjects a brilliant study of an elephant and a buffalo. Willy Zuegel offers a dignified penguin, an adorable kid, and a chubby lion cub. Frau von Hentz shows an attractive bulldog pup.

The sculpture will be shown throughout May and the paintings for another two or three weeks. The exhibit is worth seeing.

Compact Powder Still Best Seller Among the Rouges

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Rouges sold in 1929 exceeded four million pounds. That's a lot of bloom for Miss and Mrs. America's cheeks when you think of it. Woman's consumption of rouges rivals her face powders and creams and other cosmetics.

Among the different types of rouge in use today are the compact or powdered kind; liquid and grease rouges; cream rouges, which include waterproof varieties, and lipsticks.

The compact rouge is still the best seller in spite of the cosmetic education given consumers, which, though, has resulted in a great increase in the amounts of grease and cream rouges used. I learn these facts from Winifred Mulcahey, who presents them in an article in a current trade paper. Miss Mulcahey explains the compact's popularity as due to its great convenience at any and all times of day.

One learns how to detect an unsatisfactory compact rouge. "Compact rouge with too much binder [acacia or gum arabic which acts as glue to hold the tiny particles of powdered rouge together] in it presents a shiny surface at certain spots on the cake of rouge. And no matter how hard a puff is rubbed over this shiny, brick-like surface, little coloring comes off."

Cream rouges, Miss Mulcahey reports, are coming into much more general use now because women realize that they need be applied only once and the color will remain throughout the day.

"In addition," Miss Mulcahey reports, "the action of the cream rouge is said to be not so harmful as that of the dry or compact form; it has an emollient rather than a drying effect, and does not clog the pores to such a great extent."

There is a "best method" for applying cream rouges. It is to apply a circle of it in the middle of the area to be tinted and then to rub it down gently with the fingertips, blending and smoothing it outward.

Speaking of greaseless cream rouge, our authority says it can now be got in waterproof rouge. It is made in lipstick form, as well as in paste form, for the cheeks, and is considered ideal for the type of makeup in vogue today—that is, the pink and white peach bloom effect that has no note of harshness or vividness. For use during the swimming and sports season it has great advantages.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

L. R.: FOR SKIN THAT IS DRY massage vanishing cream into it before applying rouge. For an oily skin an application of an astringent is recommended before rouge and powder are put on.

Mr. McLallen went to prep school at the Hill School for Boys and was graduated from Princeton in 1929. Miss Watson is the daughter of Hathaway Watson. Miss "Ghita," as she is more familiarly known, was one of the last season's debutantes, having made her bow at a tea last fall and at one of the earliest of the holiday debut balls. Mr. McLallen has made his residence in Chicago for the last several years, and now lives at the Harvard-Yale-Princeton club. No plans are announced for the wedding.

Jigsaw puzzling continues to enjoy a great vogue along the north shore. Experts at this exacting pastime rent puzzles instead of buying them, and one Winnetka shop has a jigsaw puzzle club [It's run on the same basis as a rental library] numbering about 200 members. "The Hunt Holds Up the Crowd," a colorful puzzle having about 800 pieces; "Perry's Victory on Lake Erie," "Passing Ships," "Henry VIII. Boarding the Great Harry" are some of the favorites among the selection.

Enthusiasts for this mode of occupying odd moments include Mrs. Harve Badgerow, Mrs. Herbert Pope, Mrs. Hill Blackett, the Laird Bells, Mrs. Homer Wood Chandler, her daughter, Mrs. M. R. Glaser of Glencoe; Mrs. Henry C. Bartholomay and her mother, Mrs. Frank P. Graves; Mrs. Harold Wilder, Mrs. Hallett Thorne, Miss S. Louderback of Lake Forest, Mrs. Russell Stern, Mrs. Thomas Hoyne, and Mrs. C. H. Walcott. In some households the entire families cooperate on fitting together the pieces, and at one recent bridge party the guests who didn't play cards made up a table to "do" a puzzle.

Word "Freedom" Proves Bugaboo to Many People

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Some weeks ago a letter appeared in this column in which a mother with five children—five is a lot, too—decided to use her only piece of ground for the children instead of using it as a garden. Incidentally, there was no reason to think, from her letter, that this made an eyesore of the piece of land.

A letter came in reply—I knew it would—and because other people may have mentally written the same letter, I feel it important that I quote from it and answer it here.

"My dear Mrs. Bevans: Your correspondent with the five children whose methods were set forth in the paper this morning has unconsciously furnished critics of the younger generation with an explanation [the critics usually don't need any assistance in that direction!] of some of the lawlessness we see around us, and which sometimes leads to such crimes as that of the Loeb-Leopold boys and young Virgil Kirkland.

"Children whose destructive instincts are encouraged by being permitted to wreck flower gardens and so misuse the yard that the parents will not even take the trouble to plant grass, are apt to grow up with no respect for property, and with strong anti-social instincts."

Freedom does not mean lawlessness. Freedom does not mean chaos. Liberty does not mean license. A directed outlet for energy doesn't mean destructiveness. A mother who has a brood of five and lives in a crowded part of town, who prefers to have the five use the yard for play rather than to keep a beautiful garden and force the children to play indoors or in the street, is not bringing up children who are destined for the tragic fate of the Loeb and Leopold boys [who were proved by psychiatrists to be abnormal], or of Virgil Kirkland. On the contrary, children of such an intelligent mother are apt to be normal mentally, morally, and physically.

So many people see red when the word freedom is associated with children. They are afraid of it, and proceed to distort one of the finest words in our language. They are like the people who used to cry, "You can't set the slaves free because they don't know how to use their freedom?"

How can people learn to use freedom if they never have it? That is our idea in the new child training and the new education. Teach them how to use their freedom, little by little, when they're children, gradually increasing it all along the way instead of giving it to them suddenly when they're grown up, and having it go to their heads. Freedom is a heady drink if you're not used to it.

I could write a tome on the subject to refute by facts some of these statements that favor the good old days of all the perfect children, and all the perfect men and women who grew up as a result of the perfect training of a bygone generation!

A FRIEND IN NEED

Work Depends on Clothes.

"I am anxious to go out to the west coast, where I know people and will have a chance to secure work. I cannot go in the clothing I have now because it is so shabby. If you can get me the things I need it will be a great help. I wear a suit size 38, shoes size 6, 14½ shirt, and a 7¼ hat.

Federation of Women's Clubs Votes Help to the Dry Cause

Phoenix, Ariz., May 1.—(AP)—The biennial council of the General Federation of Women's clubs today adopted a resolution reaffirming its faith "in the eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States."

Other resolutions endorsed principles involved in legislation supporting infancy, maternity and county health units; a "continuation of the policy of restricted immigration," and pledged support to legislation intended to give women overseas world war workers relief under the world war veterans' act.

The council in adopting unanimously a resolution, supporting the eighteenth amendment, pledged its "continued support to such constructive measures as will secure the increased support of public opinion, the better cooperation of states and greater efficiency in enforcement machinery."

The resolution said that the report of the Wickersham committee "in seeking constructive steps to advance the national ideal of eradication of the social, economic and political evils of the liquor traffic, has only strengthened our confidence in the eighteenth amendment."

CHILDREN'S FUND OF MICHIGAN SPENDS $1,166,024 IN YEAR

Detroit, Mich., May 1.—[Special.]—Appropriations totaled $1,166,024 for the year ending April 30, as made by the children's fund of Michigan, established by Senator Couzens with a grant of $10,000,000. The annual report was made today by Dr. Hugo A. Freund, president, and William J. Norton, executive vice president and secretary.

"We have found it advantageous," Dr. Freund said, "to proceed along two definite channels; in some instances the allocation of funds for specific projects under capable management has proven the best procedure; for others, the creation of our own organization to develop our objectives has seemed to be the more desirable method. Experience has demonstrated that direct subsidies, where that is possible, clearly place the responsibility for the work to be accomplished and invite coöperation from efficient groups."

Mr. Norton's report says the child health division expended a total of $401,801 and examined and directly helped more than 150,000 children during the year.

The largest individual expenditure by the child health division was $136,368, on the county dental program, conducted by a staff of 22 dentists and 4 oral hygienists in 35 counties and 2 suburban districts in the Detroit metropolitan area. The regular staff made 73,471 examinations, gave prophylaxis to 17,558 children, inserted 42,370 fillings, and made 21,070 extractions.

Food Talk.

May is one of the most important months for going away and announcement parties if we can be guided by the requests we are getting for unusual menus as well as recipes for the most difficult or uncommon foods. The following menu and recipes will serve for either kind of party:

DINNER MENU.

Pineapple Boats
Celery Hearts Ripe Olives
Chicken Bouillon with Okra
Rye Crackers
Sweetbreads Broiled with Bacon
Potato Curls
Spinach Ring with Creamed Mushrooms
Cucumber and Shrimp Salad
Biscuit Quince Jelly
Orange Ice Cream
Twelve Layer Chocolate Cake

PINEAPPLE BOATS.

Take a large pineapple and cut lengthwise into eight equal wedge shaped pieces, leaving part of the flower at the top. With a sharp knife cut the flesh loose from the shell. Then cut the flesh down in slices, leaving it on the shell. Sprinkle generously with powdered sugar and finely chopped mint. Set on ice and garnish with fresh strawberries when ready to serve.

Yield: Eight servings.

FRENCH FRIED POTATO CURLS.

Use new potatoes, because they are waxy and hold their shape better than old potatoes. Peel potatoes and use the fancy cutters that twist through the potato to make curl shaped pieces about ¼ inch in diameter and four inches long. Dry pieces carefully and fry in deep hot fat [360 degrees F.] until a golden brown. Drain thoroughly, sprinkle with salt, and serve immediately.

CUCUMBER AND SHRIMP SALAD.

Take eight medium sized firm cucumbers and remove a lengthwise slice. Remove centers, leaving just the shell. Place whole shrimps that have been nicely cleaned and marinated in French dressing crosswise in the shells. Garnish with watercress on each end.

Yield: Eight servings.

ORANGE ICE CREAM.

1½ tablespoons granulated gelatin.

Mix fruit juice, sugar, and egg yolks. Cook over boiling water until mixture thickens; then add gelatin, which has been dissolved in boiling water. Cool. Freeze to a mush, add whipped cream and continue freezing. Garnish, if desired, with candied orange peel and chopped pistachio nuts.

CHOCOLATE TWELVE LAYER CAKE.

1½ cups sugar.
4 egg yolks.
1½ cups flour.

Cream the butter, add sugar gradually, egg yolks well beaten, and water. Mix and sift dry ingredients and add to first mixture. Beat well and fold in egg whites beaten until stiff. Spread batter on an oiled baking sheet or pans lined with paraffin paper into a layer as thin as cookie dough. Bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] until done. When cool cut into twelve oblong pieces of uniform size, spread each of the twelve layers with chocolate fudge icing and place the layers on top of each other so that you have a twelve layer cake with chocolate frosting between each layer.

CHOCOLATE ICING.

2 egg yolks.
1 teaspoon melted butter.
1 teaspoon vanilla.

Melt the chocolate over hot water. Add the cream gradually, then salt, egg yolk, and butter. Stir in confectioner's sugar until of right consistency to spread. Spread on layers of the cake.

All Who Complain About Marriage Don't Seek Release

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"For the first time in many years men are beginning to realize that marriage gives many rights and privileges to women and few, if any, to men. I go in a circle of seven married couples. All of them are normal, sober Americans of at least average morality. Being the confidants of them all, I can positively say that not one of the men is really happy.

"At various times I've heard each one wish he were single again and swear he would never marry again if he ever gained his freedom. In each case these seven men are married to girls who, before the honeymoon was over, began to look upon their husbands as slaves who should think of nothing but earning money for their comfort and luxury. Their idea of complete payment for this service is a little affection grudgingly given, occasionally.—JUST A MAN."

I see. "Just a Man, where you've got to widen your circle of friends to get straightened out on a few things. Or, if you were a gentleman of slightly keener perception, you would discount a lot that is said to you about marriage by those in it. To begin with, among certain groups, in fact, among a lot of men it has come to be a common habit to act and talk as if being married converted them into slaves. They don't mean a thing by it. Heaven only knows the divorce doors are wide enough open for walking out on the institution if you don't want to remain in it. But do any of your seven men walk out?

As for believing what any one says about not marrying, once freedom is gained—the after divorce records prove that four out of five can hardly wait till the ink is dry on the papers before they want to try it again. Beside, it is a common human frailty to turn right around and do the thing one swears he or she will not do. Perhaps it's fate directing over fruitful judgment. Any way, some of the worst marriage complainers are among those most anxious for the second go at it.

Another thing, it's talking in bromides when the rights and privileges are said to be the woman's only. Some one making a hasty résumé of a few couples started it and it was a handy generalization to use to those not eager for the responsibilities of marriage. And so, it's been quoted all out of proportion to the evidence I see, and you must, if you look with unprejudiced mind on the great number of married pairs, the country over.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Doubts His Sincerity.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am engaged. One day my mother and I saw him with another girl. Please advise.

"G. G. D."

It may have been a chance meeting with an old friend. If there is any doubt in your mind as to his sincerity you should ask for an explanation now.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Help That Hindered.

Recently I attended a birthday dinner at the home of some friends. A delicious cake had been prepared. It was soft and rich with a whipped cream filling and frosting. During the meal the cake, on which candles had been arranged and the words "Happy Birthday" written across the top, was set on the server to make room for other dishes on the table.

When the hostess was ready to serve the dessert she lifted the cake from the server, and I, suddenly feeling an urge to be helpful, took it from her. When I tried to set the plate on the table the cake slipped, turned a somesault, and the next thing I knew chocolate cake, cream frosting, candies, and holders lay in a heap on the tablecloth.

Printed Dress and Wool Coat Smart

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The ensemble idea has undergone a definite evolution this spring. Coats and dresses that look as if they might have only a bowing acquaintance with each other are united in the bonds of sartorial matrimony. Dark wool coats are worn with pale silk, crêpe or chiffon frocks that have no connection except harmony of color.

Wool coats with printed foulard frocks are among the most popular and practical of new spring ensembles. Chanel shows a great many of them. She makes the coats collarless, but with wide revers faced with the silk which also lines the coat.

The semi-fitted, full length coat is of beige wool. It has no collar and barely meets in front, which is a spring style point. Its slightly puffed lower sleeves are trimmed with squared petals of the wool stitched round the edges and similar petals form the rounded pockets.

The foulard frock is bright yellowish red with beige dots. The selvedge of the fabric is reversed—red dots on beige—and this border is incrusted in the skirt to outline the fitted hip yoke, below which the skirt is circular.

The bodice is short sleeved. It is almost entirely covered by a bertha made full by vertical tucks where it joins the pointed décolleté. It is split to the top in back and can be worn as you see on the small figure. With the coat it can be worn outside like revers or one side of it can be worn inside, while the other is gathered up and thrown over the shoulder like a scarf, as illustrated on the large figure.

CUBS LOSE, 6-2; CARDINALS TAKE LEAGUE LEAD

22,000 PRESENT AS HORSES MAKE AURORA DEBUT

T. S. Jordan Winner of Inaugural.

BY FRENCH LANE.

T. S. Jordan, the 10 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Luke McLuke, captured the inaugural handicap as the Illinois racing season opened at the Aurora Downs club's course yesterday afternoon.

Gold T. S. came galloping home a half length back of Gold Step, a classy sprinter from Kentucky. But because Gold Step swerved in and nearly knocked old T. S. down at the end of the stretch, then crowded over and pushed T. S. back again a hundred strides from the finish line, Gold Step was disqualified.

The disqualification was the only thing to mar a record smashing racing day at Aurora. A crowd of 22,184 (official turnstile count) watched the fast hard clash in the 5½ furlong dash. Fifteen thousand programs were sold, all that had been printed, before the second race was under way. The betting handle was $250,000.

Runs a Winning Race.

T. S. Jordan, performing in Stuyvesant Peabody silks, ran a winning race in the inaugural. His old chestnut head no doubt would have been first across the finish line if he had not met up with that tough customer, Gold Step, from Kentucky.

Neither T. S. Jordan nor Gold Step had been backed stoutly by the crowd. Princeton went to the post the favorite at a little better than even money. Princeton was with the first flight all the way, but he did not threaten the title leaders. As a result of the disqualification he got third money. Celtic Prince was moved up from third place into second money when Gold Step's number was ordered from the finish board.

It took T. S. Jordan just a dozen strides to fly into the lead, and Jockey A. Richards saved ground by hugging the rail as the turn was made. Heading into the stretch, Gold Step, also displaying great speed, came on the outside.

Knocks T. S. Off Stride.

As the two leaders straightened out for the run down the stretch, things began to happen. Gold Step pulled up alongside of T. S. Jordan and just as his nose began to show in front he swerved toward the inside rail. It knocked Jordan off his stride, and Gold Step went into the lead. T. S. Jordan recovered quickly and by the time they were a furlong from home he was up again ready to take the lead. Then Gold Step swerved against him a second time.

There was no doubt about the foul, but the judges and the spectators were unable to determine whether Gold Step or his jockey, A. Pendergrass, was to blame. No penalty was dealt out to Pendergrass. Perhaps Gold Step is strictly a rail runner.

The race was run in 1:06, a second off the track record. In the mutuels T. S. Jordan paid $14.90 to win, $8.02 to place, and $5.06 to show. Celtic Prince was at $15.88 to place and $7.14 to show. Princeton paid $3.22 to show.

Two other Chicago victories came during the afternoon when Racketeer and Willing, both owned by Ben Rosenbach, got up in time to score.

BY ARCH WARD.

Carpenters are hammering away constructing seats at Soldiers' field for the biggest amateur boxing show the sport has known. Eight champions from France are on the way across the Atlantic. Their eight opponents, America's Golden Glove winners, start training today. Meanwhile thousands are seeking tickets for the biggest attraction since Tunney defended his title against Dempsey in the same arena.

Those who have been unable to obtain reserved seats on account of the limited capacity need not miss the show on May 12. There will be room for at least 100,000 in addition to the 21,000 who hold ringside tickets. And theirs will be the biggest bargain of all. They can sit in the permanent stands for 50 cents apiece. The best of these seats would have cost $30 at the Dempsey-Tunney bout.

There is no seat at the French-American international match which cost less than $10 at the late Tex Rickard's fistic extravaganza. There was a section at the heavyweight title battle somewhere around the Field museum that retailed for $5 a place. It required high powered binoculars to locate the ring, much less the fighters. There is no corresponding section in the layout at Soldiers' field for the French bouts.

The farthest seat from the ring, which is pitched in the center of the football field, is the last row in the south horseshoe. Even here the fan has an unobstructed view of the ring. Occupants of these seats paid $10 each to watch Tunney whip Dempsey. Twenty fans can see the finest amateurs in France fight the Golden Glove champions of America for the price of one seat in this location at the professional match.

The ringside has been limited to 21,000 because that is the capacity of Chicago Stadium, where the match will be held in event of rain or cold weather. The prices of these seats are $1, $2 and $3. All the higher price seats have been sold. There are about 2,000 left in the dollar section.

There will be little difference between the last rows of the dollar seats and the best of the general admission. The advantage in holding a dollar ticket is that you are sure to see the show. There will be no general admission sale if the match is moved indoors.

This Explains Everything.

Our co-worker, Harvey Woodruff, recently covered a wrestling match at Chicago Stadium. Mr. Woodruff hadn't seen a wrestling match since he served a term as sports editor and he believed they still wrestled in mat contests.

The flying tackles and airplane spins of the modern game sort of dazzled Mr. Woodruff, the reporter. He found that the new school had discovered more holds than the Gotches, Burnses, Zbyszkos and Caddocks ever dreamed existed. He saw men leaping across the ring like flying fish to butt one another in the stomach. He saw at least one man limp out of the ring on his left foot and come back to the ring limping on the other. All this was very confusing, although entertaining, as he commented in his account of the goings-on.

It seems that Mr. Woodruff's observations broke the hearts of the athletes. They threatened to stay away from Chicago unless the newspaper boys could appreciate their art. They made known that they could play in New York, Dallas or Oskaloosa any night without subjecting themselves to ridicule.

Mr. Woodruff has almost broken down under the strain of it all. He wants us to put him right with the mat champs and their devotees. What he tried to say was that he is strong for the way they do it in 1931. The pastime isn't so pleasing to the eye when they try to wrestle without taking the entertainment of the guests into consideration. Rassling without its oofs, tugs, grunts, and groans is an awful thing to behold.

If we are quoting Mr. Woodruff correctly he hopes that the next time he reports a wrestling match one of the athletes who leaps across the ring will land in the lap of a steamed up customer.

Mr. Woodruff concedes he never saw 17,320 pay to watch the boys perform at an indoor show in the old days.

FRENCH PREFER PUNCH ON JAW TO SEA TRAVEL

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ON BOARD THE LINER FRANCE, May 1.—France's team of eight boxing champions, now two days out on the high seas en route to battle America's Golden Gloves champions in Chicago, discovered today that as sailors several of them are excellent boxers.

Although the "paquebot," which is the French way of designating a steamship, has been moving placidly along its course and indulging in none of the acrobatic antics to which steamers are occasionally addicted, Rene Aubry, France's bantamweight, kept to his quarters today nursing an uneasiness in the center of his anatomy which his comrades diagnosed as "mal de mer." Several others for a time showed a disinclination to leave the security of their bunks, but eventually all except M. Aubry were able to go through their daily workouts.

Heavy Shows Class.

Fernand Laudrin, heavyweight and "boxeur premier" of the French team, demonstrated for the benefit of the passengers who crowded the deck and perched in precarious postures on the rails and ventilators just why he is regarded as France's sure bet to win a bout. M. Laudrin used Alex Elyas, the Sorbonne student who is the team's light heavyweight representative, to exemplify the effectiveness of his punches, and when he had finished M. Elyas' countenance spoke eloquently of the efficacy of the heavyweight's pugilistic procedure.

Marcel Esnault, the lightweight, deprived of his customary sparring partner by the indisposition of M. Aubry, devoted his workout to cuffing Andre Perrier, flyweight, about the liner's deck, M. Perrier coming out second.

Operates on Ear.

Dr. Charles Sebenq, representative of the French boxing federation, was the only gloomy member of the entire French party. While lacking the more thorough training of American coaches in dispensing bear stories, Dr. Sebenq did an excellent job of mourning over the absence of Robert Turquet, the welterweight, who serves as a Paris gendarme when not boxing.

M. Turquet was left behind at the last minute because of an abscess of the ear. Dr. Sebenq operated on the boxer in an effort to repair him in time to embark with the rest of the team, but the wound failed to heal in time for him to make the trip.

While Dr. Sebenq doubtless is sincere in his lamentations, as Turquet is a promising boxer, France still has its full quota and will send eight men against the Golden Gloves winners as originally scheduled, although the French insist that the shortness of time after M. Turquet's ear went back on him precluded summoning any one of high rank to replace him.

Seven Run Parade by Sox in Sixth Routs Browns, 8-2

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

One inning of concentrated hitting yesterday proved sufficient for the purposes of the White Sox. Into this one session—the sixth—they drove in seven runs, making it simple for them to accomplish their fourth consecutive triumph, with the St. Louis Browns as victims. The score was 8 to 2. Vic Frasier, the silent man from Texas, pitched for the Sox.

The sudden display of ferocity by the Sox in the sixth ruined what up to then promised to be an unusual pitching duel in which Dick Coffman was carrying the burden for the Browns. Frasier finished about as stylishly as he started, but Coffman, after giving up only three hits in five innings, let the situation get out of hand. He was gone but not forgotten before the sixth was concluded, and one of the things that hurried him away was a double by Frasier after an intentional pass had loaded the bases.

Frasier Displays Great Control.

Frasier, in completing his first full engagement in the majors, allowed the Browns nine hits, but at least three were mere popups, which fell into unguarded territory. What really made him good was almost perfect control. He continually put the ball about where he wanted it. A peculiar feature about his performance was that in the first five innings, when he appeared to be at his best, almost everybody was retired on fly balls. In the last four sessions the infielders took care of all the putouts.

The victory sent the Sox to third place.

Coffman was a bit liberal in the first inning and the Sox stepped off with a one run lead. He gave a walk to Blue, and on a hit and run Simons lined a single to right. Blue took third and Simons continued to second when his hit was fumbled by Jenkins. Reynolds prolonged his hard luck slump by popping to Melillo, but Fothergill uncorked a long fly on which Blue scored. Cissell closed the inning with a roller to short.

Frasier's early innings were marked by nothing of an alarming nature. The first hit off him was a two bagger by Jenkins in the second, but two were out at the time and no complications ensued. The next was a single by Kress in the fourth. Tate picked him off first base. Then Schulte opened the fifth with a whistling grounder through Appling. Jenkins flied out and Storti singled to right. Nothing happened because Reynolds caught Ferrell's liner and Coffman struck out.

Sox Bats Quiet at First.

Meanwhile the hitting of the Sox was even less boisterous than that of their guests. After Simons' hit in the first, no more were produced until Blue banged one through short with one out in the third. Simons and Reynolds were unable to advance him. Another slim scoring opportunity arose in the fourth. Appling tripled off the left field bricks, but there were two out, and Jeffries, who is acting third baseman until Kamm's wrenched ankle heals, couldn't do anything in the pinch. Then Coffman turned out one more good inning before he was served with notice to quit.

The Browns' run in the sixth was due to a single by Levey and a double by Goslin.

In the home half, Reynolds singled to touch off the cannon crackers under Coffman. A pass to Fothergill was next. Cissell laid down a perfect bunt toward third and beat it out for a hit, filling the bases. The infield drew in for a possible play at the plate and Appling hit a single past Melillo, scoring Reynolds and Fothergill. Jeffries sacrificed and Tate was adjudged too dangerous to handle. An intentional pass to him filled the bases.

Frasier's Double Clears Bases.

This was where Frasier voiced dis approval of the reflection on his hitting ability. He rammed a two bagger on a line over first base, Cissell, Appling and Tate immediately staging a parade over the plate. Stiles took over Coffman's duties. On a tap by Blue, Frasier was run down between second and third. Blue stole second and Simons walked. Reynolds and Fothergill then revived the attack by singling, Blue scoring on one and Simons on the other. Cissell's infield out brought welcome relief to everybody.

Cissell tried to cheer up the woebegone Brownies in the eighth by handing them a run. He booted Melillo's grounder with one out. Goslin singled to right, putting Melillo on third. Goslin was forced at second when Appling made a great stop of a hard hopper in deep short and Melillo scored on the play.

Pat Caraway will be selected today as the proper man to stretch the winning streak to five games. Bill Killefer thinks he might start Blaeholder.

EARNSHAW HOLDS YANKS TO THREE HITS; A'S WIN, 4-0

Philadelphia, Pa., May 1.—(AP)—George Earnshaw showed a flash of his 1930 world series form today as he held the New York Yankees to three hits while the Athletics were pounding George Pipgras for a 4 to 0 triumph.

Earnshaw allowed only one hit, a single by Lazzeri in the second inning, until the ninth when Combs and Reese cracked out singles. George Haas and Mickey Cochrane backed Earnshaw's brilliant pitching performance with home runs, Haas' circuit drive coming in the second and Cochrane's in the fifth with one man on base. Score:

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., May 1.—The champion Cardinals this afternoon spotted the Cubs two runs and then put on a jolly May pole dance around the bases to the utter distress of our fellows, who don't like May pole dances. The two run handicap was all the scoring done by the Cubs, and the festival ended with a tabulation of Cards, 6; Cubs, 2.

In addition to making the count three victories to one defeat in the four games they have played with the Cubs, the Cardinals booted the heroes of Lake Michigan's shores down from a first place tie to a third place berth, the Giants rising to second place by virtue of their victory over the fading Boston Braves.

The party was attended by some 24,000—7,000 paid; 3,000 kids and 14,000 lady crashers. None of these folks seemed worried much about the way the Cub batting averages were shrinking. Hornsby sagged from .409 to .375, and wept into a tie with Woody English, each now having 18 hits in 48 times at bat. Stephenson dropped off 35 points to .376. Wilson added 22 points to lift his average to .264, but Bell dropped off to .222 and Cuyler to .275. Hartnett stood still at .250 and Grimm rose above the .200 mark and now is boasting .205.

Gabby Smacks a Homer.

Sylvester Johnson, who wasn't ready to slap down the Cubs in the recent series in Chicago, was plenty fit today. He allowed only six hits. There were some crumbs of consolation in these half dozen smacks, however, for three of them were made by two powerful gents who have been finding little employment for their bats. Gabby Hartnett made a homer and Hack Wilson made a triple and a double. Gabby scored the first run of the game with the homer and Hack drove in the second run of the game and the last for the Cubs with his triple.

The Cubs, who have been deriving a measure of success from bases on balls, received no such aid today, for Johnson walked no one. The second Cub run was put on, however, when English was hit by a pitched ball. None of the Cardinals walked, either, but they didn't need any concessions.

Orsatti Wields Potent Bat.

Next to Johnson, Ernie Orsatti was the biggest burr in the fur of the Cubs. Ernie drove in the first Cardinal run with a triple and scored the tying run immediately thereafter. This was in the third inning. In the fifth Ernie drove in what proved to be the winning run with a double.

The three runs in the eighth came

NEW YORK PUTS TITLE STAMP ON SHARKEY FIGHT

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—The New York state athletic commission today put the official stamp of approval on the bout between Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera as being for the world's heavyweight championship.

This action was taken in accordance with a resolution adopted Dec. 19, 1930, and reiterated the following Jan. 6. It announced "that if Max Schmeling fails to accept Sharkey's challenge for a bout it will declare the heavyweight title vacant, and recognise a bout between Sharkey and an outstanding opponent as being for the championship."

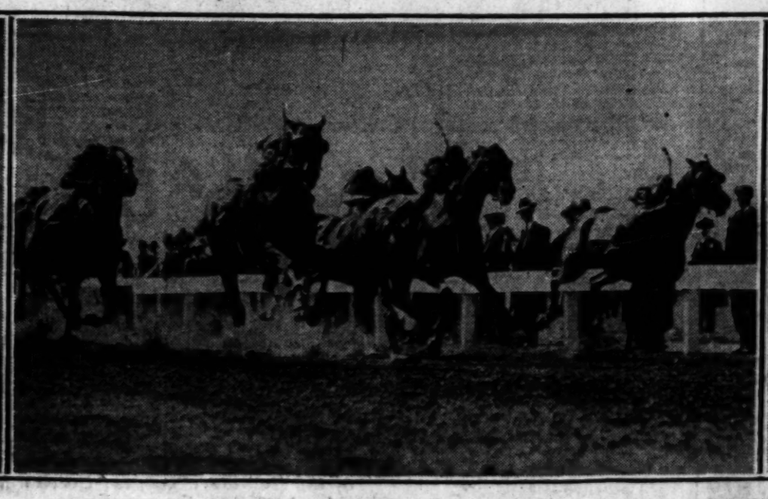
Jones Accepts Captaincy in Officers' Reserve Corps

Washington, D. C., May 1.—(AP)—It's now Capt. Robert Tyre Jones Jr. The war department today announced acceptance by the retired golf champion of a captaincy in the officers' reserve corps. Bobby, who retired recently as American and British open champion, will serve in the specialists' corps of the reserve force.

THE DAY'S SPORT REPORTED BY THE CAMERA

Jesse Harper returns to Notre Dame to get acquainted and take up duties as athletic director, a job he relinquished in 1918.

Ken Meenan, being groomed as a fullback for Northwestern, is tackled in Varsity-Alumni football game at Evanston which was won by the school eleven, 32 to 0. The contest ended spring grid practice. Meenan, who comes from Oak Park, will be a sophomore in the fall.



Don't let the camera confuse you—Gold Step, whose jockey has number nine on his sleeve, is winning the Inaugural handicap at Aurora. But Gold Step's race proved only an airing, for disqualification followed and T. S. Jordan (sleeve band No. 4) was named the winner.

Klein and Bissonette Hit Home Runs.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 1.—(AP)—Heavy hitting behind the steady pitching of Joe Shaute gave the Brooklyn Robins their second straight win over the Phillies, 8 to 4, today. It was Shaute's second victory of the season and the first time the Robins have won two in a row.

Chuck Klein's fourth home run of the season helped the Phillies to an early lead, but Bissonette's homer with two on in the fifth tied the score. The Robins knocked Phil Collins out of the box and scored five runs in the sixth. Score:

PIRATES BEAT REDS, 5 TO 4.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 1.—(AP)—A forced run in the eleventh inning allowed Pittsburgh to make it two in a row over the Cincinnati Reds today, 5 to 4.

The Pirates scored the winning run with two out when Carroll went wild in pitching to Sankey. Sankey walked and Paul Waner scored.

The Reds scored two runs in the eighth to take a lead, but Lloyd Waner singled with two on in the Pirates' half of the inning to put the locals back on even terms.

CARDINALS BEAT CUBS, 8-2; LEAD NATIONAL RACE

in the nature of a peace offering after a virtual surrender when Hornsby sent in Teachout to pitch. Bud again showed that his talents do not bloom in the spring, and he was whacked in no uncertain fashion.

The two teams will play again tomorrow. Charley Root will seek to beat Bill Hallahan and achieve his fourth straight victory, and Hornsby, Stephenson, and Bell, who failed to get a base hit today, will try to get at least one tomorrow.

Cuyler Collects a Hit.

Cuyler threw off the anguish occasioned by three hitless games when he opened the contest with a line single to right. Ki went to second while Frisch was throwing out English. He died there because Hornsby popped to Gelbert and Hack Wilson flied to Martin.

In the Cardinal half of the first Frisch singled with two out, but trouble was averted when Cuyler made a fine running catch of Bottomley's drive to deep right center.

Stephenson started the second inning with a fly to Orsatti. Then up stepped Hartnett. Gabby took two balls, followed by a lusty swing that revealed he was going for a long one. The forecast was accurate, for on the next pitch the Cub catcher drove the ball high into the far distant left field bleachers.

Hack's Triple Scores English.

The Cubs made their second run in the third inning in the following manner: After Cuyler had sent Watkins against the wall to catch a liner, English was hit by a pitched ball. Hornsby popped to Martin in front of the plate. Then Hack drove his triple off the wall in center, English scoring. Stephenson popped to Frisch.

There was a heap of action in the way the Cardinals tied the score in their half of the third. After Johnson had been called out on strikes, Adams singled to center. Stephenson tried for a catch on Orsatti's drive to the left wall, but the ball bounced concrete and shot back toward the infield, with Hack Wilson in hot pursuit. But ere Hack had caught up with it Adams had scored and Orsatti was perched on third with another triple added to his record. Frisch made an aggravating pop into short center. Cuyler caught it after a long run, but had to make an off balance throw to the plate, missing Orsatti by an eyelash. Bottomley flied to Stephenson.

Cardinals Take Lead.

Hornsby started the sixth with a pop to Frisch, but Wilson doubled down the right field screen. Stephenson flied to Watkins and Hartnett flied to Orsatti. Bottomley, Watkins, and Gelbert went out in order in the Cubs' half.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: Recent passing of Assistant Fire Marshal Joseph L. Kenyon, retired, doubtless reminded other early Chicagoans of his brother, the late David B. Kenyon, who was captain of engine company No. 21, located in 1879 on the east side of Third avenue, now Plymouth court, just south of 12th street.

Capt. Kenyon was a great favorite with us neighborhood urchins, living in a dwelling two doors south of the engine house. His son, Freddie, who died when only 8 years old, was our playmate in youthful pranks.

Except for Capt. Kenyon and his lieutenant, this engine company was composed of colored men. We adopted them readily as our heroes and attributed to them salamandrine and smoke resistive force not possessed by white fire fighters. Thus we boys were allowed to roam the engine house, slide down the brass pole from the dormitory above, climb up the hundred or more steps of the tower, and stand by in awe for the "dummy" alarm when the trained horses broke out of their stalls and took positions, each under his suspended harness.

The bare site of the old Tremont house at Lake and Dearborn reminds of the time when Stephen A. Douglas, known as "The Little Giant" from his short, stout figure, spoke there in his campaign against Abraham Lincoln for the presidency. I was just a little girl, but my father took me downtown with him to hear Mr. Douglas, from the porch on the old building, tell the people what he would do if elected. Although very young, I remember it was raining and we all carried umbrellas.

When this old building burned in the fire of 1861, "Long John" Wentworth lived there and his extra length bed also was burned. He sent to Milwaukee for another bed to be made that would be long enough for him.

N. U. Football Team Defeats Alumni, 32-0

Northwestern's present crop of football players proved far superior to a team composed of former Purple players in a game at Dyche stadium yesterday which wound up five weeks of spring practice. The varsity defeated the alumni, 32 to 0.

The game disclosed that Pug Rentner, last season's backfield sensation, apparently has recovered from the injury to his shoulder which he suffered last fall. He scored three touchdowns.

Al Moore, who has played full back and half back for the Wildcats in the last two years, made his first appearance at quarter back. On the first play of the game he slipped through his right tackle and galloped 60 yards for a touchdown.

Following an exchange of punts Rentner intercepted a pass destined for Waldo Fisher and ran 70 yards for the second touchdown. Following the kickoff Rentner again scored, this time running from scrimmage around his right end for 40 yards.

Ken Meenan, freshman full back from Oak Park, started with the regulars. He ripped off one 60 yard run for a touchdown which was called back because of offsides.

In the last quarter Rentner and Moore each scored another touchdown. Lineups:

Smoke a FRESH Cigarette

And millions of men and women are now discovering a brand new enjoyment since Camels adopted the new Humidor Pack.

Now, thanks to the new Humidor Pack, which keeps the dust and germs out and keeps the flavor in, Camels, wherever you find them, are always factory-fresh and in perfect mild condition.

No harsh, dried tobacco to burn the throat. No peppery dust to sting delicate membrane — just the cool mild aroma of fine tobacco, properly conditioned.

CAMELS

● It is the mark of a considerate hostess, by means of the Humidor Pack, to "Serve a fresh cigarette." Buy Camels by the carton—this cigarette will remain fresh in your home and office.

6 RECORDS FALL IN OPENING DAY OF OHIO RELAYS

University Teams Take Track Today.

Columbus, O., May 1.—[Special.]—Six meet records were broken in the first day's competition of the eighth annual Ohio relays here today, two in the college division and four in the high school class.

There were 125 high schools and colleges entered in the relays, bringing more than 2,000 athletes from Canada and the United States.

The major portion of the meet will be run off tomorrow, with the finals in the college and both preliminaries and finals in the university events. University field exents will be conducted in the morning with the track and individual events scheduled for the afternoon session.

Hutson Wins Century Dash.

Desmond Hutson, Denison university dash star, took major honors in the record breaking today when he stepped off with the 100 yard dash event for Ohio colleges in 9.7 seconds. Hutson broke in front and led all the way to the tape, cracking the line more than five yards ahead of his nearest opponent, a team mate, Weidemaier. Gordon of Miami was third.

Miami university sprint medley team cut 2.4 seconds from the Ohio relay record it made last year. The time was 3:23.8.

Columbus Central won two events and set two records in the high school division for class A schools. Pacing the mile relay in 3:27.1 to better Newark, N. J., prep school's old mark of 3:29.8. In the qualifying heats of the half mile relay Central set a record of 1:31.5 beating their old mark set last year of 1:31.8. Dayton Oakwood set a meet record in the class B high school relay while the sixth mark of the day was made by Vincent Murphy, Cleveland Cathedral Latin, in the high jump with a leap of 6 feet 2 inches.

Sentman to Run.

Lee Sentman, Illinois hurdles star, will compete in his favorite event, the 120 yard high hurdles, tomorrow, despite his handicap of an injured knee. The renewal of the hurdle duel between Sentman and the Ohio star, Jack Keller, was in danger of ending when early in the week it was announced the Illini star would not compete because of a bruised tendon.

Sentman's best time for the year is 14.6, made in the Kansas relays, while Keller was clocked at 14.5 in a dual meet here with Ohio Wesleyan. In preparation for the breaking of a record in the event, Ohio State athletic officials will have a weather bureau instrument to measure wind velocity.

Buys Ticket on Winner, but Is Loser on Race

Carlos Ames bought a ticket on LaBelotte to win the second race at Aurora yesterday. When LaBelotte dashed home in front Mr. Ames turned his pockets inside out, but couldn't find his winning ticket. "Maybe it is a sign of a prosperous season," lamented Mr. Ames.

Lieut. Gov. Fred Sterling was among the early arrivals in the clubhouse. He wanted to make a modest speculation on French Lane to capture the first race, but he was talked out of it.

Anita's Pal, the first two year old to score at Aurora, is a daughter of Prince Pal-Pretty Miss and resembles her illustrious daddy. Jockey A. Pendergrass handled her to perfection. He called on her for a tremendous burst of speed rounding the turn. She responded and romped into a lead that was never threatened until right near the finish line when Wise Cheer, a son of Wise Counsellor, showed that he is going to like distance. He was running over horses in the last furlong but didn't have distance enough to catch Anita's Pal.

There were many Chicago racegoers in the clubhouse, and most of them were making their first visit to the Aurora track. The day was too perfect for the Chicagoans who like to see the horses run to stay at home. Senator Richard Barr of Joliet was mingling with the early crowd; so was Senator H. G. Wright of DeKalb, and former Senator Ed Hughes of Chicago. John Schank, boss of Hawthorne, rushed in and bought a ticket on King at Arms just as the mutuel windows were slammed down for the first race.

STOCK MARKET IS NOW BACK TO DECEMBER LOW

Values Drop 10 Pct. During April.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Where does the stock market stand now? Some of the generally accepted "averages" place the market slightly above the mid-December low level, while others show it in new low ground. At any event, it would seem that the decline of the last two months has wiped out the advance registered in January and February, leaving the market at about the same low level established on Dec. 17, 1930.

The market value of 100 representative common stocks on Thursday aggregated $20,336,247,000, showing a decline of $2,368,512,000, or 10.4 per cent, during April, according to a compilation by Frazier Jelke & Co., brokers. The same stocks declined $2,097,112,000 or 14 per cent, during March and advanced $2,808,523,000, or 11.2 per cent in February. On Dec. 17, 1930, these 100 issues were appraised at $19,286,-313,000, while on Aug. 30, 1929, which was the approximate peak of the bull market, the aggregate market value was $43,447,945,000.

Oil Loss Is Largest.

Each one of the thirteen subgroups constituting the Jelke index declined last month, the largest loss in dollars being $390,296,000 in the oils. The utilities dropped $388,643,000, and the rails fell $272,971,000. However, on a percentage basis the drop of 24.7 per cent in the amusement group was the largest loss for the month. The percentage declines in the other groups follow: Railroad quipment, 18.3; steels, 14.1; chemicals, 14.1; mines, 12.5; electrical equipments, 11.6; oils, 10.8; utilities, 10.6; foods, 8.1; rails, 7; motors, 4.1; stores, 4.7, and miscellaneous industrials, 4.6 per cent.

"The behavior of the 25 most active stocks on the New York Stock exchange during April was typical of the final stages of a period of decline and gives substantial grounds for the belief that April may mark the final low point," the Standard American corporation says in its monthly analysis. "It is of particular interest to note that in the face of the drastic decline last month the volume of trading in these active issues was comparatively small.

Cites Trading Volume.

"The typical behavior of market leaders in the final stages of a decline is to show a progressively small turnover, with a diminution in the volume of trading on each successive drop in the market. Therefore, the small volume of trading in April, representing a recession of 11 per cent from the March volume, becomes particularly significant when considered in connection with the fact that the average decline was much greater in April than in March."

WEATHER AFFECTS TRADE

"The intrusion this week into the trade situation of cooler, rainy weather conditions, with snowfalls and freezing temperatures in northern areas, is indicated in the reports to Bradstreet's as to trade and industry at forty cities. Reports as to wholesale and jobbing trade and industry are not greatly different from those noted one or more weeks ago, but in retail trade, which has profited by nearly three full weeks of warm weather following Easter, quieter trade is fairly well marked and collections also appear to have been affected somewhat."

"All other economic phases of the week were dwarfed in general interest by the early depression in markets where speculative commitments are highly influential," says Dun's review. "Certain trade trends were moderately encouraging, but again were outweighed by the negative features, and the accelerated momentum of the decline in prices for securities was distasteful to sentiment.

Explains Present Status.

"At bottom the great alteration occurring in the commodity price structure during the last year and a half explains much of the present status of business, and the lowering quotations still persist even after so long a time of readjustment.

"Retrenchment in operating costs has been widely adopted as an offset to the decreased demands for goods and services, but the world-wide ramifications of the transition make it clear that a complete emergence from the existing situation is not near at hand. Constructive forces are at work, however, and their influence, although not prominently revealed on the surface, is deeply significant in its bearing on the future."

PULLMAN, INC., EARNS $579,523 IN 1ST QUARTER

The first quarter report of Pullman, Inc., which was issued yesterday, showed net earnings of $579,523, or 15 cents a share on the 3,875,000 shares of authorized capital stock. This compares with net earnings of $3,638,-705, or $1.08 a share, in the first quarter of 1930.

The earnings fell short of dividend requirements, which at the current annual rate of $4 a share would amount to $3,875,000 for the three month period. In 1930 the corporation earned $4.37 a share on its capital stock and $5.24 a share in 1929.

Decline Is Reported in Week's Business Failures

Commercial failures in the United States during the last week decreased substantially, in line with the usual seasonal tendency, R. G. Dun & Co. reports. The total was 532, compared with 613 in the previous week.

Gov't Takes Delivery of 36,000,000 Bushels Wheat

The farm board swapped dollars for wheat yesterday in a deal leaving it around $28,000,000 poorer in cash but richer in grain by 36,000,000 bushels.

George S. Milnor, president of the Grain Stabilization corporation, announced that initial deliveries on May futures contracts in wheat totaled 36,-000,000 bushels, handled and stored without market disturbance.

His statement read: "The Grain Stabilization corporation has taken delivery today of approximately 36,000,-000 bushels of wheat against May wheat futures owned in various markets. Transfer has been made without confusion or disturbance. Additional deliveries no doubt will be made from day to day during the month. All wheat delivered is in storage and there is ample room to take care of current wheat arrivals."

Approximately 23,000,000 bushels of wheat was delivered to the Farmers' National Grain corporation at Minneapolis in what traders said was the largest grain transaction in a day in Minnesota history. Deliveries at Chicago were 3,931,000 bushels and at Kansas City 3,843,000 bushels. The remainder was delivered in smaller quantities at various points.

The wheat at Minneapolis, representing payment of approximately $18,000,000, was delivered to the Farmers' National Grain corporation, federal farm board ally, as May futures contracts came due.

Little Goes to Farmers.

Little of the money goes to farmers, grain men said. Owners of the grain for the most part were grain commission firms and terminal elevator companies which purchased it previously from northwest farmers. Most of the wheat is in elevators at Minneapolis and in Duluth. The wheat was accepted by the Farmer National for the account of the Grain Stabilization corporation.

The deal represents settlement of contracts between the grain corporation and grain commission firms and terminal elevators made from June 30, 1930, to February, 1931, the corporation being bound to accept delivery and pay for wheat bought during that period.

Statisticians figured 36,000,000 bushels, if moved by rail, would fill a solid train 203 miles long, with each box car carrying the normal load of about 1,500 bushels. Ground into flour and baked into bread of one pound loaves, they estimated it would circle the world over thirteen times.

ESTIMATE HOLDINGS

Total holdings of cash wheat and futures by the government are now estimated at 250,000,000 bu, mostly cash wheat, and they are expected to be larger as the month of May progresses.

While the government agencies were paying for millions of bushels of cash wheat they were also making good sized sales to mills and for export to Europe. It was understood by those in a position to know that sales of late have been large, there being included in yesterday's sales a cargo of 260,000 bu hard winter wheat to China for shipment from the Pacific coast.

A good many million bushels of May wheat have been sold in the Chicago pit the last few days by government agencies to enable shorts to get in, there being no disposition on the part of the government to squeeze them.

Permit Track Deliveries.

The range here for May was 81¼@82½c with the close 81⅝@81¾c, a net gain of ⅝c for the day.

Deliveries of other grains in Chicago were 208,000 bu of corn, 347,000 bu of oats, and 803,000 bu of rye. It was said that around 400,000 bu of wheat were delivered here in cars on track, but Mr. W. Milnor said late in the day that he was not aware of any such deliveries.

At a special meeting of Board of Trade directors early in the day it was decided that an emergency existed as regards suitable storage for grain, and they declared that grain in car lots on track in Chicago inspection district would be a regular delivery.

Sleeping Car Excursions Stimulate Rail Travel

BY SCRUTATOR.

What has become of the erstwhile railway passenger? How can he be enticed to return to his former means of travel?

Railroad men have been asking themselves these questions for several years and finding no satisfactory answer. A number of experiments have been tried without much success.

Obviously the short haul business has been seriously affected by the great increase in the use of private automobiles and the construction of good roads. For longer trips travelers have turned increasingly to buses. But why?

The price seemed to have much to do with it. Railroads began to cut prices on coach travel. Two cents per mile tickets good on day coaches were put in effect by many lines during January and February. Railroads operating between Chicago and the west coast established a $50 fare to approximate bus rates.

Price Cuts Disappointing.

The results were disappointing. The Railway Age in its issue of March 14 relays the reports of passenger traffic managers for several of the western lines who state that the lower prices have not stimulated much business.

In April several eastern roads tried something different. They put on week-end sleeping car excursions. The results were gratifying.

On April 18 two trains containing fifteen Pullman cars left Boston for Montreal. The price for the round trip was slightly more than the ordinary one way fare.

These trains carried 458 passengers, an average of 30.5 per car. The ordinary sleeping car on regular runs averages an occupancy of only ten persons. Sixty per cent of the passengers were new to Pullman travel. Seventy per cent were women. The usual proportion is 70 per cent men.

Seventy-three lower berths and 26 uppers were each occupied by two passengers. Three compartments and 19 drawing rooms were each occupied by four.

A check at the customs revealed that 54 per cent of the travelers were clerks. Eight per cent were housewives and two per cent were business men. Mechanics, teachers, merchants and professional men and women each represented nine per cent.

On the same day two trains of eighteen sleeping cars left Boston for Niagara Falls. There were 649 passengers, an average of 36 per car. Coaches were also run on this excursion and, in spite of their larger capacity, averaged only 29.3 passengers per car. The round trip coach tickets sold for $10. The rate on the sleeping cars was $12 for the rail ticket and one way berth fare plus 25 cents.

An excursion the preceding week-end from New York to Pittsburgh produced similar results. Eleven sleeping cars carried 365 passengers.

Ventures Prove Profitable.

A checkup convinced the experimenters that these ventures had been profitable for both the railroads and the Pullman company. Idle equipment and men had work to do. Trains were loaded and people who otherwise would have stayed at home became customers. Plans were immediately made for a dozen more such week-end excursions from May 2 to June 6.

It is still too early to draw broad conclusions, but apparently a good scent has been struck. In 1930 the railroads derived 53 per cent of their total passenger revenue from sleeping and parlor car passengers. Excluding commutation revenue from the total, the sleeping and parlor car passenger revenue was 53.3 per cent.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 1.—Freebooters of the bear clan fell upon the "convalescent" stock market in the late trading today and sent it to bed again. United States Steel common after touching 121 took a tumble of nearly 8 points to record a new sub-bottom of 113¼. Auburn Auto crashed 28 points to the agonized cries of a new flock of "quick turn" followers. Allied Chemical and Dye broke 6½, Eastman Kodak, 5; Westinghouse, 4; American Tobacco, 5, and numerous other favorites from 3 to 5 points in a wave of selling that extended to all groups of the list and gained such sudden momentum as to distance the ticker for ten minutes or more.

The fresh reaction came as a climax to a four hour period of uncertain price movements, with constructive forces bidding up a group of the leaders in a dogged effort to keep the recovery which developed yesterday under way and the average trader utilising the record of their perspiring efforts as it came out on the ticker tape to pocket the profits from the bulge.

For an hour or so after the opening it looked as though the rally might carry for some distance. Steel held persistently around 120, Westinghouse was pegged up to 64¼ and other prominent victims of the long decline braced up in a manner calculated to impress the most skeptical.

Selling Develops.

Going into the afternoon, the rank and file of active industrials, utilities and specialties disclosed net gains ranging from 1 to about 4 points. But as the session progressed on toward the small hours it became apparent that the recovery was meeting with increased resistance in the shape of selling by speculators who had bought for a turn a day or so back. Then came the wave of short selling and renewed liquidation and within a few minutes most of the early gains had been wiped out. The list as a whole went on down and down and closing prices, generally speaking, were about the lowest of the day.

There were notable exceptions, of course. U. S. Steel, for one, rebounded nearly a point in the last two or three sales to close at 115¼, off 5¾ on the day. Westinghouse, New York Central and a few others figuring conspicuously on the tape also snapped back a point or so.

Fear Dividend Outlook.

A number of issues were uniformly weak throughout the day. One of these was Liquid Carbonic which broke about 5 points to a new record low level, and another was Texas Gulf Sulphur which yielded about 3—both on anxiety over the abilities of the companies to maintain present dividend rates. Texas Gulf at its low price today was selling to return a yield of nearly 11 per cent, while the return offered on Liquid Carbonic at its boom was approximately 11.5 per cent. Pullman, Inc., was also conspicuously weak, due to the disappointing earnings report of the company for the quarter. It set a new bottom for itself at 37½. Copper shares as a group started off quick and were never able to get their heads above water.

The oil shares had favorable dividend actions by several of the Standard Oil companies in their favor and the leaders of the group held out more stoutly than most other descriptions. Standard of New Jersey lost less than a point and Standard of New York broke exactly even on the day. Houston was unable to keep the pace, however, and the final gong found it showing a loss of more than 3 points.

COMMITTEE REPORTS CRISIS IN AFFAIRS OF RICHFIELD OIL

New York, May 1.—(AP)—The bondholders' protective committee, representing holders of Richfield Oil company of California first mortgage and collateral trust series A convertible gold bonds, announced today that bondholders must choose between reorganization and foreclosure as a result of the federal court's order that interest and sinking fund payments due today be not paid.

In a communication to bondholders urging deposit of bonds the committee states that "it is obvious that the time has now arrived when, unless a substantial deposit of bonds is made immediately the bondholders' interests may be definitely and permanently prejudiced."

Tracing $2,300,000.

San Francisco, Cal., May 1.—(AP)—The Examiner said today stockholders and creditors of the Richfield Oil company and its subsidiary, the Universal Consolidated Oil company, were seeking to trace more than $2,300,000 allegedly borrowed from the two corporations.

The investigation climaxed, said the newspaper, with the filing of a report in United States District court at Los Angeles by R. C. McDuffie, receiver for Richfield, and the announcement that Richfield would default interest payments due today on its bonds. The paper asserted the following had been revealed:

That more than $1,000,000 was borrowed from Richfield by its officers, directors, and employés to protect their Richfield and other stocks as the market fell, and that Richfield money was loaned on notes to friends of these officers to provide stock margins.

M'KELVIE WILL ATTEND LONDON WHEAT PARLEY

Washington, D. C., May 1.—(AP)—Samuel R. McKelvie, grain member, was announced today as the farm board's representative to the international wheat conference at London. Nils A. Olsen, chief of the agriculture department's bureau of economics, is the other representative for this country. The conference opens May 19. Dr. Alonzo E. Taylor of the food research institute, Stanford university, will accompany McKelvie as technical adviser.

In a statement announcing McKelvie's appointment the board said that, regardless of tangible results, it felt such a conference would develop facts relative to the world situation and the exporting countries that would lead to a better understanding of their mutual difficulties and what must be done to meet them.

"The board wishes to emphasize that participation in the London conference does not change in any way its recommendation to wheat growers of this country that they gradually reduce production to a domestic market basis," it said.

Stock Commission House Defines Its Position

The recent discussion of the advisability of commission houses conducting investment banking businesses has led one stock exchange house to stamp on its advices to customers this statement: "The policy of this firm is to confine itself to the conduct of a strictly commission brokerage business and to accept and give its clients accurate and unprejudiced advice on investments. We have no interest in any securities nor do we under any circumstances have stocks or bonds for sale for our own account."

YOUNGSTOWN CO. SHOWS LOSS FOR FIRST QUARTER

Youngstown, O., May 1.—(AP)—The Youngstown Sheet and Tube company today reported a loss of $822,909.79 after all charges but before preferred dividends for the first quarter. In the first quarter of 1930 the company had a profit of $2,517,796.

The loss is equivalent to 73 cents a share on about 1,200,000 shares of common stock, as compared to net earnings of $1.92 a share a year ago.

NEW YORK CURB SUFFERS FRESH PRICE DECLINE

New York, May 1.—(AP)—The curb market suffered a fresh relapse in the late trading today, after a moderate extension of yesterday's advance in the earlier hours of trading. Most of the more active shares sold off substantially in the last hour, although some of the Standard Oil shares resisted the downward tendency as regular dividends were declared.

Standard of Indiana closed up ⅛, and Kentucky ¾. Nebraska and Ohio, lightly traded issues, gained 1 and 1¼. Humble and Vacuum, also members of the Standard group, were under pressure, however, losing 1¾ and 1½, respectively. Among other oils, Cities Service lost ⅝ and Gulf 1¾.

Houdaille-Hershey.

I have Houdaille-Hershey A and B stock. I would like to know the latest information in regard to profits, business, etc.—L. S. B.

Houdaille-Hershey corporation manufactures shock absorbers, bumpers, wheels and other automobile accessories. It was incorporated in January, 1929, as a consolidation of Hershey corporation, Houdaille corporation and Oakes Products corporation. In 1929 it acquired General Spring Bumper corporation and Skinner company, Ltd., of Canada, and an interest in Schwitzer-Cummins company of Indianapolis. In 1930 Muskegon Motor Specialties company, its subsidiary, Jackson Motor Shaft company, and Lyon Cover company were acquired.

For 1930 net loss of $157,406 was reported. This does not include earnings of Muskegon Motor Specialties company, which totaled $181,765. After dividends deficit for the year was $1,-013,032. For the full year of 1929, including earnings of predecessor companies and subsidiaries regardless of the date of acquisition, net income was $2,819,669, equal to $16.12 per class A share and $4.64 per class B share.

On Dec. 31, 1930, current assets were $2,299,156 and current liabilities were $264,252. Working capital was $2,034,904, against $3,439,263 the year before. During 1930 cash and call loans dropped to $1,586,373 from $1,997,354, and inventories at the end of the year were $797,813, against $1,755,928 at the beginning of the period.

At the close of 1930 capitalization consisted of 174,475 no par class A shares and 536,571 no par class B shares. The class A stock has preference as to assets and as to cumulative annual dividends of $2.50 a share. It is convertible into class B, share for share, at any time to June 25, 1953. There is no funded debt.

Although dividends are being paid on the class A, none has been reported on the class B since the 30 cent payment on July 1, 1930. The class A is speculative and the common more so.

Annuity.

I have been considering investing $26,500 in an annuity contract. I am not very familiar with this form of insurance and would appreciate it very much if you will inform me if [1] the income is tax exempt and [2] if the proceeds at my death will be payable to my wife without the usual fees and taxes.—N. E. B.

1. We suggest you inquire from the insurance company whether the income from the annuity policy that you propose taking out is exempt from federal income tax.

2. The term "annuity" is ordinarily applied to contracts under which money is paid to the insured during his lifetime. Payments at death are commonly called life insurance.

Life insurance is, in general, not subject to income or inheritance taxes.

DEPOSITORS TO SEEK REOPENING OF CLOSED BANK

Plans for the reorganization of the Builders and Merchants State bank, 5157 North Clark street, closed some weeks ago, were discussed Thursday night at a meeting of 6,000 depositors held at the Broadway armory. Thomas F. Myers Jr., north side publisher, who called the meeting, acted as chairman. The depositors elected a committee of fifteen headed by Mr. Myers to investigate possibilities of reopening the bank. A definite course to be pursued is being held up pending the report of the state auditor on the bank's condition, which is expected shortly.

CHICAGO STOCKS SUBMERGED IN LATE SELLING

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The break in U. S. steel on the big board started a storm of frenzied selling in the last half hour of trading on the Chicago exchange yesterday. By the end of the session the early gains had been transformed into losses and shares of all kinds and descriptions were being quoted at prices below the previous day's close.

The ease with which the bear crowd pushed the steel stock around destroyed the confidence of traders who were looking for a continuation of the advance. As a result stocks were dumped right and left, with commission house selling following in the wake of the professional liquidation.

Typical of Trend.

The action of Insull Utility yesterday was typical of the day's trend. The stocks sold up to a high above 24 during the morning and was selling above its previous close in the early afternoon. When the selling broke loose the issue went reeling down to 21½, and closed only a notch above that price with a net loss of nearly 2 points.

The story was the same with the other active stocks. Cord, Borg-Warner and Bendix surrendered early gains to close the day with losses. It was these latter stocks, the motor accessory shares, which had given the best promise in the early session and up until 30 minutes before the gong it appeared that they would finish in a better price position.

The news of the day was mixed with the Pullman and Bethlehem earnings statements tipping the scales to the bear side. But even these reports were not unexpected and in some respects the Bethlehem dividend action was more favorable than had been anticipated.

Estimates Profit.

In a report made to the exchange yesterday the Lynch corporation estimates that net profit for the four months ended April 30 were in excess of dividend requirements. Requirements for the period amounted to $52,600. In the corresponding months last year the company earned $110,827.

The exchange announced yesterday that a membership has been sold for $18,100, which compares with $14,000 in the previous transaction. Stock sales on the exchange during April were 3,458,000 shares, as compared with 3,941,000 in the previous month, and 10,325,100 in the corresponding months last year.

United Gas Improvement Quarter Profit $9,484,888

New York, May 1.—(AP)—United Gas Improvement company reports that the first quarter this year a balance of earnings available for common stock of $9,484,888, or 41 cents a share, compared with 42 cents a share in the corresponding period last year. John E. Zimmerman, president, said that while electric revenue decreased $376,627, or 2.7 per cent, in the first quarter this year as compared with the 1930 period, reductions in rates applicable to the same period amounted to about $581,000. Gas revenues for the quarter increased $229,204, or 4.2 per cent, notwithstanding rate reductions totaling about $42,000.

U.S. Treasury Offering Is Heavily Oversubscribed

Washington, D. C., May 1.—(AP)—A 60 million dollar issue of ninety day treasury bills offered last Tuesday today was heavily oversubscribed. Acting Secretary Mills announced today that applications were received for $305,555,000 of bills and $60,100,000 were accepted. The average price was about 99.876. The average rate on a bank discount basis was about 1.29 per cent. The money will be used to meet government expenses.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 1.—The board of Standard Oil Company of New Jersey decided today to continue the payment of the extra dividend of 25 cents in addition to the regular quarterly at the same amount. A cut in the quarterly rate from $1 to 75 cents a share on the common stock was voted by directors of Purity Bakeries corporation, placing it on a $3 basis.

CLOSE TEN YEAR LEASE AFTER A MONTH'S TRYOUT

Paskind Bros. Take Mohawk-North Corner.

BY AL CHASE.

Paskind Brothers, who operated a department store at 428 West Division street, near Clybourn avenue, for many years, have leased the entire three story and basement building at the northeast corner of North avenue and Mohawk street for ten years at a rental term estimated at $100,000. The building is to be entirely remodeled, including a new elevator installed, a new front and new interior decorations.

Isenberg & Lurie, who negotiated the lease, suggested a month or so ago that Paskind Brothers, who wanted to move from their West Division street store to larger quarters, try out the first floor of the vacant building at North and Mohawk. Paskind Brothers installed some goods and operated the one floor as a store for a month. It was so successful that they signed a ten year lease for the entire building. The building is 50x120.

Theodore C. Tausig is owner.

Four Months Show Gain.

Chicago prospective building for the month of April, based on 166 permits issued, aggregated $3,723,600. The values for the first four months of the year amounts to $32,493,100, which, according to the building survey department of S. W. Straus & Co., is 47.3 per cent gain over the same period of last year. The total for the first four months of 1930 was $21,983,-

January	$ 2,576,600	$ 5,445,500
February	7,877,000	5,400,500
March	18,054,100	4,649,800
April	3,723,600	6,490,300
Total	$32,493,100	$21,983,200

When compared with the previous month of March and with April, 1930, it will be noted that April this year fell off sharply.

Anthony and Lucille Zurie have sold their six apartment building at 6231-9 Rhodes avenue to Lillian Hyre for a reported $30,000. Jack Levinson was broker.

Thirty Flat Building Sold.

The thirty apartment building at 7101 Ridge boulevard, lot 100x168, was sold by George E. Carlson and Fritz Anderson to John Swanson for an unstated consideration, subject to $9,000.

Charles F. Glaeser, attorney, has purchased the thirty-six apartments at the northeast corner of Cullom and Winchester, lot 100x120, from Herbert S. Hedman, president of the Hedman Manufacturing company for a reported $150,000, subject to $80,500. Elmer L. Stults of the E. E. Stults Realty company was broker, and will continue to manage the property.

Arnold, Inc., operating the Lanahan Hosiery and Lingerie shops, with branches in Chicago and nearby cities, has leased the 12x55 store at 3210 Lincoln avenue for five years at a reported term rental of $25,800 from William H. and Harry F. Joost. Cerf & Ehrenhalt were brokers.

WHEAT CLOSES SLIGHTLY HIGHER DESPITE BEARS

Corn Declines to New Low Levels for Season.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A decided variance in the character of the news resulted in decidedly erratic fluctuations in the grain markets yesterday, and while wheat showed a strong undertone throughout the day, coarse grain broke sharply after showing strength early, with December corn and all deliveries dropping to new low levels for the season.

Early there was buying of all grains by shorts, which caused a fair advance, with the May showing the most strength, despite fair deliveries, but the markets turned weak later on announcement that deliveries in car lots would be permitted on old style May contracts, and toward the last the pronounced weakness in the stock and cotton market served further to undermine the confidence of holders.

Wheat Has Narrow Range.

Numerous bullish influences were presented to the wheat trade early. Germany, according to cables, will lower the import duty about 35c per bu on imports of wheat during the month of May, providing mills sell the flour at reduced prices. In addition, Liverpool was strong and closed ⅝@1⅛d higher and claimed cargoes of cash wheat had been diverted to French ports.

Dry weather continues in the Canadian northwest and also in the American spring wheat area, and official reports from the former showed that precipitation in March was materially less than last year, while about 50 per cent of the area has received no relief since the season opened, and a dust storm was reported at Regina. Australia was said to have 40,000,000 bu wheat under charter to clear during the months of May and June.

The bullish factors, however, were quickly lost sight of when private estimates showed an average prospective crop of 658,000,000 bu winter wheat, the largest on record with three exceptions, comparing with 644,000,000 bu on April 1 and 54,000,000 bu in excess of last year. The prospective decrease of 6 per cent in the acreage in the Canadian northwest and of 8 per cent in the American northwest was somewhat less than the trade had anticipated, as a recent government report indicated a reduction of nearly 15 per cent this side of the international line.

Wheat Closes Higher.

Despite all the bearish influences which presented themselves after the early buige, the market was regarded as having given an excellent account of itself, with short covering appearing on the breaks, and the finish was ⅛@¼c higher, with July, 62⅛@62¾c; September, 61⅜@61⅞c, and December, 65⅝@65⅞c. Announcement that track deliveries would be permitted had relatively little effect. Old May closed ⅝c higher at 81⅝c. Deliveries aggregated 3,931,000 bu for the day.

There was some spreading during the day between Chicago and Winnipeg, and wheat in the latter closed unchanged to ⅝c lower, with the July at 62c, while the same future at Liverpool was 68¼. Argentine markets were closed during the day. There was a fairly active foreign demand for Canadian wheat, with sales estimated at 750,000@1,000,000 bu in all positions, and some business is understood to be passing in domestic wheats, but the total of the latter is not being given out by the government agency.

Corn in Sharp Decline.

May corn sold up to 57c, or 1c above Thursday's finish, at the start on short covering induced by deliveries of only 208,000 bu, but the announcement that car lots could be delivered, effective at once, started a selling movement that carried prices on all futures off 1½@2¼c from the early higher, the latter on December, which touched 50½c on the break, and the finish was at net losses of ⅜@2¼c, with May, 55⅝@55½c; July, 57⅝@57¾c; September, 57½@57⅝c, and December, 50½@50¾c.

PREDICT BIG CROP

A near bumper winter wheat crop is forecasted by private estimates given to the trade yesterday, a yield of 658,000,000 bu, the largest since 1919 when it aggregated 760,000,000 bu. Condition is 90.2 or 8.1 points above the average of the past 10 years, while the yield showed an increase of 14,000,000 bu as compared with the government returns of April 1.

A decrease of 5 per cent in the spring wheat acreage in the three Canadian provinces is expected by the Cromwell-Lamson Bros. report, while Murray-Clement Curtis figures showed a decrease of 7 per cent. The latter forecasted a probable decrease of 8 per cent in the American spring wheat acreage. B. W. Snow-Bartlett Frazier Co. reports indicate a gain of 5 per cent in the oats acreage. Details follow, the last six ciphers being omitted in the indicated crops:
